INDICT MANY IN FLOGGING PROBE

FORTY-FIVE ARE NAMED BY GRAND JURY IN SOUTH

Crenshaw County, Alabama, Investigators Return 101 Indictments Against Over Two Score Individuals —State Dragon Of Klan Denounced By Body And Rev. L. A. Falls Criticized.

LUVERE, Ala., Oct. 15—(I. N. S.)—The special investigation of the Crenshaw grand jury called to probe alleged floggings in the district late today returned 101 indictments against forty-five individuals, coupled with a sensational report to Judge A. E. Gambill. James Esdale, grand dragon of the Ku Klux Klan in Alabama, was denounced by the grand jury.

"Had Mr. Esdale been as attentive to his duties as a citizen as he has been in practicing the art of silence and secrecy, these crimes would have never happened in Crenshaw county in the manner and under the condition which they have happened,' said the grand jury report.

Rev. L. A. Falls, the Georgia preacher who failed to answer a summons and went to Texas last week, was also scored in the report.

Minister Scored.

"If the minister of the gospel had been as sincere in serving his congregation as he was in serving brutal lashings to defenseless women and attempting to regulate negro morality, or, if he had been less of a lash wielder and more a creature of peace, this grand jury believes, many of these crimes would never have been committed," the jury said.

A countrywide roundup of those indicted was started Saturday and it is expected to take at least forty-eight hours to apprehend all men sought.

The grand jury investigation was led by Attorney General Charles C. McCall, who has recently conducted like probes in Jefferson and surrounding counties.

Cowardice Charged.

"We repeat that they were evil acts because nothing can be more cowardly and no acts can so stir the blood of red-blooded men and good citizens than for persons to call themselves men, to gather together, purporting to so gather under the banner of Christ and being thus gathered behind secret walls, to plot, plan, conspire and conjure up the yellow deeds, diabolical schemes, unmerciful lashings, and the torturing attacks which have been committed upon defense-

FRENCH OFFER TARIFF REPLY

Answer to Latest U. S. Note Understood To Be Conciliatory.

PARIS, Oct. 15—(I. N. S.)—France and the United States appeared tonight to be near the entrance to an agreement upon the tariff dispute.

France's rejoinder to the latest American note, proposing a mutual reduction in tariff restrictions upon each other's imports, was handed to the American charge d'affaires this afternoon. The tone of this communication was said to be equally conciliatory as that of the recent note from the United States.

It is understood that France is agreeing to reduce tariffs upon American goods upon certain conditions, one of them being a pledge by the United States to reduce duties on French imports.

In addition to seeking an end of the French discrimination against American goods, the United States proposes the negotiation of a new commercial treaty between the two countries.

The American government wishes to have the negotiations for the treaty held in Washington, while the French government suggests that they be conducted here.

However, official circles believe that the obstacles that exist now are comparatively unimportant and that they can be overcome by a further exchange between the two governments.

NATAL, Brazil, Oct. 15—(U. P.) Dieudonne Costes and Joseph Lebrix, French trans-atlantic aviators who reached here from St. Louis, Senegal, last night, were preparing to start early Sunuday morning for Rio De Janeiro on their way to Buenos Aires.

RILEY IS GIVEN $5,000 VERDICT

Jury Finds For Plaintiff In Suit Over Auto Accident.

A $5,000 verdict for Newell C. Riley and against Edward J. T. Connely was returned by a District court jury Saturday afternoon after three hours' deliberation.

This action is one of several that grew out of an auto accident on the Wooster pike near Cincinnati several months ago. Cars driven by Riley and Rev. Mr. Connely collided and the exact manner of their smash-up has become the controversy.

The defendant who filed a $7,000 cross petition, claimed that Riley was going more than 35 miles an hour and weaving from side to side on the road, while Riley asserted that his car was stopped and that Connely was on the wrong side of the pike.

Trial of the case in Judge Broady's court took all week.

DAVIS TO INSPECT MISSISSIPPI AREA

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—(I. N. S.)—Secretary of War Davis will make an inspection tour of the Mississippi flood area next week, preparatory to the compilation of his report to congress, it was announced today.

AIRPLANE PARTY AT SAN ANTONIO ENDS IN TRAGEDY

Five Persons Are Killed When Ship Drops 200 Feet.

Young Couple and 4-Months-Old Child Among Victims.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex., Oct. 15—(I. N. S.)—Plans to have three generations of one family ride in an airplane together ended in tragedy here tonight.

Five persons were killed when the airplane crashed. They were Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Cavanaugh, their 4-months-old daughter, Nancy Katherine; W. D. Winburn, reporter for the San Antonio Light, and Buel Clark of Houston, pilot.

Mrs. Annie Cavenaugh, grandmother of the baby, was unable to carry out plans to take the ride.

Having planned the adventure, Cavenaugh late today engaged Pilot Clark, who operated the plane for L. O. Baker of this city. He also requested that a reporter and a photographer go along. The plane, loaded to capacity, would not accommodate the photographer.

After several unsuccessful attempts to take off, the plane rose from the ground. It apparently was unable to gain speed, however, and fell from an altitude of about 200 feet a short distance from Stinson Field, San Antonio's air mail terminal.

STAGE SET FOR TRIAL OF FALL AND SINCLAIR

Writing of Last Chapter In Oil Scandals To Begin Monday.

MAY ASK FOR POSTPONEMENT

Defendants Face Two Years in Prison If Government Wins.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—(I. N. S.)—In the criminal courtroom of Supreme court Justice Fredrick Siddons, the federal government on Monday will start the writing of the last chapter of he famous oil scandals of 1923, with Atlee Pomerene and Owen J. Roberts, for the people, attempting to substantiate the charge tha Alber B. Fall, former secretary of the interior, criminally conspired with Harry F. Sinclair, millionaire oil operator, to defraud the nation of the Teapot Dome oil reserve.

If the government wins, Fall and Sinclair face two years in the penitentiary and fines of $10,000. If the jury emulates the twelve men who freed Fall and E. L. Doheny on a similar charge, their freedom will be attained in the face of the dicision of the supreme court of the United States, which just last Monday voided the Teapot Dome lease on the ground it was "shot with fraud."

A mos imposing array of legal talent will accompany Fall and Sinclair to the bar of justice. If superlegal ability can offset the seriousness of the government's case they most certainly will go free, for their counsel include Martin W. Littleton of New York; William Leahy of Washington; Mark Thompson of New Mexico, and George Hoover of Washington.

Not Ver'fied by Lawyers.

It was rumored freely tonight that Littleton intends o ener an immediae plea for postponement Monday on the ground that hee handing down the Supreme court decision

ZONE PROBLEM FACES COUNCIL

Auto Traffic and Paving Questions Also Come Up Monday.

Bair Determined to Enforce or Destroy Parking Ordinance.

Zoning problems, automobile traffic, and paving will concern the city council Monday. Zoning must be considered because of an application for change in classification that is pending. Paving is to the fore as the result of an appeal having been made to the Supreme court from a decision of District court denying an injunction against the paving of Forty-eighth street south of A. Traffic is an equasion because enforcement of present ordinances has disturbed the city's distribution system, according to claims made to the council by the heads of concerns interested in the delivery of commodities from the manufacturing, wholesale and jobbing center, and from the freight depots.

The zoning problem is the result of an application for a reclassification having been filed by the Lin-

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—(U. P.)—The entire crew of the schooner, Flower Dew, reported afire 400 miles off Savanah, Ga., has been rescued by the steamer Santa Veronica, the Independent Wireless Co., was advised tonight.

The following message was received from the Santa Veronica:

"We have the entire crew of the British schooner Flower Dew aboard and will land them at Portland, Me. They left the schooner in a sinking condition yesterday after setting her afire."

Lady Skyline Fails To Lay Egg No. 236

CANON CITY, Colo., Oct. 15—(U. P.)—Tragedy today entered the eventful career of Lady Skyline, the claimant of the world's egg laying championship—she failed to lay an egg.

Anxious watch over the little hen's nest ended at 6:05 p. m., today when she sorrowfully went to roost without having produced egg No. 236.

She laid her last egg at 2:10 p. m. yesterday—her 235th in 235 days.

Danforth Comments.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 15—(U. P.)—George A. Danforth, superintendent of the egg laying contest here under the auspices of the American Poultry association, was not disturbed over claims of backers of Lady Skyline at Canon City that their chicken has just concluded laying 235 consecutive eggs. Danforth reiterated that the Colorado contest has no official standing.

"Since reports of Babe Rnth's record breaking achievement have been made public, we have received half a dozen claims that hens have laid as high as 300 eggs in a row," Danforth said.

"Any well informed poultry man will know that this is impossible."

PROGRESSIVES PREFER NORRIS OVER BORAH

Idaho Senator Opposed as 1928 Candidate For Several Reasons.

WESTERNER NOT SEEKING HONOR

Opposition to McNary-Haugen Bill Cited By Insurgent Group.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—(I. N. S.)—The little group of progressive republicans who will dominate the Seventieth congress and who swept nearly five millions of votes to the late Robert M. La Follette in 1924, definitely prefer Senator George W. Norris, the Nebraska independent, to Senator William A. Borah, the Idaho "lone wolf," as their 1928 candidate, it was learned tonight.

There are three reasons for the choice, it was said, and they are:

1. Borah's opposition to the McNary-Haugen bill, which contains a basic principle dear to progressive hearts.

2. Borah's disinclination to become a candidate, and,

3. Borah's "lone wolf" record, composed of numerous instances when he voted against the progressive bloc.

While the first and third reasons were sufficient to turn the progressives against Borah as their candidate, it was definitely learned

Marie Prevost Asking Divorce

— LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 15—(U. P.)—Marie Prevost, screen star, today filed suit for divorce from Kenneth Harlan, also a prominent motion picture player.

Miss Prevost charged mental cruelty, declaring that her husband was unreasonabl ejealous and often told her that their married life was a mistake and that he should have married someone else.

The couple maried on Oct. 14, 1924, and separated alst May 19, according to the complaint.

DRAFTS TOTALING $512 ARE LOST ON LINCOLN STREET

Two drafts issued on the bank of Scotland for a total of $512 were lost by David Warner of Davey between noon and 3 o'clock Saturday. Mr. Warner came into Lincoln Saturday morning and still had the drafts at noon but found that they had been lost from his pocketbook when he left a local theater about 3.

The drafts were lost, Mr. Warner believes, while he was walking from Thirteenth and N streets to Fifteenth and O streets. One draft for £25 was made out in favor of Mabel Warner and the one for £81 to Hugh Cameron. They are not negotiable and Mr. Warner will notify the Bank of Scotland to stop payment immediately.

(Special to The Star)

BEATRICE, Neb., Oct. 15—A marriage license was issued here Saturday to Miss Elizabeth Ann Jack, 26, of this city and Proctor Herbert Sawyer, 31, of Lincoln. Miss Jack is a daughter of Attorney Fulton Jack and a graduate of the Beatrice high school.

MONA M'LENNAN ADMITS CHANNEL CLAIMS FALSE

London Woman Doctor Changes Story of Beating Miss Ederle.

SAYS DID NOT SWIM STRETCH

Deliberately Planned and Executed Hoax Stuns All England.

LONDON, Oct. 15—(I. N. S.)—Mona McLennan, London woman doctor who last Wednesday claimed to have swum the English channel in world's record time, admitted tonight that the claim was false. She admitted flatly that she had not swum the channel.

Miss McLennan stunned all England with the announcement that the story of her purported swim was a hoax, deliberately planned and executed.

She declared she perpetrated the hoax in order "to prove the imperative need for an experienced international commission to supervise all future channel swims." She was prompted to do this, she said, by the apparent ease with which such a hoax could be worked on the public at the present time.

Miss McLennan's confession was published in the Sunday edition of the London newspaper "News of the World," which paid her a prize of $5,000 for her purported feat in breaking Gertrude Ederle's record for swimming the channel. This sum was returned to the newspaper tonight by Miss McLennan's trainer.

"It was apparent to everyone that I never swam the channel on such a night," Miss McLennan said in her confession.

Enters the Water.

She said that after completing her plans for the hoax with some friends she entered the water at Cape Gris Nez, France, at 7:40 o'clock, Tuesday night and after swimming for about two hours she was taken aboard the tug which accompanied her.

"During the night hours," she continued in her confession, "I was kept wrapped up in blankets in the cabin of the boat, but the fumes from the stove made me dreadfully

ALLEN TALKS ON VANZETTI CASE

Lincoln Lawyer Does Not Believe Pair Had Fair Trial.

Tells County Bar of Arguments in Massachusetts High Court.

Convinced himself that Sacco and Vanzetti did not receive a fair trial, T. S. Allen, a Lincoln lawyer who has studied the matter and heard arguments on it in Massachusetts Supreme court, addressed members of the Lancaster County Bar association Saturday evening on legal aspects of the case.

Opinion in Boston on the guilt of the pair was divided, Mr. Allen reported, but most lawyers there thought the two men were not tried fairly, while many believed them innocent. At final arguments of the case, a Harvard law professor remarked that he and ten colleagues thought the trial unfair, but that since anarchists of the world had taken the matter up, the government could not back down at that time.

This meeting of the Lancaster bar, the first of the season, was held at the Lincoln hotel. Another is scheduled there for the middle of November, and subsequent ses-

CHOLERA KILLS THOUSANDS HOGS

Southern Lancaster Loss in Past Two Weeks Placed at $10,000.

Ten thousand dollars worth of hogs have died of cholera in southern Lancaster county within the last two weeks, estimated County Agent Purbaugh Saturday on returning from a trip to the infected territory.

The scourge gained surprising headway recently after authorities had thought it was locally under control, Mr. Purbaugh says. The death list probably is from 800 to 1,000 head.

Only one case in northern sections of the county has come to Mr. Purbaugh's attention, although more may exist. That one was reported near Malcolm two weeks ago. Where the disease seems to flourish most is in a district about Princeton Hallam, Kramer and other nearby towns.

Vaccination has been resorted to but in many cases too late.

Southern Section Nebraska Raises Enormous Apples

(Special to The Star.)

ENDICOTT, Neb., Oct. 15—One of the largest apples ever exhibited in this vicinity was raised by Cap Fairchilds, Endicott brick manufacturer, in a small orchard on his property west of town this season, and the apple is now on dispay in the front window of the Fairbury Bond and Mortgage company, at Fairbury. The apple measured slightly over sixteen inches in circumference and weighed one pound and four ounced when picked, but has shunk a little since then. It was six inches in diameter in the heaviest part. It is one of several large ones raised on a Wolf River Red apple tree.

LINCOLN GIRL'S ESSAY IS BEST

Jean Marie Taylor Places First In Highway Safety Contest.

Lesson Outline By Ogallala Teacher Wins Board's Award.

Jean Marie Taylor of University Place, Lincoln, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Harry A. Taylor, is the winner of a gold medal and $15 in cash given by the national highway education board as first prize for the best essay on the subject of safety on public highways written by a sixth, seventh, or eighth grade pupil in connection with regular school work, during the school year of 1926-7.

Announcement of the prize awards was made Saturday from the office of State Supt. C. W. Taylor. The winning essays were selected by a committee of three persons in his office and their report sent to Washington, together with all essays submitted by Nebraska contestants, to be reviewed by officers of the highway education board there. That body has approved the committee's report and will distribute the prizes accordingly.

Greeley Girl Is Second.

Second place in the state competition was taken by Genevieve Keating of Greeley, a student in St. Joseph's academy there. She will receive $10 and a silver medal.

Five pupils will share in the allotment of third honors, each of them getting $5 and a bronze medal. They are:

Glen Covert, Gibbon, rural district No. 97 of Buffalo county.

Carol J. George, Lincoln, Twenty-sixth and O junior high school.

Opal Beach, Juniata.

Vivian Waggoner, Diller.

Doris Bishop, Pleasanton.

The committee which judged the essays and picked the ones it considered the most meritorious comprised A. L. Burnham, F. E. Bowers, and Miss Lulu S. Wolford.

Ogallala Teacher Wins.

Along with the essay contest for pupils, the national highway education board each year conducts one for school teachers also. They are

SIX COLLISIONS IN TRAFFIC JAM

One Pedestrian Knocked Down By Car But Escapes Injury.

Six automobile accidents occurred in Lincoln Saturday afternoon and evening due to the unusual amount of traffic on the streets which police officers said was as heavy as any they have ever directed.

No one was injured in any of the accidents except Delmer Meyer who received a cut on the nose when he was struck by flying glass from the windshield when cars driven by J. E. Roberts, 2302 South Eleventh street, and E. C. Churchill, 3274 C street, collided at Thirteenth and D streets early Saturday afternoon.

F. M. Van Pelt, 121 P street, notified police Saturday night that he had been knocked down by a car while he was crossing O street at Seventeenth. He only got a glance at the license of the car which

SAPIRO LOSES RACE TO SEE DYING SISTER

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 15—(I. N. S.)—Aaron Sapiro, noted co-operative marketing expert, today was the loser in a race with death. He flew here from San Francisco in an unsuccessful attempt to reach the bedside of his dying sister, Mrs. Albert O. Germann, 42, former concert singer and wife of a prominent physician. Sapiro arrived two hours late.

Mrs. Germann, a native Californian, is survived by three other brothers, Philip Sapiro, municipal bandmaster of San Francisco; Milton Sapiro, San Francisco attorney, and Allen Sapiro, attorney of New York. She will be buried in Oakland.

INVITED TO MAKE NEW YORK FLIGHT IN JUNKERS PLANE

Daring American Aviatrix Turns Down Invitation, Made By German Fliers Now At Horta, Azores, To Return By Air To United States—Plans To Take Boat For Lisbon Monday.

LONDON, Oct. 15—(I. N. S.)—Possibility that Ruth Elder, American aviatrix, may fly from the Azores islands back to the United States with the Austrian actress, Lilli Dillenz, and her Junkers plane pilot, Frederick Loose, was stressed in a message from Horta, in the Azores, tonight.

Miss Elder has conferred with the actress, the message said, although the outcome of their conversation was not made known.

Reports from other sources had indicated Miss Elder had rejected the offer of the Junkers fliers.

Miss Dillenz landed at Horta from Lisbon, enroute to the United States before Miss Elder had been landed on the island.

BERLIN, Oct. 15—(I. N. S.)—Ruth Elder, daring American aviatrix, who, with Captain Haldeman, failed in an attempt to span the Atlantic by airplane this week, rejected an offer made today by the crew of the Junkers seaplane now at Horta, the Azores, to fly back to New York in the German machine.

The Junkers plane, piloted by the German pilot, Fritz Loose, is now at Horta, having flown there from Portrugal, en route to New York from Germany by air.

Miss Elder, who with Captain Haldeman, was landed at Horta by the Dutch tanker Barendrecht, which rescued them from the sea 350 miles from the Azores, announced that she would go to Paris via Lisbon on Monday for a stay of two weeks and then would sail back to New York.

Miss Elder said she would make another attempt to fly the Atlantic next spring.

Ready to Try Again.

HORTA, The Azores, Oct. 15—(I N. S.)—Safe after a hazardous adventure in the skies and on the seas, Ruth Elder's thoughts turned tonight to new adventures for the the future and recreation for the present.

"I'm ready to try again," she said.

JURY CHARGES STREATOR BOY

Harry Hill Indicted in La Salle County On Seven Counts.

OTTAWA, Ills., Oct. 15—(U. P.)—Harry Hill, wayward son of a prosperous but unfappy family of Streator, Ill., today faced a formal charge of murdering his mother, Mrs. Elizabeth Hill.

Young Hill today was indicted by the La Salle county grand jury on one charge of murder, two charges of forgery and four charges of "confidence game." His trial was set by Judge Edgar Eldrege for the January term of court.

Mrs. Hill's body was found several months ago in a shallow grave in the basement of her home at Streator. Due to the fact that Harry—who had been known to have quarrelled with his mother—was missing, suspicion was fastened on him almost immediately.

Two Youths Badly Beaten at Shawnee

SHAWNEE, Okla., Oct. 16—(UP) Two youths giving their names as Claude Mason and Clark Young, oil workers of Kausooth, W. Va., were severely clubbed tonight in the Rock Island railroad yards here.

Two men from the oil fields of Earlsboro are being sought by police investigating the case. The youthful victims are in a local hospital in a serious condition.

BAD WEATHER AGAIN DELAYS HOP OF 'DAWN'

Mrs. Grayson Deeply Disappointed at New Flight Postponement.

Amphibian Plane Stands in Readiness For the Trans-Atlantic Trip.

MAY START SUNDAY.

OLD ORCHARD, Maine, Oct. 16 (Sunday)—(U. P.)—Favorable domestic weather reports indicated a possible hop-off this morning for Demnark by Mrs. Frances Grayson and her two-man crew in the plane "Dawn."

Mrs. Grayson announced that if ocean weather was reported favorable, the hop-off may be made at low ocean tide, about 9 a. m.

OLD ORCHARD, Me., Oct. 15—(I. N. S.)—In an almost deserted summer hotel here, Mrs. Frances Wilson Grayson, aspirant to trans-Atlantic flight honors, tonight was awaiting the dawn of another day. Disappointment marked her demeanor for instead of a continued stay here at this time she had hoped to be winging her way across the Atlantic in her amphibian airplane the "Dawn."

The several times postponed hop to Copenhagen, Denmark, was again delayed today by reports of adverse weather conditions over the ocean. Though Mrs. Grayson was extreme-

GERMAN SCHOOL BILL IMPORTANT

Defeat of Measure by Reichsrat May Be Made Party Issue.

BERLIN, Oct. 15—(INS)—With the general election of 1928 looming on the horizon there were signs today that the Marx cabinet may be drawn into acrisis over political issues, even before the elections get into full swing.

The parties are already lining up and it is evident that capital will be made out of the defeat of the school bill by the Reichsrat. This bill provided, among other things, for the restoration of religious instruction in the German schools. Religiuos teaching had been abolished by the socialists after the 1918 revolution. The Marx cabinet had amended and sponsored the school bill, but the Reichsrat, or federal council, voted it down, 37 to 31. In a sense it was a government defeat.

Echoes of this incident are expected immediately after the reichstag convenes for its autumn session next Tuesday.

The original school bill had been held unacceptable so the government amended it, which made the measure turned down by the Reichsrat a government issue.

Kansas City Police Convince Mayor of Efficient Service

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 15—(U. P.)—At least one mayor is convinced that his police department functions properly. He is mayor Beach of Kansas City.

Last night thieves stole a spare tire from the mayor's car parked in front of a local hotel in a busy section of the city. He went home fully believing that the police department service was rotten.

Saturday the police returned his tire.

"How did you know it was mine?" he asked.

"We caught the thief in an alley and took the number of the car it came from," the police officers said.

"I don't have to prove my police efficient, I'll admit it in the future," Mayor Beach said.

LINER COLLISION COSTS SIX LIVES

Several Members of Crew of Freighter Hit By Paris Missing.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—(INS)—Six members of the crew of the little Norwegian sugar freighter Besseggen, which was struck and sunk by the liner Paris in the lower harbor, were missing tonight and are believed to be lost.

The liner, ablaze with the pomp of an early morning sailing, slashed into the freighter in the darkness—at 1:30 a. m.—and gashed her so deeply she sank within five minutes.

There was no time for the launching of boats from the freighter. The thirty persons aboard leaped into the sea. Twenty-four were rescued.

The six who are missing could not swim, it is said. They are reported to be Gustav Gustavson, Sverre Roesland, Henrik Borgessen, Johannes Arneson, Hjalmmar Monsen and Grifford Odberg.

Great confusion followed the crash. The Paris hit the freighter amidships on the starboard side. The municipal ferries, Brooklyn and the American Legion, were nearby and raced to the rescue. Both ferries carried about 150 passengers and they were in a state of great excitement. Ladders were swung over the sides of the ferries and lifecrafts sent out.

Paris Escapes Injury.

The liner Paris put out a lifeboat and rescued seven persons. The liner was not damaged and continued to sea after stopping long enough to see that all possible had been done.

Captain Yves, commander of the Paris, reported by wireless that the accident was caused by the liner attempting to avoid a string of barges that had cut across its path.

"I tried my best to avoid the freighter but the Paris, hammered by the strong ebb tide, did not respond to rudder and engines," Captain Yves reported, "so the collision occured."

The Besseggen had recently arrived from Havana with a cargo of sugar.

Schooner Crew Rescued.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—(U. P.)—The coast guard cutter Mascoutin today rescued the crew of the schooner Morris Thurlow which was roken up on Diamond shoals on the North Carolina coast by a northeast gale.

The storm was so severe that Mascoutin anchored in Hatteras cove and will not proceed to Norfolk with the refugees until late Sunday it was said.

Remus Pleads Not Guilty To Murder Charge

CINCINNATI, O. Oct. 15—(INS)—A plea of not guilty to the indictment charging him with murdering his estranged wife, Mrs. Imogene Holmes Remus, 38, here October 6, last, was voiced today by George Remus, 49, former multi-millionaire "bootleg king" when arraigned before Common Pleas Judge Chester R. Shook, November 14 was fixed by Judge Shook as the date for the trial of Remus, who is accused of first degree murder.

Accompanied by Attorney Charles Elston, of this city, Remus entered the courtroom shortly before noon. When his case was called Judge Shook asked Remus whether he had read the indictment which charged him with having fatally shot his wife in Eden park here.

"I have, your honor," answered Remus, stepping up to the bar.

"I waive the reading of the indictment, your honor."

The court, however, instructed the clerk to read it.

This done, Judge Shook asked Remus whether he was "guilty, or not guilty?"

"Not guilty, your honor," Remus promptly replied.

When the court asked him who represented him, Remus stated: Mr. Elston and myself, your honor."

Judge Shook then fixed November 14 as the date for Remus' trial.

"Blue Sky" Bureau Will Not Act Upon Power Application

An application made by the Niobrara River Power Co. of Spencer, which is a related corporation of the Northern Nebraska Power Co. there, for authority to issue and sell $20,000 of capital stock in financing what is known as the Eagle Creek project, will not be acted upon by Chief Craig of the state blue sky bureau for the reason that he does not believe it comes within his jurisdiction.

Public utility concerns are among those excepted from the operation of the blue sky law. They ordinarily come under the state railway commission's supervision. The Northern Nebraska Power Co., whose main plant is on the Niobrara river at Spencer, recently applied to that body for approval of some of its securities.

The Niobrara River Power Co. was granted a water diversion permit by State Engineer Cochrane on August 29 allowing it to take 880 cubic feet per second from Eagle Creek for power purposes, near the point where that stream empties into the Niobrara. The power dam is to be 58 feet high. The amount of current generated will be 5,000 horsepower, from a plant of 3,750-kilowatt capacity.

C. A. Forbes of Rhinelander, Wis., is president of the applicant concern; W. D. Bradstreet, vice president; and A. W. Person of Fairmont, Neb., secretary-treasurer.

Nebraska Wesleyan Y. W. C. A. Banquet Attended By 240

Two hundred and forty guests were present at the annual membership banquet of the Nebraska Wesleyan Y. W. C. A., which was held Friday evening. The guests of honor were the advisory board members Mrs. I. B. Schreckengast, Mrs. H. F. Fox, Mrs. J. L. Claflin, Mrs. Parvin Witte, Mrs. M. E. Gilbert, Mrs. F. M. Gregg, Mrs. Glen Callen, Miss Gladys Coatman and Miss Ethel Booth.

The banquet followed the candle lighting ceremonial which was presided over by Lilian Jasa, president. Natelle Millard read and Ellen Douglas played the violin. Toasts were given by Grace Bickel for the freshmen, Pauline Wright for the sophomores, Mary Carr for the juniors and Doris Gustafsen for the seniors. Miss Nanette Ashby was toastmistress.

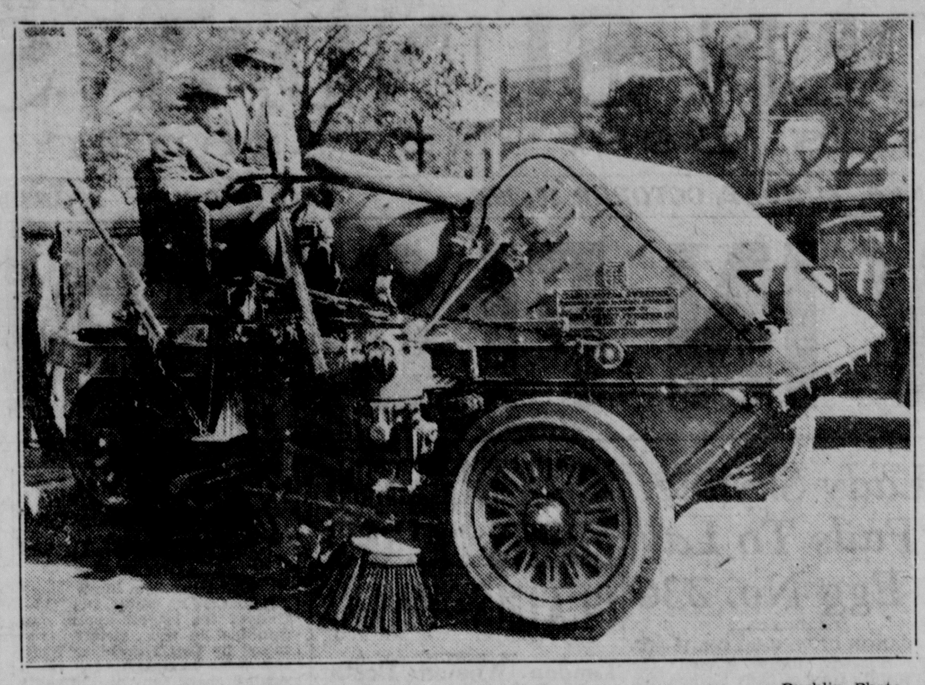
Modern Equipment to Clean Streets.



—Bucklin Photo

The pickup sweeper shown above was added to the equipment of the Lincoln street department Saturday and will be placed in operation at once. It sprinkles the streets, sweeps the pavement and picks up the dirt all in one operation.

With the new machine in operation Commissioner Duncan believes he will be able to clean twenty-five miles of pavement in a day as compared to the five miles cleaned under present methods.

The machine cost $6,500 and is driven by gasoline power.

sions will be held at the same place. Committees will be named next time.

Attends Mass Meeting.

When Mr. Allen arrived in Boston, he stated, excitement was at fever heat. The governor had refused to intervene in the case, bombs had been set, police were on 24-hour duty, and a great mass meeting was called for the morrow on the commons.

That meeting he attended. A socialist spoke for an hour before the scheduled time, and as members of the defense committee arose to talk they faced an audience of 25,000 to 60,000 persons. When the speakers started to talk of "perjurers" and "murderers," however, the police grabbed them and broke up the session.

Next day Mr. Allen attended arguments in Supreme court, enabled to gain admission by his position as a lawyer. The leader of the Boston bar, just retained by the defense, argued for four hours. The attorney general then remarked simply that the action of the jury six years before lay outside of the province of the Supreme court's action. His position was upheld by the presiding justice and the appeal was lost.

Vanzetti and Sacco were arrested in Boston three weeks after the murder of two paymasters in April, 1920. The shooting had been done by a pair of gangsters who escaped with three others in an auto.

Police had traced the car of a suspect to a certain garage. When Sacco and Vanzetti, together with others, called for it one day, they were arrested.

Thinking they were being held as anarchists, they later testified, they told several lies which were used against them at the trial. They said they wanted the car to gather up radical literature in their own houses and in the houses of friends, so that they might destroy it.

Seven Weeks' Trial.

Five witnesses testified at the seven weeks' trial that they saw Sacco at the holdup, while two identified Vanzetti. Yet immediately after the arrest, only one of these seven was able to identify either Sacco or Vanzetti. One woman, in fact, had identified another man, but later changed her mind.

Two of the identification witnesses gave sixteen points of description, although a Harvard professor told the jury that such a memory feat would be psychologically impossible.

On their way out of town, the real murderers did some shooting when stalled at a railroad crossing. Observers not five feet away asserted that Sacco and Vanzetti were not in the auto, but the defense did not learn of this until after the trial.

Many witnesses testified that the driver of the death car was of light complexion, while Vanzetti was decidedly dark. Thirteen persons agreed that Vanzetti was in his home town on the day in question, selling fish. Sacco also attempted to establish an alibi.

On Trial For Anarchism.

From the time the cross examination of Sacco and Vanzetti commenced, Mr. Allen stated, they ceased to be on trial for murder and went to trial for anarchism. Just at that period, Attorney General Palmer was making his great drive against reds, particularly in New York and Boston, and the papers were full of talk on the subject.

The accused men admitted they were anarchists, admitted they fled the country in time of war to escape the draft, and admitted they did not believe in war. In his closing arguments the district attorney declared the country should be rid of slackers, while Judge Thayer in his instructions to the jury dwelt on the word "loyalty."

Seven motions for new trials and two hearings in Supreme court were in vain.

It was shown to the court by affidavit that the state's own gunnery expert could not find that Sacco's revolver had fired one of the shots and that a well known gang had in all probability perpetrated the crime.

Members of the bar association asked Mr. Allen several questions after his talk, but on suggestion that probably nothing could now be done in the matter, the meeting ended.

SWEET POTATOES MAKE GOOD CROP

(Special to The Star.)

PLYMOUTH, Neb. Oct. 15—Sweet potatoes dug from one hill in a small patch raised on the farm of Henry Hansjurgens near here this season, weighed a total of eight and three-fourths pounds. One of the potatoes weighed two and one-fourth pounds alone. The ground is black bottom loam, the season was just right for sweet potatoes, and the farmer says there are many as big as these, and some even larger in the patch. They are of good quality.

NEW PIPE ORGAN TO BE DEDICATED

(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., Oct. 15—The new pipe organ which was recently installed in the First Presbyterian church here, will be dedicated with special services Sunday evening. The dedicatory address will be given by Rev. Ross McCown, the pastor. Special musical numbers will be given on the organ by Marjorie Ellen Little. The church was recently newly decorated and refurnished, which makes it one of the finest in the city.

BUILD NEW BRIDGE.

(Special to The Star.)

ENDICOTT, Neb., Oct. 15—Material has arrived and been hauled to the location on the highway over Brawner's creek, near the Bonham farm, between here and Fairbury, for the building of a new steel bridge over the creek, replacing the one damaged by the flood water over two months ago. The old bridge was a wooden structure and has stood service for many years, and was in such condition that renewal was necessary. The bridge is on the main roadway from Fairbury to Endicott and Steele City and is much used.

MONA M'LENNAN ADMITS CHANNEL CLAIMS FALSE

ill and at about twenty minutes to 4 Wednesday morning, when I could stand it no longer, I went up on deck.

"About 5 o'clock the pilot of the tug suggested that it was time I resumed the swim, as he was afraid the deception would be discovered if I waited for full daylight before resuming. But I refused to go into the water until we were about three miles from Folkestone.

"Everybody seemed terribly afraid I would be spotted going over the side of the boat, so the pilot brought the boat around with its broadside toward shore to cover my movements.

"At about 6:20 o'clock I slipped into the water and resumed the swim. At length, when I felt that the second stage of the swim had been sufficiently prolonged I swam boldly toward the beach."

Before starting the swim, Miss McLennan's confession said, she prepared a detailed statement of what she proposed to do. She sealed the document and deposited it in the safe of the Imperial hotel near Folkestone.

After the swim she accepted the $5,000 prize from the newspaper and deposited it in a bank with the statement that it should be payable to the newspaper upon demand.

Later she went to the editor of the newspaper and confessed to the hoax.

Notwithstanding the doubts cast upon the authenticity of Miss McLennan's purported feat, the appearance in print of her confession was a stunning surprise to everyone. London newspapers characterized it as "the greatest hoax of the century."

England had received Miss McLennan's claim to the channel record in good faith and wherever she has appeared since her purported swim she has been all but mobbed by enthusiastic admirers.

Miss McLennan, whose real name is Dorothy Cochrane Logan and whose home is in Harley street, London, stepped ashore on the Folkstone beach at 9 o'clock Wednesday morning, announcing that she had just completed swimming the channel from Cape Griz Nez, France, in thirteen hours and ten minutes, thus eclipsing the time made by Gertrude Ederle by one hour and twenty-nine minutes.

Miss McLennan announced she would claim the $5,000 prize offered by a London newspaper for the first English woman to break the record established by Miss Ederle.

Miss McLennan at the conclusion of her purported swim gave a graphic description of the hardships she was supposed to have undergone during the long swim. She said said the water was terribly cold and that her feet and legs at one time were completely numbed. She said she had used the breast stroke almost the whole distance.

The swimmer's story was backed up by Horace Carey, the trainer, and Captain Adams of the royal navy.

First doubts as to the authenticity of Miss McLennan's claims, both as to her swimming time and to having swum the channel at all, were raised by a London newspaper when it was unable to find a single person at Cape Griz Nez who had seen Miss McLennan start on her swim. Despite the reiteration by Miss McLennan and her trainer that her claims were authentic, this newspaper continued its investigation of the circumstances of the purported swim.

MULLEN FEEDERS SHIP IN STOCK

ALLIANCE, Neb. Oct. 15—Ranchmen in the vicinity of Mullen have received 151 head of home raised cattle from near Friend. This west Nebraska feeding station will put the cattle in shape for the eastern markets. Thomas Divoky bought 62 head of the two year old steers; Antone Horneande took 45 three year old steers; Joe J. Sukvety bought 44 head of yearlings. This stock was delivered this week to the Mullen feeders.

SELECT FIELD FOR HUSKING CONTEST

(Special to The Star.)

HASTINGS, Neb., Oct. 15—Adams county's corn husking contest will be held in a 100-acre field at the Hastings state hospital grounds at Ingleside. The field is clean and large—just the place for a husker to show his mettle, County Agent Davis declares. Entries in the contest are limited to 16. Corn in the Ingleside field is estimated at about 45 bushels to the acre.

STOCK MARKET GIVES EVIDENCE OF STRENGTH

Sharp Rally Occurs In Industrial Stocks During Weekend.

Business and Industrial Reports For Week are Somewhat Confusing.

BY W. S. COUSINS.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—(INS)—A sharp rally in industrial stocks at the weekend had as its chief basis the covering of short commitments by the professionals in Wall street and outside speculative centers. Between the see-sawing of bullish and bearish traders little progress was made, though the market gave a remarkable exhibition of its strength following one of the most notable upward price movements in the market's history.

The business and industrial reports of the week were somewhat confusing, but on the whole a slowing down was indicated as compared with the last two years. Some business commentators go so far as to state that the whole volume of American business in the third quarter of this year has been the lowest of any quarterly period since the end of 1914, although this is probably somewhat wide of the mark.

At any rate the principal economic bureaus have evidence aplenty to convince them that the usual fall movement in business will be in full swing before the first of November. There have been some notable revisions in the raw goods markets, with price adjustments which discourage rather than stimulate buying. Weather conditions have not been conducive to a heavy turnover. Commodity prices continue to display a resistance toward a lower trend of values and the list, with the exception of foodstuffs, remains firm.

Bond Prices Firm.

New financing for the week aggregated about $220,000,000, of which $141,500,000 was for the account of foreign governments, the largest weekly aggregate for foreign borrowing in three years. With the Polish and French refunding issues yet to come, it is estimated that about a billion and a quarter of foreign bond offerings have been absorbed in our markets this year. Prices of bonds in the listed market continued to firm with Italian issues leading the foreign group.

A number of the well known speculative leaders in the industrial stocks inaugurated a series of brilliant forward movements this week. General Motors and Houston Oil sold within a point of their record highs, while United States Steel, after declining to below the September low level, registered a sharp rally. Erie was the leader of the railroad group, with buying of the volume for the account of the Nickel Platte merger sponsors.

The commodity futures markets were generally steady, though cotton failed to hold its ground and oil was depressed as the result of the renewal of the price-war contest in important consuming centers.

Dun's review reported twenty-six increases and sixteen declines in forty-two changes in wholesale commodity prices, while Bradstreet's food index number for the week was reported at $3.36, against $3.37 last week and $3.46 in the corresponding week of last week.

Bank clearings for the current week aggregated $9,078,664,000, a gain of 5.3 per cent as compared with the same period last year.

Wheat Closes Lower.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15 — (INS) — Weakness in corn unsettled the grain market today and there was free selling on the rallies which resulted in losses all around for the day. Wheat ended ⅜@⅝c lower; corn ⅝@1⅛c down, and oats ¼@⅝ lower.

For the week wheat was ½@¾c off; corn 6¾@8c lower, and oats 2¼@⅝c down.

Foreign reports of wheat supply were mostly favorable and Winnipeg reported strength in October, with other months also showing gains. Canadian weather reports are for more rain on the heels of generally cloudy weather, with clearing weather in sight next week.

Liquidation has been general in corn all week. The resultant drop in prices found December 85¼c, its low point today, just 35c below the high point of August.

Oats have displayed weakness in sympathy with corn.

Hog Supply Good.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15—(INS)—Hogs are 15@25c lower as a result of good supply and little demand. Best medium-weight butchers are quotable at $11.85@12.00; good heavy $11.50@11.90 and the underweight light $10.75@11.25.

The market for fat steers is active and higher. The middle class of stuff regained this week its previous losses and again is at the high mark of the season, 50@75c higher than a week ago, at prices between $13.00@15.00. Top this week was $16.80 for heavy steers and $16.75 for yearlings.

Butcher stock advanced 25@40c this week on all cows and heifers of suitable beef quality. Grassers sold higher at $6.00@7.50 and fat cows were strong at $8.00@9.50. Demand was specially broad for yearling heifers that sold $11.00@13.75. Canners and cutters were higher at $4.50@6.00. Bulls advanced 25c on most of the butchers that hold $7.50@8.50 and on the good bolognas that ranged from $7.00@7.50. Demand for calves was better and the last of the week saw prices fairly steady. Stockers and feeders steady at $7.75@10.50 with the bulk $8.25@9.50.

Demand for lambs was better all week and prices gained 25c to 50c on good killing lambs and 25c on feeders. Best western lambs sold at $14.25 with the bulk $13.75@14.00. Natives bulked at $13.50@13.75, with common grades $13.00@13.50. Feeders were in sharp demand at the advance of 25c to $13.00@14.25.

Chciago Cotton Higher.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15—(INS)—Cotton closed today with prices well above the close of yesterday for all months. Weather conditions were fair all over the belt and the cash markets were fairly strong. Closing prices:

January 21.28c, up 24 points; March 21.60c, up 34; May 21.56c, up 11; July 21.50c, up 2; October 21.14c, up 22; December 21.26c, up 27.

WAGGENER NEW EXTENSION AGENT

O. O. WAGGENER.

Former assistant state extension agent in boys and girls clubs, who has been promoted to the position of state extension agent in animal husbandry of the University of Nebraska agricultural college. Mr. Waggener takes the place of M. B. Posson who is resigning to take charge of a large ranch in western Nebraska.

O. O. WAGGENER IS PROMOTED

Named New State Extension Agent in Animal Husbandry.

O. O. Waggener, who has been an assistant state extension agent in boys and girls clubs, has been promoted to the position left vacant by the recent resignation of M. B. Posson, state extension agent in animal husbandry of the University of Nebraska agricultural college.

Mr. Waggener takes up his new duties at once because Mr. Posson was taken to the hospital Wednesday of the past week to undergo an operation for appendicitis. Mr. Posson's resignation was to have taken effect on December 1, but the date has been changed because of his illness.

Mr. Waggener has been with the Nebraska agricultural extension service for about two years as a state club worker spending most of his time with livestock clubs. He has many friends among the boys and girls and local leaders of the state, especially among the baby beef clubs with whom he worked the most. In his new duties, he will have charge of the hog lot sanitation and pig crop contest projects, the big hitch demonstration and the other filed work with Nebraska livestock men with whom Mr. Posson has been doing an outstanding piece of work.

Mr. Posson is resigning to take charge of a large ranch in western Nebraska where he intends to develop a Hereford herd and other purebred livestock.

NINA MORGANA TO SING OVER RADIO NETWORK TONIGHT

Another star of the Metropolitan Opera company joins the famous galaxy of Atwater Kent artists today when Nina Morgana, soprano, broadcasts for the first time in this series of Sunday night concerts.

Mme. Morgana will be assisted on this occasion by Mary Chainey, the young Idaho violinist who was hailed with great promise at her New York debut last year. The joint concert will be broadcast over the regular network of twenty-three stations, at 8:15 central standard time.

During her six years with the Metropolitan Opera company, and previously, she toured the country in recital with Caruso and the New York symphony, with Titta Ruffo, Pasquale Amato, Giovanna Martinelli, Efrem Zimbalist and others.

The program follows:

Caro Nome, from Rigoletto ..... Giuseppi Verdi
Nina Morgana and accompanist.
Andante ..... Henri Wieniawski
Tango ..... Albeniz Elman
Dance Negre ..... Cyril Scott
Mary Chainey and accompanist.
Pierrot ..... Wintter Watts
The Sweetest Flower that Blows ..... Frank Van der Stucken
Thou ..... George Liebling
Girometta ..... Gabriele Sibella
Abballatti ..... Iberto Favara
Nina Morgana and accompanist.
Jota ..... de Falla-Kochanski
Valse Bluette ..... Drigo-Auer
Nachstruck ..... Robert Schumann
Spanish Dance ..... Pablo de Sarasato
Mary Chainey and accompanist.
Waltz—Ariette, from Mireille ..... Charles Gounod
Nina Morgana and accompanist.

RADIO DIGEST

Static Not Always to Blame.

Much of the so-called static heard in a receiver is simply a light film of corrosion or a gradual loss of tension of springs in the tube sockets. Brighten up the tube pins with a small nail file and tighten any springs by pulling them up just a little with the finger or a pencil.

To Clean the Back of Dials.

The back of flat dials in front of the set can be cleaned without removing them with a calling or business card, the edge of which has been dipped in alcohol or water and the card carefully pushed between the dial and panel front. Hold the card in several positions while revolving the dial.

A Noise Eliminator.

A set which has a habit of developing inexplicable ringing or "microphonic" noises in the loud speaker can be cured quite effectively if a pair of ordinary thin rubber stair mats aree slipped beneath it so that the bottoms of the cabinet rests on the rubber instead of on the table. The mats may be cut down with a pair of scissors so that they will not protrude beyond the edge of the cabinet. The rubber mats "insulate" the set acoustically and prevent strong jars and shocks from reaching it.

"You're There With a Crosley"

A One-Dial Control Shielded 6-Tube Set

RADIO coils of the "Bandbox" are surrounded by magnetic fields similar in every respect to the magnetic field around the earth that moves the needle of a compass, but around radio coils these fields make nuisances of themselves by feeding back on each other. The Crosley "Bandbox" incorporates copper shields around each coil to prevent such feeding back. The amplification of the receiver is, therefore, much higher—the sensitivity is greatly increased. Condensers are also completely shielded from each other in separate metal compartments. Hitherto, only high priced sets have enjoyed this super radio advantage.

INTERIOR FRONT VIEW OF THE "BANDBOX"

THE above illustration shows the shielding of the "Bandbox." Radio coils are surrounded by magnetic fields similar in every respect to the magnetic field around the earth that removes the needle of a compass, but around radio coils these fields make nuisances of themselves, by feeding back on each other.

Heretofore, it has been customary to make inefficient coils with inefficient fields to prevent such feeding back. The Crosley Bandbox incorporated copper shields around each coil to prevent such feeding back. The coils consequently can be made and are very much more efficient. The amplification of the receiver is, therefore much higher—the sensitivity is greatly increased. Condensers are also completely shielded from each other in separate compartment. Hitherto, only high priced sets have enjoyed this super-radio advantage.

DeLuxe Cabinet Model 410, Musicone Speaker $85

THIS very attractive cabinet is finished in the popular walnut only, complete with 10-inch set compartment. A beautiful cabinet, designed especially for the Crosley "Bandbox" model. The improved Crosley Musicone is built into this cabinet and makes a fine article of furniture for that "corner."

SHAVER FAVORS MIDWEST MEET

Demo Convention City To Be Chosen In the January Conference.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—(U. P.)—Chairman Clem Shaver of the democratic national committee, announced today that the 1928 national convention city would be decided on at a meeting of his committee here January 12. He added informally that he believed a city in "neutral middlewestern territory" would be picked, boosting the stock of Denver, Omaha and Kansas City, Mo.

Plans are being made for a Jackson day dinner and democratic rally here during the week of the January meeting, Shaver said.

Names of nine cities which have formally applied for the convention were given as follows:

Boston, Detroit, Denver, Chicago, Miami, Omaha, Indianapolis, San Francisco and Atlantic City. Other cities under consideration, which may apply, include Cleveland, Minneapolis and St. Paul.

Shaver has been here since Friday, conferring with democratic leaders. The January meeting, he said, will fix the time and place of the convention and "such other business as may properly come before the committee."

The democratic session will be just a month after the republican national committee called for the same purpose.

Omaha to Seek Honor.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 15—(U. P.)—Upon being informed that the democratic national convention would be held, democratic leaders began making plans to bring the meeting to this city.

Arthur F. Mullen, national committeeman for Nebraska, said no definite plans have yet been formulated but that Omaha would be in the fight for convention honors.

BAD WEATHER AGAIN DELAYS HOP OF 'DAWN'

ly anxious for the take off, her navigator, Brice Goldsborough, after scanning the report firmly cautioned her against the extreme hazards of a take-off today and the postponement resulted.

The next tentative time set for the hop-off was tomorrow morning between 7 and 8 o'clock. At that time the tide will be at a low mark, laying bare a broad stretch of excellent beach for the take-off.

Eager to Start.

Weather conditions at that time, however, will govern the plans of the Grayson party, as they have in the past. When announcement of the postponement was made today Wilmer L. Stultz, pilot of the "Dawn," was ready to go. He was also disappointed as he had felt sure that today wou'd see them started.

Tonight the "Dawn" was as near perfection as human hands and skill could make her. Igor Sikorsky, designer and builder of the ship, had given it his personal inspection. He had come for the hop-off planned for this morning.

"Doc" Kincaide, motor expert, declared the motors to be in the best of condition. The radio equipment was pronounced fit. All that now remains to put the flight under way tomorrow is a clearance in the weather conditions. No encouragement in this respect had been found tonight in the reports of conditions at sea received by the radio coast stations.

Southern Cross Ready.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Oct. 15—(U. P.)—With its giant wings shielding a brood of small airplanes, the Fokker monoplane "Southern Cross" was quartered in the airdrome here tonight, awaiting the time for the start of its flight across the Pacific.

Preparations for the flight that is to carry the crew of four Australian airmen to their native land by way of Honolulu, New Britain and New Guinea are going steadily forward, despite the fact that the take-off had been postponed until Nov. 3.

The delay will give the airmen the chance to take advantage of the longest period of moonlight over the air lanes of the Pacific.

The giant tri-motored monoplane arrived here Tuesday from Seattle, where it was put into condition for the flight.

A test flight with full load will probably be made from San Francisco to Los Angeles next week.

Editorial "Shots" Fail Bring Comment From Senator Reed

KANSAS CITY, Oct. 15—(U. P.)—Editorial "shots" as a result of his recent speech in which he virtually threw his hat into the president al ring, failed to arouse comment from James Reed, Missouri senator. Reed returned today from St. Louis and Sedalia where he made the principal speeches at a gathering of democrats from all over the state.

Reed indicated characteristically that he was pleased with the "hornet's nest" he had stirred up in the east.

Democratic Candidate

HASTINGS, Neb., Oct. 15—Mrs. C. E. Byers of Hastings has filed for the candidacy of democratic national committeewoman in Nebraska. Mrs. Byers has long been active in club circles, in church work, in the Y. W. C. A., the Red Cross, and other civic movements here. In spite of her many outside activities, Mrs. Byers is recognized as one of the most efficient homekeepers in the city, and as a never-failing, charming hostess.

PROGRESSIVES PREFER NORRIS OVER BORAH

that the Idaho statesman had no idea whatever of entering the presidential race on his own hook. He never has had the "presidential bug," it was said.

Like Norris' Record.

The progressives, however, prefer Norris because of his "stainproof" progressive record in public life and his championship of the McNary-Haugen bill. Norris was not an ardent booster of that farm relief measure, but he voted for its enactment, although he did describe it as purely experimental legislation.

The progressives will have three major political issues for the 1928 campaign. They will demand:

1. Adequate farm relief legislation, capable of granting ariculture the same economic independence now being enjoyed by industry in general.

2. An immediate end to alleged "dollar imperialism" in America's foreign policies, and,

3. Far more drastic regulation of the power industry.

Norris fits into these progressive policies like a "bug in a rug."

Several Drawbacks.

In choosing Norris over Borah, the progressives said they were aware that the Idaho "lone wolf" had a greater personal following than the Nebraskan and "might easily be a greater vote-getter." They felt though, that Borah's opposition to the McNary-Haugen bill would hurt his chances of success in the wheat and corn belts, where most of the presidential primaries are held, and in addition, his candidacy would rob the progressives of their greatest campaign issue—adequate farm relief.

Borah, himself, would rather support Norris than make the race himself. His intimates whisper that this is because Borah hates a losing race and is absolutely opposed to running for president merely for the sake of getting a beating. At any rate, Borah was one of the first to suggest Norris as the progressive candidate and he has renewed the suggestion at every possible chance while poo-poohing talk of becoming a candidate himself.

In fact, the only supporter of Borah found in the progressive group to date has been Norris—whom Borah prefers to himself.

SIX COLLISIONS IN TRAFFIC JAM

struck him and was not sure that he got the correct number. He was not injured.

Ruth Berg of Wahoo and Paul C. White, 2545 O street, figured in a minor collision at Thirty-third and Holdrege streets. Miss Berg struck White's machine when White made a U-turn. The accident occurred late Saturday evening.

In a traffic jam at Twenty-seventh and O streets about 7:30 Saturday evening cars belonging to C. A. Wiener, 2322 South Sixteenth street, and Charles E. Rolfe, 2813 Arlington street, came together with slight damage to both machines.

Another accident happened at about the same time at Eleventh and J streets when cars driven by W. E. Smith, 3811 St. Mary's avenue, and R. E. Rogers, 433 North Tenth street, collided. The damage to the cars was very slight.

The sixth car mix-up occurred between Sixteenth and Seventeenth on R street in the aftermath of the Nebraska-Grinnell football game. A car driven by P. S. Hammond, 3060 T street, poked into the back of another driven by M. Welch of Utica.

RUTH ELDER REJECTS OFEFR TO FLY BACK

"I'd love to dance tonight—is there anything going on?"

These were the first thoughts expressed tonight by the American girl who flew thirty-five hours over the Atlantic ocean to be finally forced down at sea, when interviewed by International News Service, and rescued by the tanker Barendrecht.

Although Miss Elder's adventure is an epic of the air and sea, she was reluctant to discuss it, first because she had contracted to sell her story and, second, because she seemed to consider it as "just one more thrill."

Vivacious and full of the mannerisms of the modern girl, Miss Elder discussed her flight in much the same manner that might be expected of a debutante describing a tea party.

"Yes, I was nervous," admitted Miss Elder in response to a question. "When? Well, when I had to take the wheel."

Couldn't Lift Fuel Cans.

"You see part of my job on this flight was to keep the petrol tank full while Captain Haldeman piloted the plane. I was supposed to feed petrol into the tanks from cans which we carried, but I found the cans were so heavy I couldn't lift them. I had to call Captain Haldeman to empty the petrol into the tanks. That meant I had to take the wheel. I felt nervous then. I had my troubles, for I found it very difficult to keep the machine going against the wind."

Asked whether she had been able to sleep during the trip, Miss Elder replied: "Oh, yes. I slept for ten minutes. I had that short nap sitting in a chair in the cabin of the plane with my head resting on the petrol tank. You can hardly call that a rest, I guess, but I had a marvelous sleep on the Barendrecht and I am just as full of energy now as can be. I'd love to dance."

"Boisterous most of the way" was the way Miss Elder described the weather she had encountered.

"We were kept busy because, you know, we had a good deal of stormy weather which we had to fight during Wednesday night, although Tuesday night and Wednesday during the day we had pretty good going."

The correspondent pressed the aviatrix for more details and asked her whether she would now give up trans-ocean flying.

Says Greatly Thrilled.

"Oh, no", Miss Elder responded. "I am quite ready to take off again and I am greatly thrilled by what we have accomplished.

"I'm sorry now I can't give you the main features of my flight, but I have promised the story and I'll have to keep my promise and my contract."

Miss Elder came ashore from the Barendrecht wearing plus-fours, a "wind breaker" and with the cap of Captain Goes of the Barendrecht perched jauntily on her head.

Although there was a pouring rain a large crowd of officials and citizens gathered to greet Miss Elder and Haldeman upon their arrival here this morning.

"I'm overwhelmed," the girl flier said when she saw the reception that awaited and the huge stack of cablegrams ready for delivery to her.

"I can't cope with all this."

Miss Elder went to the home of G. F. Mackey of the Western Union Cable Co. to remain there as a guest until Monday, when she and Haldeman will take a boat bound for Lisbon, though they may decide to get off at Madeira and take a boat direct to France or England.

Officers of the Barendrecht, after the manner of seafaring men, told a rather matter of fact yarn of the rescue, leaving most of the dramatics to the imagination.

Captain Notified.

Wednesday morning the lookout on the Barendrecht sighted the "American Girl" and Captain Goos was notified. Coming on the bridge, he realized from the maneuvers that were being made that the plane was was in difficulty.

With most of the crew standing on deck in amazement at seeing an airplane that far from land—some 300 miles from the Azores—Captain Goos gave orders to stand by and the plunging tanker was brought to, while signals were exchanged with the fliers.

With their oil pressure gone and the engine of the plane heated to a dangerous point, Haldeman and Miss Elder knew they could not hope to reach land and so maneuvered for a landing on the sea.

Captain ordered a boat launched and it was put over the side just as the "American Girl" came down in a pretty landing on the ocean, without doing any material damage to the plane. Miss Elder and Haldeman were taken from the cockpit aboard the small boat and were transferred to the Barendrecht.

Urge Salvage Efforts.

Once aboard the tanker Miss Elder and Haldeman were anxious about their plane and urged immediate salvage efforts. Captain Goos ordered his crew to the rails and the davits were lowered and the work started in an attempt to take the plane aboard. As the work progressed there was a fouling of some gears and an explosion occurred on the plane, flames shooting into the air. There was a good deal of inflammable material on the plane and the Barendrecht, and Captain Goos ordered his ship under way at once. The fated plane was left to burn and sink. Miss Elder and Haldeman, greatly disappointed over the loss of their plane sought rest in the Azores.

As nearly as can be estimated the distance covered in Miss Elder's flight was approximately 2,000 miles and the time thirty-five hours. The plane was continually driven from its course and fought a long battle against the storm.

Both Miss Elder and Haldeman are positive they could have reached shore in Europe safely if it had not been for the broken oil line.

BY CAPTAIN GOOS,
Master of Dutch Tanker

(Copyright, 1927, By United Press.)

ABOARD S. S. BARENDRECHT, Oct. 15—(3:40 A. M.)—(Delayed in transmission, by radio to United Press.)—On Thursday, October 13, at 7:45 a. m., we were at sea in latitude 43 degrees 21 minutes north, and longitude 21 degrees 39 minutes west.

The "American Girl" airplane came in sight over the horizon, and she came toward us. As the plane passed over our ship a message was thrown from it onto our deck.

"How far are we from land?" it said. "Which way is it?"

We had checked up our position previously and knew just where we were. As soon as possible, we painted on the deck:

"True south four degrees to west. 360 miles Terceira, Azores, Terceira island.

For some time, the "American Girl" circled over our ship while Miss Ruth Elder and George Haldeman, who rode it, made up their minds what to do.

Miss Ruth and Haldeman shouted to us to stand by, as tney were coming down alongside our steamer. But we could not understand them.

Plane Descends.

Then the airplane descended and landed alongside the Barendrecht.

Miss Elder and Haldeman climbed on top of the plane and we hurried to the rescue.

Our boat that put out at once, rescued the two aviators by throwing lines to them from alongside. Both were safely landed aboard our steamer.

The weather was good and the sea was moderate, but there was rather a high swell. The aviators informed us that they were obliged to come alongside, as it was impossible to continue even the 360 miles farther to the Azores, because the oil pressure had dropped to five pounds.

We brought the steamer alongside the airplane to take it aboard. We had everything in order and were ready to hoist it onto our deck.

Suddenly two explosions occurred under the surface of the water. They sent burning benzine to the surface and set the whole airplane afire. This obliged us to cut off all ropes and give up hope of saving the airplane. Afterwards we set our course for Horta.

ZONE PROBLEM FACES COUNCIL

coln Hatchery, at Thirty-seventh and South streets. The property on which the business is located is now classed as residential and the company wishes it changed to industrial in order to build or remodel its building.

The distribution problem because of parking regulations is the outcome of Commissioner Bair's determination to enforce the law "or wipe it off the books."

Under present regulations an automobile cannot stop behind cars parked at the curb. When they do the drivers are arrested. Business men in the industrial district resent the law and are asking that it be annulled. It not only effects their business, they claim, but it disturbs the city's entire distribution system and is a nuisance to the automobile public generally. It is the general belief at the city hall that the obnoxious provision will be set aside.

Law Suit Delays Paving.

It is not likely there will be any action taken Monday on the Forty-eighth street paving project. Bids submitted by paving contractors were opened Saturday and that of the Abel Construction company was the lowest. Ordinarily the contract would be awarded tomorrow but this probably will not be done since two large property owners have sought an injunction against it and this is now pending in the state Supreme court following a decision adverse to the plaintiffs in the lower tribunal.

A contract involving the expenditure of more than $28,000 will be awarded, however. It will provide for the paving of F street from First to Seventh, and the laying of a sewer along the same street, at an expense of $28,920.

While the council is considering protest it will study one filed by the O. L. & B. railway. The company objects to paving between and one foot on each side of its rails on Y street from Seventeenth to Twenty-first streets, ordered paved last Monday by the council.

HUGHES DENIES HOLDUP SUSPECT IS HIS NEPHEW

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Oct. 15—(INS)—Captured while running from the scene of a holdup, a youth giving his name as Harry Starritt and claiming to be a nephew of Charles E. Hughes, former secretary of state, was arrested today with three companions and charged with robbery.

The four suspects are accused of having held up and robbed Roy Hughes of $128.

Hughes Denies Relationship.

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—(INS)—Charles Evans Hughes, formerly secretary of state, denied today that he was the uncle of Harry Starritt, arrested in Los Angeles today on a charge of robbery.

"I have no relative by that name," Hughes said. Starritt told Los Angeles police he was a nephew of the former secretary of state.

St. Louis Physician May Run for Governor

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Oct. 15—(U. P.)—Dr. James A. Stewart of St. Louis, secretary of the state board of health, is believed to have indicated that he may be a candidate for governor of Missouri following a short interview given out by him today.

"Cleveland A. Newton was the logical candidate for governor," Stewart said. "But since he has refused, I must admit that friends have urged me to make the race. I consider this a great honor and I have advised my friends I am giving it careful consideration."

OHIO CRASH FATAL.

GALLIPOLIS, O., Oct. 15—(INS)—One man was killed and another perhaps fatally injured near here today when a New York Central passenger train ran through a block in the fog and collided head-on with a freight train at Kanauga. R. O. Callahan, fireman of middleport, O., was killed instantly, and Perry Thomas, Columbus, is in a hospital here, crushed and burned. Passengers escaped without serious injury, it was reported. Both engines overturned.

WOMEN PROTEST LINDSEY DEBATE

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 15—(I. N. S.)—Objections of members of the Portland, Ore., W. C. T. U., to the debate between Rabbi Louis I. Newman of San Francisco, and Judge Ben B. Lindsey of Denver, will not affect their plans of debating the question of "companionate marriages," it was disclosed here today by Rabbi Newman.

When infromed ofthe protest, Rabbi Newman said:

"The debates between Judge Lindsey and myself are intended only to throw light on the most vexing social problem of the day. Intolerance and suppression are not the correct aproach to the new adjustment demanded by changing social standards."

STAGE SET FOR TRIAL OF FALL AND SINCLAIR

so few days before the opening of the criminal trial and the tremendous amount of publicity it got tend to unduly rejudice his case. The Fall-Sinclair lawyers could not be reached to verify this, however, and government counsel had no information.

As the government successfully charged in the civil case to recover the oil fields, so again in the criminal case will they attempt to convince a jury that Sinclair and certain associates formed a dummy oil company, he profits from which were converted into Liberty bonds and $230,500 worth of which found ther way into Fall's hands in exchange for the granting of the Teapot Dome lease to Sinclair.

The defense, on the other hand, will contend there was no connection between the two transactions and force the government to introduce evidence of a connecting link. This, admittedly, is the weak spot in the federal case, for two of the men who helped form the defunct Continental Trading Co., of Canada, James E. O'Neill and H. M. Blackmer, have stayed in Europe for the last four years to avoid testifying, and the man who delivered the bonds to Fall's son-in-law, being a Canadian has gotten the protection of the dominion courts to preven his appearance.

Pomerene and Roberts, however, jubilant over their victories in the civil cases—in every instance the civil courts held the Fall leases to be fraudulent—think they can wind up their service to the governmene by putting two of he three men indiced in the 1923 scandal in jail.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—(U. P.)—New chapters in the nation's "oil scandals" are to be written in a little courtroom here where former Secretary of the Interior Albert B. Fall and Harry F. Sinclair go on trial Monday on a charge of conspiring to defraud the government.

This case, the only criminal prosecution to result directly from the famous lease of Teapot Dome naval reserve by Fall to Sinclair's Mammoth Oil Co., is unique among the five criminal cases resulting from the 1923-24 senate oil inquiry in that it alone is said to involve new evidence.

The indictment, voted by a grand jury two and one-half years ago, charges Sinclair gave Fall and his relatives $230,500 worth of Liberty bonds. Evidence of this alleged transfer was gathered by government detectives after the oil investigation closed. Most of the evidence was given in the government's civil suit to annul the lease, which lost in Federal District court but won in the circuit court, and now is before the United States Supreme court for decision.

Trial of this case involves an almost entirely different set of facts than the similar indictment against Fall and E. L. Doheny as a result of the Elk Hills, Cal., naval oil reserve leases. Fall and Doheny were acquitted by a jury here last December. That indictment and the other cases were brought on facts brought out by the senate investigating committee.

Witnesses Missing.

The government's prosecutors, in addition to the handicap of the Fall-Doheny acquittal, also are unable to produce three witnesses said to have been associated with Sinclair in a deal which produced the profit from which Liberty bond tranaction was made.

These three are A. E. Humphreys, Denver oil man who was accidentally killed this year, and H. M. Blackmer and James E. O'Neil, both of who have been in France for the last two years. Repeated efforts have been made to get them to return to testify, and Blackmer was served with a subjoena this year, his passport later being revoked as a result of his disregard of the subpoena, but apparently all efforts have been unavailing.

Selection of a jury will start shortly after Associate Justice Frederick L. Siddons of Columbia Supreme court call's his court into session Monday morning. This will take two or three days, it is expected.

Owen J. Roberts, Philadelphia, and former Senator Atlee Pomerene, Ohio, special counsel appointed by President Coolidge to prosecute the civil and criminal oil cases, will represent the government. Sinclair's defense staff will be headed by Martin Littleton, noted corporation lawyer of New York, and George P. Hoover of Washington. Mark B. Thompson, New Mexico lawyer and ranch neighbor of Fall, will represent the former secretary.

Will be Noteable Trial.

The prominent positions of the defendants, the calling of numerous cabinet members and high officials and former officials as witnesses, and the recollections of the nation's shocks in the oil investigation period, together with the battle of wits and evidence, are expected to make this trial one of the most notable of recent history.

As far as property is concerned, recent navy investigations have shown that reports of the fabulous wealth of the "Dome" were erroneous. Originally believed to contain around 135,000,000 barrels of oil the 9,321 acre reserve in Natrona county, Wyoming, now is believed to contain not more than 35,000,000 barrels. This is a development since the lease was made to Sinclair's company by Secretary Fall and Secretary of the Navy Edwin Denby in 1922.

Fall, old western rancher and jurist, with bronzed face and long white mustachee, is in poor health from an attack of pneumonia last winter. He is 66 years old. Sinclair, noted for his aggressive oil operations in many countries for his millions made thereby, and for his great Rancocas horse racing stable, is now under a three monthss' jail sentence as a result of conviction of contempt of the senate in refusing to answer the oil committee's questions in 1923. He is free on bail pending an appeal, which will be carried to the United States Supreme court if the government wins in Circuit Court of Appeals.

Their defense is expected to center on the contention that the governmen has no legal evidence to show that the $230,500 passed from Sinclair to Fall in an effort to influence the making of the Teapot lease.

The United States Supreme court has held both the Teapot Dome and Elk Hills leases unauthorized and fraudulently illegal in civil suits to annul the obligations of the government and restore the property to he navy. The Teapot Dome decision made last Monday, cannot, however, be introduced as evidence in the criminal trial, although some of the evidence credited by the Supreme court may influence the trial judge in his rulings on admissibility of government testimony.

Sinclair's companies have spent about $5,000,000 in developing the Teapot field, and $20,000,000 more on a pipeline to carry oil from that field and other Sinclair holdings in the west to Kansas City refineries. The Sinclair companies also built an oil storage tank for fuel at the Portsmouth, N. H., naval base, under the provisions of the contract, which provided for payment for the crude oil extracted in fuel tanks and fuel oil placed in them. Four or five others to be built along the Atlantic coast, but their construction was halted by the senate investigation. The $1,000,000 completed plant has been turned over to the navy.

LINCOLN GIRL'S ESSAY IS BEST

invited to prepare and submit lesson plans for promoting safety on highways.

The best outline for a lesson on that subject by a Nebraska teacher, as decided by the state contest committee and the highway education board, is one sent in by Miss Imogene Montgomery of the city schools at Ogallala. Her them was "How can we prevent accidents?" She developed it along several different lines suitable for use by classes in reading, civics, geography, drawing, English composition, arithmetic, and history.

While no state prize is provided for by the national highway education board's regulations in the teacher competition, a national prize of $500 and a free trip to Washington will be given for the best lesson plan in the whole United States. One will be submitted from each state and the final selection will be made from these. Miss Montgomery thus has a chance to win the liberal reward above mentioned, on her pedagogical effort.

Second and third prizes in the lesson competition will be $300 and $200 in cash, respectively.

Similarly, there will be national prizes for the best essays among these found to possess the greatest merit in their respective states. The pupil winning first place will get a trip to Washington and a gold watch. Those ranking second and third will receive gold watches, but no trip.

Features of Lesson Plan.

Miss Montgomery's sketch for school lessons on the safety topic includes these divisions:

Reading—Note reports of accidents in daily papers. Select one that affords a good basis of study as to causes of the accident, when and where it occurred, how it could have been prevented, and other points.

Civics—Suggestions and discussion on what traffic laws were violated, penalties therefore provided by law, how traffic laws and regulations affect each citizen, duty of every person to respect the rights of others on highways, etc.

Geography—What main highways cross Nebraska, study of road maps, and investigation as to where most accidents take place.

Drawing—Have each pupil illustrate the accident according to his own understanding and ideas. Use attractive safety posters to impress them forcefully. Have children make up "safety rhymes" to go with pictures.

Composition—Writing imaginative stories on such subjects as "He failed to read the sign" and "Stealing rides behind cars." Let pupils make up plays developing similar themes.

Arithmetic—Problems based on official figures of road accidents and lives lost in them.

History—Trace the evolution of travel, showing increase of fatalities and litigation as more rapid methods of transportation succeeded one another.

less men and women, both black and white, in this country," the jury report added.

C. J. Thompson of the local klan, was responsible in large measure for the outrages in Crenshaw county, the grand jury charged. The floggings of the klan were similar to the Spanish inquisition, it said.

"The afafirs of the klan have even gotten out of the control of those who should control it, or else had gotten into the control of those not worthy of trust," the report read.

Attorney General McCall flatly refused to make public the names of those indicted until arrests have been made. A statewide roundup of the accused men was to be started immediately.

Protection to Coil Windings.

Place a piece of paper over the windings of coils when soldering a connection which lies directly over or near the coils. This will prevent solder or soldering paste from spattering on the windings. Many good circuits and sets are discarded just because the coils are damaged in the proceses of soldering.

Loud Speaker Conneections.

When connecting up two or more loud speakers in different parts of the house, install a switch and connect across each speaker in order that those not required may be cut out. If preferred, this switch may be replaced by a jack, which should be arranged to complete the circuit, as these speakers are in series.

Value of a Wave Trap.

By means of a wave trap, almost any receiving set, no matter what type can be made to tune out powerful signals, provided the coils of the receiver are not intercepting too much energy. If the latter is the case then the receiver should be shielded, a simple expedient being to line the inside of the cabinet with tinfoil which is then grounded.

The Best Baseboard.

When selecting a baseboard, avoid untreated, porous soft woods which will absorb moisture like a sponge Avoid use of paint which contains lead or the use of ordinary varnish or other coverings. If anything at all is mounted on baseboard, even battery wires, moisture in the wood will be a deeriment. Coating a baseboard with asphaltum paint is a very good preventative against moisture absorption.

Battery Intelligence.

Use only distilled water in storage batteries:. The chlorine placed in city water is injuries to the cells. Fill each section to the proper level using an eye dropper, hydrometer, special battery syringe, or small funnel. After filling, use an old tooth brush and a small stick covered with soft cloth to clean the tops of cells and the terminals with ammonia water. See that every part of the top of the battery is thoroughly dry.

Soldering Iron.

Sometimes it is desired to solder to a piece of iron such as a diaphragm used in a receiver. This cannot be done directly, for the solder will not take, no matter how much flux is used. If a few grains of copper sulphate are first rubbed over the clean bright metal and then the soldering flux applied, it will be found that the solder will readily adhere to the iron. Care will have to be exercised, as the copper placed on the iron by this method is at best only a thin film and comes off quite readily. Also, remember that copper sulphate is very poisonous.

For the Notebook.

Sixty feet of wire, lead-in and all should be the length of arial used for a sensitive receiver.

Hissing in a set is sometimes due to "gassy" or leaking tubes. To overcome this noisee, try changing the tubes.

One great cause of disturbances in receivers in apartment houses is the running of electric motors operating elevators.

Never permit the antenna to go through the change of seasons without giving the system a thorough inspection. Connections and insulators are bound to deteriorate.

Radiograms.

The United States Army Signal Corps operates 22 radio stations in Alaska.

There are now five chains of broadcasting stations in the United States operated by three national systems.

"Miketivity" is a new word in radio. It has been coined by station WLW for its radio vocabulary and is a noun which means "the quality with which a voice fr musical instrument registers through the microphone, or the broadcasting capacity of a voice or instrument."

Fifty-eight countries now maintain regular broadcast serevice with the United States, Canada, Cuba, Russia, Sweden, Australia, Germany, United Kingdom, Argentina and Mexico ranking first in order of number of broadcasting stations maintained and regularly operated.

Mrs. Jordan Unchanged—The condition of Mrs. Dan Jordan, who was struck by a car when she was crossing Holdrege treet at Thirty-first Thursday evening was reported as unchanged by hospital authorities Saturday night.

Wife Gets Divorce—Judge Broady has signed a divorce decree for Lolla Steele and against Harold Steele. They were married in Fairbury December 1, 1921, and have one daughter, Donna. Mrs. Steele charged non-support and extreme cruelty.

Suit Transferred — Fred Rank's $50,000 damage suit against Ora Cade was removed to Federal court from District court Saturday on motion of the defendant, who asserts that the parties are residents of different states. Rank was injured, he says, when his car was struck by one which Cade was driving.

Brick Throwers Caught—After a complaint that boys had thrown a brick into a car passing Ninth and G streets had been phoned to the police station Saturday night, Driver Masters drove to the scene of the disturbance and nabbed four boys. They were released to return Monday at 4 o'clock to see Chief of Police Johnstone.

Fire in Boy's Den—Excited theater goers notified the fire department shortly after 9 o'clock Saturday evening that smoke was coming up through the sidewalk and from the ruins of the old Victoria hotel at Fifteenth and O streets. A hurried run with considerable apparatus resulted in finding nothing but a bonfire in a boys' den underneath the sidewalk.

Educational Directory—The 1927-28 educational directory of schools in Lancaster county was published this week. It contains several innovations. Superintendent Charlotte Alexander points out. Teachers of all district schools in the county are listed, with their name, telephone number, teaching address, permanent address, grades or subjects. The enrollment of the school is shown, together with the census figures 1927 apportionment, last year's expenditures and school board. In the back of the pamphlet is information about spelling contests, national, state and county officers, and teachers' examinations.

CONDITION OF FARMERS TOLD

Steward Tells Commerce Commission 1927 Better Than Average Year.

Fails to See Agriculture Assistance in Grain Rate Increase.

Although 1927, as a crop year, has beena very fortunate one for Nebraska, C. B. Steward, secretary of the Nebraska Farm Bureau Federation, pointed out in his testimony before the interstate commerce commission at the grain rate investigation hearing in Minneapolis Friday and Saturday, that it should not be given too much consideration in estimating the normal economic condition of the farmers of this state.

Steward was called by the interstate commerce commission as a witness on agricultural economics. One such witness from each state is heard. The sum and substance of Steward's testimony tended to show that though this has been a good year, Nebraska agriculture is still in need of considerable assistance before it returns to its normal condiiton as represented in 1910. It further was intended to substantiate the contention of Nebraska that increased railroad grain rates will not supply this needed assistance.

"It is the contention of the railroads that the Nebraska farmer is sitting on top of the world," Steward said, "but 1927 should not be considered as a year typical of this state's prosperity any more than 1926 should be considered as a year typical of this state's adversity."

Nebraska Situation Presented.

Steward proceeded to give the interstate commerce commissioners a bird's-eye view of the Nebraska situation as it has ranged through the ups and downs of the period between 1910 and 1927.

He pointed out that while there has been an increase of nearly 3,500,000 acres in the land in farms, there are also approximately 3,300 more farms being operated by tenants than there were in 1910. This is not a healthy condition, in Steward.s opinion. He explained that tenants are more apt to rob the soil of its fertility than are the owners, and are less apt to make any effort to build up the fertility of the soil. The percentage of all farms operated by tenants in 1910 was 38.1 while in 1926 it was 46.4 per cent.

Although the value of all farms and buildings is nearly twice as large as it was in 1910, it has slumped nearly $200,000,000 between 1925 and 1926 or approximately $4 an acre by reason of a reduction in earning power and lessened confidence in warm lands as an investment.

Diversification Practical.

Nebraska farmers are practicing diversif.cation with promising results. Steward said that since the war the number of milch cows on Nebraska farms has increased nearly 100,000. However, the total value of these milch cows had decreased considerably according to his figures. During that period enormous gains were made in dairy and poultry products. While $25,500,000 worth of butterfat was marketed in 1921, the marketings of that product were valued at $37,549,000 in 1926. The value of eggs marketed in 1926 amounted to $2,000,000 more than in 1921. A similar increase is partly explained by the fact that heavy marketings were forced in 1926 by a shortage of feed. However, Steward's figures show an increase every year over the 1921 figures.

Another point brought out by Steward was that farm mortgages have increased more than $400,000,000 over what they were in 1920. However one encouraging feature in this part of Steward's testimony was that while the mortgages filed in 1920 were $108,290,000 in excess of those satisfied, in 1926 the excess was only $9,314,000. This comparison showed a decreased every year following 1920. Steward, however, pointed out that many heavily mortgaged farms were taken over by the holders of the mortgages without the regular foreclosure proceedings.

He told the commission that the farmer today has a smaller equity in each acre farmed by him than he had in 1910. This he blamed upon higher taxes and increased interest rates. The average of all farm lands and buildings, he said is now $56.60 per acre as compared to $46.94 in 1910, while the average mortgage indebtedness is now $15.50 as compared to $3.60 then.

The average return from the aver age farm of 208 acres, after all expenses have been paid was $846 in 1926, $912 in 1925, and $451 in 1924.

Steward was examined on the witness stand by Commissioner John Curtiss and Attorney Hugh LaMaster, representing the Nebraska commission. Curtiss said that he believed Steward's testimony probably made a better impression upon the interstate commerce commission examiners than any that has thus far been presented.

Obituary

Patricia Eshelman passed away September 29, 1927 at the age of 6 years, 1 month and 3 days. She was a member of the Grace M. E. Sunday school and also a pupil in the kindergarten of Bryant school. Patricia had many friends and little playmates.—CONTRIBUTED.

EXPENDITURE OF FUNDS ALLOWED

McMullen and Johnson Permit Institutions Overdraw Accounts.

Increase First Quarter Appropriations at Expense Later Periods.

By special permission of Governor McMullen and State Auditor Johnson, a number of the administrative agencies and institutions of the state of Nebraska and semi-public activities which it helps to support were permitted to draw more than their regular quota of funds during the first quarter of the current fiscal biennium from July 1 to September 30, inclusive, on the understanding that their expenditures will be correspondingly reduced in subsequent quarters.

Under the rule which the last legislaturc incorporated in its budget appropriation bill, every spending agency is limited to one-eighth of its total appropriation during any one quarter, unless the governor and the auditor give their personal approval to spending more than that amount.

The two officers were deluged with requests for the opening quarter of the biennium to be allowed to overrun the proportionate allotment, and in some 40 cases they gave their consent. One of these was the national guard which, owing to its annual training camp coming in August, had extraordinary expenses to meet at that time. It was allowed to pay out more than $40,000, instead of its regular quota of $21,000. For the next three quarters it will have to spend less until the excess is wiped out.

Some Get All at Oonce.

In the following instances the whole items appropriated were drawn under authority of the governor and the auditor, on account of emergency needs:

State fair board, to reimburse it for money spent in building street railway terminals at west entrance, $18,560.

Chadron state normal school to fireproof main buildings, $25,000.

For new postoffice, store and barber shop building at Grand Island soldiers' home, $3,000.

Kearney industrial school, Kearney, new boilers. $7,500.

Dependent children's home, Lincoln, to buv additional ground and house, $8,500; for repairs, $1,500.

The agricultural extension department of the state university was permitted to draw $12,500 of its whole appropriation of $92,500, while the conservation and soil survey got $5,000 in the initial quarter out of $25,000 coming to it during the 2-year period.

For repairs at the Kearney normal school, half of the $20,000 appropriation was authorized to be paid out in the first quarter.

At most of the penal and charitable institutions supervised by the board of control from two to four times the quarterly allotment was approved for the first quarter.

RESIDENCE BURNED.

(Special to the Star.

BEATRICE, Neb., Oct. 15—The two-story residence of Edward Hollingworth, Sixteenth and Grant strets, was practically destroyed by fire early Saturday entailing a property loss of nearly $3,000. The origin of the fire is unknown. Edward Holingworth recently purchased the property, and painters and decorators have been working at the house the past few days preparatory to the Hollingworth family moving into it.

PEOPLE BUYING HEAVIER AUTOS

Fewer Registrations Are Made But Fees Higher This Year.

Absence of Ford Cars From Market Has Effect On Receipts.

The purchase of larger and heavier automobiles by the people of Nebraska this year is indicated in the October report of the state bureau of automobile registration issued Saturday by Mabel G. Tracy, chief of the bureau.

This fact is indicated in an increase of $14,000 in the fees received from regisrations, while there was a reduction of about 8,000 in the number of applications received. The amount of license fee paid on each car is regulated according to weight, it requiring fewer of the larger cars to bring in the same amount of money that a larger number of the smaller cars would return.

The total number of license applications received so far this year is 396,587 as compared to 404,829 during the same months of last year. The fees received so far this year amount to $3,565,407.23 as compared to $3,514,668.67 last year.

This situation is accounted for in part by the fact that practically no new Ford cars have been sold during the summer months. Fords take the lowest fee of all cars and the fact that practically no new ones have been purchased, together with the old models that have outlived their usefullness, the number of regisrations has been reduced. The automobile market as a whole has been slightly below normal, also accounting perhaps for the failure of worn out models being replaced by new ones as rapidly as they were discarded. What cars were purchased were of the large and heavier types, partially accounting for the increase in fees.

The number of applications and the amounts of fees received from the various types of motor vehicle registrations follow:

Pleasure cars, 321,109 applications		$2,917,389.47
Trucks, 28,979 applications		514,431.00
Busses, 134 applications.		18,196.50
Motorcyles, 871 applications		3,206.00
Trailers, 1,502 applications		4,795.39
Dealers, 2,795 applications		41,905.52
Transfers, 33,556 applications		58,068.94
Lost plate, 2,038 applications		2,017.00
Lost certificates, 5,503 applications		5,397.00

HIGHWAY GROUP FAVORS RETURN PRIOR CAR TAX

Members of the highway subdivision of the chamber of commerce who attended the state highway association convention at Norfolk Friday returned Saturday elated over the program adopted for next year.

Decision of the convention that the automobile license fee in vogue prior to the 1925 session of the state leg slature be restored,, was in complete accord with the views of the Lincoln delegation, it was said. In addition to restoration of the old fee the convention declared that 50 per cent of the amount should be distributed to the counties for construction and maintenance of county roads.

An increase of one cent in the gasoline tax also was approved. This also would go to the count es for use in building and graveling laterals to connect the main highways.

The Lincoln delegation included Frank D. Eager, vice president of the chamber; August Eiche, past president; Chas. Schwarzand S. A. Sanderson, members of the board of directors; F. W. Putney, chairman of the chamber highway committee; and Dwight Bedell, assistant secretary of the chamber. Roy Cochran, B. A. George, T. J. Henley, P. E. Clements, Horace Davis, R. O. Green, Don D. Price, Geo. Rokahr, O. M. Steele and J. E. Kirkwood.

ASSESSOR FILES COUNTY TAX LIST

Change In Law Required More Work to Compile Report.

County Assessor Bell delivered his tax list Saturday to County Treasurer Albers and the latter will start next week to send out notices to the residents. The 1927 realty tax is due November 1 and delinquent May 1, 1928. Personal taxes are due November 1 and delinquent December 1.

A third more work was required, says Mr. Bell, to make out this list because of a change in law. Intangible taxes must now be listed in separate columns, because they are spent on a different basis than the tangible. A third of the intangible tax goes to the city, a third to the school district, a sixth to the county and a sixth to the state.

An assistant in Mr. Bell's office started work on this list, which is contained in seven huge volumes, the first of April. Others in the office have helped her at various times. Mr. Bell reckons the cost of the list this year at $1,288, only $6 more than last year in spite of the increased work. This is accounted for by the use of improved machinery. In 1920, when hand labor was employed entirely, the cost was $2,309.

CHOOSE TEAM TO DEBATE CAMBRIDGE

Johnson, Spellman and Baldwin With Healy Alternate Represent Nebraska.

Three debaters and an alternate who will represent the University of Nebraska against Cambridge university of England here October 31, were announced Saturday after trials late Friday afternoon.

They are Messrs. George W. Johnson, David Spellman, and Baldwin, and the alternate is George Healy.

Judges were C. L. Clark, C. E. Matson, and Rev. Ben. F. Wyland.

The Cambridge debate will be on the subject "That this House thinks that the ethics of the business world are incompatible with sound morality," with the Englishmen taking the affirmative. There will be no judges except the audience. Ballots will be given each one who attends the debate and will write the opinion on the question both before and after the speeches.

SALVATION ARMY PLANS CAMPAIGN

Drive For Funds to Be Held Oct. 31 to Nov. 10.

Workers Are Needed For Business Men's Soliciting Squads.

The Salvation Army is making preparations for its annual maintenance appeal, October 31 to November 10, in Lincoln and vicinity.

Local committees will solicit funds and it is the aim of the committees to give everyone an opportunity to contribute, George Coryell, chairman of the men's business teams, announces. He also states that many workers are needed for the drive.

A room on the street floor at 117 South Tenth street has been donated to the Salvation Army and will be used as the appeal headquarters. The telephone number is B5216.

Mrs. George S. Peach will be at the headquarters for registration of workers and will be in charge of the women's division. Furniture, printing and work of all kinds has been given that the campaign expenses may be kept as low as possible.

The accounts and reports of the Salvation Army have been examined and accepted by the advisory board and submitted to the public for support in the maintenance appeal to be made. The report follows:

FEDERATION OF ARTS TO MEET

First Western Convention of Organization Here Thanksgiving Week.

Robert Harfhe of Chicago One of Principal Speakers.

The first western convention of the American Federation of Arts will be held in Lincoln November 21, 22, and 23, during Thanksgiving week, when important speakers and art authorities from several eastern cities will be here. For many years the federation has maintained a western office at the University of Neraska. For this reason and because of the erection of the state capitol, Lincoln has een chosen for the convention.

Robert Harfhe, director of the Chicago Art Institute, one of the main convention speakers, will discuss the "Value of Scholarship in Fine Arts." Will E. Hardy of Lincoln, will lead the convention in the discussion of the new state capitol, around which a number of addresses are being planned. Miss Leila Mechlin of Washington, D. C., secretary of the federation, will discuss "A General Review of the Work of the American Federation of Arts."

The first day, November 21, will be deveoted to a discussion of "The Modern Trends in Art." Four views of futuristoc art will be represented in the day's discussions.

Prof. Holmes Smith of Washington University, St. Louis, will preside over the second day's program, consisting of a discussion of "College Work in Art." In the evening a special performance of Molnar's "Lilion" will be presented by the University Players, university dramatic organization. Governor and Mrs. McMullen will also give a reception for delegatese at the executive mansion.

Federation visitors will be entertained at informal luncheons and plans are now being made for inspections of art objects in private homes in this city. A series of important exhibitions will be held in Morrill hall on the University of Nebraska campus. Stress will be laid on the quality of western art in all the exhibitions, including important showings by western artists.

As another entertainment feature, visitors will see the New York University-Nebraska football game at Memorial stadium on the day following the convention.

BUSINESS CHANGE.

(Special to The Star.)

DESHLER, Neb., Oct. 15—An important change in Deshler business circles has been made this week. Theodore Struve, partner and manager of the store of N. J. Struve & Co., disposed of his interests to Max Rohweder, well known business man of this place. Mr. Struve will assume the management of the Deshler Wholesale Grocery Co., and Mr. Rohweder will take charge of the store.

INSURANCE MEN TO MAKE TOUR

Good Will Trip Starts From Lincoln Morning of October 24.

Thirty-Six Nebraska Towns Will Be Visited in Four Days.

Commencing October 24 a good will insurance tour will head out of Lincoln for a four-day trip through central and eastern Nebraska. Thirty-six towns in this territory will be visited by the delegation which is being sponsored by the chamber of commeree.

Relative to the tour, M. A. Hyde, chairman of the insurance subdivision of the chamber of commerce, made the following statement Saturday:

"There is no line of business which depends more upon good will than insurance. Yet little has been done in the past in a collective way t oincrease the good will feeling for the institution of insurance. Too much insurance has been content to let the good will feeling be that created for the individual agent, rather than for the institution.

"Insurance is the biggest financial institution in Nebraska. Its responsibilities involve larger financial than any other business and in addition it is stabilizing business and so making it less subject to violent financial fluctuation than it would be were there no institution of insurance. The primary purpose of this tour is to present this to the people of the state.

"These claims can easily be substantiated, yet the people do not know about them. People think of insurance in terms of individual lines, hence its magnitude is not apparent to them. But if we can get them to think of insurance as a whole first each line then will take on an increased dignity and importance by reason of its being a part of the whole.

"A good will tour demonstrates to the people the solidarity of insurance and the very associating together of men engaged in the various lines of insurance can only create an increased appreciation of the institution of insurance among the people of the state.

"The good will tour also greatly enhances the prestige and influence of Lincoln as an insurance center. People are not apt to think more of us than we think of ourselves. When we go out on a tour like this we indicate the belief that we have in Lincoln an insurance center of importance."

The itinerary for the tour follows:

BRYAN HOSPITAL LUNCHEON TOPIC

The Greater Lincoln luncheons which were a regular Monday affair at the chamber of commerce until discontinued last summer because of the heat, will be revived again Monday noon, Frank D. Eager, vice president of the chamber, said Saturday.

The purpose of the luncheons was to stimulate interest in Lincoln's affairs with a view to building a bigger and better city. Existing institutions were not only discussed but plans were proached for their advancement. Proposals for a "greater Lincoln" were also made at the luncheons and some of the largest crowds that have ever attended a noon luncheon there were the result of these meetings.

Monday noon the Bryan Memorial hospital and its relation to the future of the city will be discussed. Officers of the institution and members of the staff will be present and tell what is being done toward making the city and state a more healthy place. Among the speakers will be A. J. Weaver of Falls City; A. R. Talbot, Lincoln and Dr. E. W. Rowe.

Officers who will attend include besides Mr. Talbot, these members of the board of directors: G. E. Hager, H. P. Anderson, A. W. Miller, E. W. Miskel, E. L. Pothast, J. L. Claflin, A. J. Weaver, Rev. Walter Aitken, C. H. Roper, P. H. Smith, W. J. Kirkbride, Rev. F. F. Travis, A. O. Hinson, Samuel Beechner, and Rev. A. W. Lundeen.

The members of the hospital medical staff who will be at the luncheon are Dr. E. W. Rowe, president; and Drs. D. C. Hilton, E. B. Brooks, Ernest Angle, J. E. M. Thomson, W. C. Becker, Geo. Covey, H. A. Taylor, E. V. Wiedman, F. W. Webster, and Miles Breuer. Frank D. Eager will preside.

GREAT INCREASE IN CROP VALUES

Products Of Nebraska Fields Worth 62 Per Cent Above 1926.

More Grain is Raised and Value Greater Than Preceding Years.

The value of all field crops produced in Nebraska in 1927 is $436,153,000, according to a preliminary estimate made by F. K. Reed, assistant statistician for the state and federal division of agricultural statistician for the state and federal division of agricultural statistics. This is 62 per cent above the value for 1926, which was $269,213,000, and 48 per cent above the five year average, which is $295,166,000.

The leading crops, corn, wheat and oats, show a marked increase in both production and value. The value of the hay crop is below that of last year, due to lower unit prices, although production is much greater. All minor crops show a considerable increase in both production and value.

Following is the report:

"The value of 1927 crop production in Nebraska is the highest since 1919, in which year post war prices raised the value of agricultural production to more than $540,000,000. This year all crops grown in Nebraska, except seed crops, are above last year and above the average, and although the farm dollar is worth only 88 cents in exchange for non-agricultural commodities, prices prevailing September 15 place a value of $436,153,000 on 1927 agricultural production. This is 62 per cent above the value of all crops produced last year and 48 per cent above the value of all crops during the five year period, 1922-1926.

"Wheat production is the highest on record and is worth upwards of 85 million dollars. The corn crop is conservatively estimated at 268,709,000 bushels the highest since 1923. It is proable that when final estimates are made that the crop will be the largest in the history of the state. The corn crop is valued at 226 million dollars on the basis of September 15 prices. Oat production is estimated at nearly 68 million bushels and the crop is valued at more than 26 million dollars. All hay crops are above last year and above the average. Minor crops such as sugar beets, barley, rye, potatoes, apples, etc., have made a splendid showing this year, with both production and value above last year.

"The great bulk of Nebraska's feed crops are marketed in the form of livestock. Market receipts of hogs during 1927 are slightly below last year and prices are lower. Returns from hog production have not been as favorable as during 1926. Market receipts of cattle will fall below the 1926 total in which year many cattle were forced to market on account of feed shortage. Prices for cattle, however, are above last year and the reduction in numbers marketed will be partly offset by better prices. Sheep and lamb marketings will be slightly greater than last year. Everything considered, Nebraska agriculture is in an unusually favorable posit on this year."

Mrs. Grayson Confident Will Be First Woman To Span The Atlantic By Air

BY FRANCES WILSON GRAYSON

(Copyright 1927 by International News Service.)

OLD ORCHARD BEACH, Maine, Oct. 15—I am a child of destiny. I am about to realize the fulfillment of a dream of several years. I am to be the first woman to span the broad expanse of the Atlantic by air.

My plane the "Dawn" will awaken American women to greater efforts in aviation and will bind together closer the women of the two continents.

My heart is filled with joy. The greatest opportunity of my career it at hand.

We are ready, my plane the "Dawn," my pilot, Wilmer L. Stultz, and my navigator, Brice Goldsborough. We are all in the pink.

All we ask is the favor of good weather throughout the trip. We will not be hurried.

I am going to win. I am going to place American women in the front rank of aviation pioneering. When the "Dawn' leaves the beach here a successful venture will have begun.

Our hop to Copenhagen is the culmination of many secret desires to do big things in aviation. As I look back, I remember that for two years I wanted to fly But business made heavy demands on my time. I didn't feel I could afford the time or the money.

Points to Importance.

I realized that aviation was a coming thing of importance in world events. It was to play a large part in international relationship and as a means of international commercial transportation. That in itself was the first interest aviation held for me.

Early last spring I started to fly. I suddenly wanted to fly across the Atlantic. Several times I was at Curtis Field while preparations were being made for trans-Atlantic flights, and in my amateurish way wondered why manufacturers of planes were building land planes to fly across the Atlantic.

In my moments of serious thought I wondered if a woman couldn't successfully organize an expedition for a trans-Atlantic flight. I then looked into the airplane market for a land and water plane. I wanted one that would ride the waves if I were forced to come down at sea. In my search I found that the Sikorsky corporation was building such a plane.

I wanted to make it a woman's program exclusively. Therefore, I didn't want any but women interested in the financing, of the flight.

Backing Provided.

About that time Mrs. Aage Ancher of Copenhagen, arrived in this country from Europe. She too was interested in aviation. We discussed my ambitions and she decided I could carry out such a program. She then placed money at my disposal for the expense of fitting out the expedition.

How we have strived to make ready for the flight is really known only to us who are about to entrust our lives to the worthiness of the plane and the wisdom of our plans.

I realize full well the lateness of the season for trans-Atlantic flight. I realize also, however, that the time will come when we will be flying across the oceans the year around.

Our ship is sturdy and can ride the waves if necessary. I hold no fears for our safety in the event we are forced to come down at sea.

The weather is now favorable, I believe, though it has taken weeks of patient waiting to obtain such conditions, while others were making an effort to be the first to cross the Atlantic.

I feel sure that our flight will be successful and that a woman—an Indiana girl—can succeed in such an adventure despite the kindly warnings of many.

I feel that those who have cautioned us against going did so because they were not close enough to the picture. I believe we will succeed. I may be wrong, but at this writing I think I'm right.

That is my attitude as I am about to draw away from the shores of our wonderful United States headed for the hospitable shores of old Europe—to awaken a new dawn for American womanhood and cement the friendship of the women of the world.

WILL HOLD FLAG COURTESY MEETING

Veterans of Foreign Wars Sponsors Campaign of Instruction Prior to Armistice Day.

Plans are in the making by former ex-service men to instruct the people of Lincoln in proper courtesy to the flag.

To this end a meeting of representatives of all patriotic organizations has been called for Monday evening at the American legion club rooms, at 8 o'clock. Invitations to attend the meeting were sent to the different societies Friday by F. L. Fassett, commander of Charles A. Fraley post, Veterans of Foreign Wars.

Tentative plans for the flag courtesy meeting include a mass gathering at a place to be selected, prior to Armistice day. The program contemplated will last about two hours and will consist of numbers by some of Lincoln's best amateurs and professionals, and perhaps a number by a troup of professionals from outside the city. There will be vocal and instrumental numbers, readings and orchestral numbers, according to tentative arrangements.

At the meeting Monday night the committees that will have charge of arrangements will be named.

Before sending ou this invitations Mr. Fassett conferred with Milton Barratt, commander of Lincoln post No. 3 of the American Legion, who endorsed the proposal and at once named his representative to the conference.

These organizations have been asked to have a representative at the meeting:
St. Leger Cowley chapter, D. A. R.
Deborah Avery chapter, D. A. R.
Sons of Union Veterans auxiliary.
Ladies of the G. A. R.
Sons of '61.
Daughters of Union Veterans.
Sons of American Revolution.
Appomatox post, W. R. C.
Grand Army of the Republic.
United Spanish War Veterans.
United Spanish War Veterans auxiliary.
Farragut post, W. R. C.
Woman's Overseas Service league.
Sons of Union Veterans.
American Legion.
American Legion auxiliary.
Richard L. Harris post, V. F. W.
Francis Lorraine auxiliary, V. F. W.
Charles A. Farley post, V. F. W. auxiliary.

CHIEF TO ASSIGN VETS AS WATCHMEN

The end of this week should see Police Chief Johnstone ready to assign territory in residential districts to ex-servicemen who want to establish special police services at night during the coming winter, Commissioner Bair said Saturday.

Chief Johnstone has been busy for several days, laying out the territory, and will soon be ready to receive applications.

Decision to re-establish the patrol was made as the result of representations by officers of Charles A. Fraley post, Veterans of Foreign wars, who with Commander Barrett of Lincoln post No. 3, and S. A. Nelson, commander of Richard L. Harris post, V. F. W. will recommend the former service men to the police department head.

None but men out of employment during the cold weather will be considered by the police department, Mr. Bair has asserted. They will be sworn in as members of the force and will be under the same regulations and restrictions as the uniformed force.

GETTING SPUDS OUT OF GROUND

Potato Growers of Northwest Nebraska Working Diligently.

Enormous Crops of Certified Seed Raised on Some Land.

(Special to The Star.)

ALLIANCE, Neb., Oct. 15—Farmers of Northwestern Nebraska who engage extensively in potato raising are welcoming the fair weather and at the same time working deligently to get their bumper crop of potatoes out of the fields and into their enormous cellars before a hard freeze occurs to damage the spuds. These potato growers keenly remember the hard freeze that came on September 28 of last year and wiped out 30 per cent of the crop.

The farmers feel that they have been very fortunate this season in that there has been no hard freeze so far, though there have been some light frosts of minor consequence. These frosts caused no damage to the spud crop.

Labor for potato picking is scarce in this vicinity and everyone who is willing to work is busy picking the spuds. Potatoes are easier to pick this year than in previous years, because the fields are cleaner and the potatoes are more uniform.

In the dry land area of Box Butte and Dawes counties the potatoes are excellent. They are very large and almost free from disease of any sort. They will average 150 bushels to the acre and in some fields they will go even higher. Fields of the high grade seed spud stock are reaching exceptionally good yields. Seventeen acres of certified seed spuds yielded 304 bushel to the acre on a farm in Dawes county owned by H. B. Coffee of Chadron and farmed by the Walters brothers. Only one per cent of those potatoes contained disease, an inspection test disclosed. Mr. Coffee has contracted to sell his entire crop at $3.50 a hundred pounds, giving him $608 per acre on this crop of certified seed.

Potatoes in the North Platte valley are not faring as well as the spud crop of the dry land areas of Box Butte and Dawes counties. In the irrigated sections of the valley blight has reduced the size of the potatoes. This blight was caused by frequent rains and lack of sunshine, according to agricultural experts. Quality of the valley stock is fair and the total tonnage will probably be reduced one-fourth.

CELEBRATION BY OHIOWA CHURCH

Three Anniversaries Are Observed at Once By Congregation.

(Special to The Star.)

OHIOWA, Neb., Oct. 15—Sunday, October 9, was a day of celebration for the members of Rev. G. Klatt's church here. That day marked the twentieth anniversary of Rev. Klatt as a pastor and the fortieth anniversary of the founding of the church. It also marked the fourteenth anniversary of Rev. Klatt's ministry with this church.

It was said that few ministers of the faith have served more years than has Rev. Klatt. Not since he was ordained has he been off this territory. His first charge was at Stamford, Neb., where his diligent work made for him a reputation as one of the leading ministers of this district.

Speakers at the celebration were Rev. H. artin, president of Midland college, Fremont; Rev. Edward H. Kreutz, Lincoln, and Rev. O. Klatt, Ponca.

Music, including a number of the anthems, enhanced the beauty of the anniversary services. Lunch and dinner were served in the large basement of the church by the ladies of the congregation.

WYMORE TO HAVE CHEESE FACTORY

Quarters Are Secured and Machinery Ordered For the New Enterprise.

(Special to The Star.)

WYMORE, Neb., Oct. 15—The new cheese factory planned for Wymore will be located in the annex at the rear of the Louis Burkhalter factory in the business section of Wymore. The building is west of the alley and connected with the main Burkhalter building by a roof and cement paving, and has been used by the Burkhalter company as a flour storage and bakery. Mr. Burkhalter will move his bakery to rooms fitted up on the second floor of his main building, where electric ovens and equipment have been placed.

Machinery for the cheese factory has already been ordered and the industry is approved by the Wymore community club, a membership of business men and prominent farmers of this vicinity, and there is enough dairying in this vicinity to supply the factory with supplies to manufacture a good amount of cheese and by-products.

State Committee Inspects Chadron Teachers College

(Special to The Star.)

CHADRON, Neb., Oct. 15—The committee appointed by Superintendent Taylor for the inspection of state teacher's colleges was on the Chadron campus Wednesday visiting departments that have to do with the training of teachers. The chairman of the committee, Dean McProud of Wesleyan university, addressed the faculty on Tuesday evening in Dr. Harrington's lecture room, after which Miss Delzell of the home economics department, assisted by Dean Work, Miss Osthoff, Miss Ford, Mrs. Bostder, and Mrs. Philpott, served refreshments at an informal reception held in the corridor adjoining the department rooms.

Dean McProud discussed the practice of teaching in secondary education and advocated teaching by unit the plan of Dr. Morrison of the University of Chicago. Dean McProud advocates unti teaching for colleges also. He urged department teachers to have very definite objectives both for the department itself and the courses within it. The problems of technique, he said, are unique and demand the earnest effort and consideration of the best minds in the profession. Director A. A. Reed of the state university, also a member of the committee, reported a twenty-unit course at the university which can be completed by the better type of student in three years.

At the regular assembly Wednesday morning Director Reed discussed the marked increase in attendance in high schools and colleges since 1891. Eighteen high schools, with but 100 pupils in that year, have increased to five hundred public high schools in 1927 with 56,000 pupils in attendance. Thih is a gain of 2,600 per cent during a period wherein the population of the state has increased but twenty-five per cent.

PAWNEE CITY TO ENTERTAIN SELF

Choral Society and Dramatic Club To Be Organized.

Success Attained By the Junior Band Prompts Movement.

(Special to The Star.)

PAWNEE CITY, Neb., Oct. 15—After almost literally conjuring into being, with discussions over the coffee cups of its noon day luncheons, a band of Pawnee City boys and girls that in a little more than a year won second place among the state's junior musicians, the Pawnee City Public Service club is now backing two additional musical activities committees that are planned to result in a short time in a well organized choral society and a dramatic club. The first meeting of the local people who desire to join either group has been set for Wednesday evening at the opera house.

Encouraged by the success of the junior band, that started with boys and girls, some scarcely eight years old, who were unable to play instruments or read music, Dr. W. R. Boyer, chairman of the music committee, believes that within a few months the new groups undertaken will be furnishing Pawnee City regular entertainments of cantatas, oratorios and operas, together with alternating plays.

Both new ventures are being undertaken as community enterprises, without cost to participants, and will be self supporting through admission charge to the entertainments. Expert instruction is planned for both the chorus and dramatic groups, similar to the regular lessons given the junior band. O. F. Shannon, councilman, has been named by Dr. Boyer to head the dramatic section, and Olin Turner has been given charge of the committee managing the chorus.

Mrs. W. S. Potts, former instructor of music in the public schools, will start the instruction of volunteers for the chorus at the Wednesday night meeting. The first half hour will be devoted to note reading, study of scales—in short the very rudiments of music. The remaining period will be given over to chorus singing by all from the Nebraska federated club's approved song book.

MORRILL COUNTY FAIR A SUCCESS

(Special to The Star)

BRIDGEPORT, Neb., Oct. 15 — Morrill county's 1927 fair proved a financial and educational success and the directors are already planning for next year's exhibition. The attendance was the largest known in years and the receipts from other sources more than paid the expenses of the show. The dance pavilion alone returned a profit of more than $100 a night for the three nights of the fair.

Schoolmates of 40 Years Ago Hold Reunion.

The four men in the above group, from left to right, are: E. D. Campbell of Omaha, Dr. W. N. Ramsey of Lincoln, L. C. Beasley of Erickson, Neb., and Dr. D. D. Ashley of New York. Forty years ago these four men, then farmer boys residing near Syracuse, Neb., left their home to attend the Peru state normal school, and they have been holding a reunion the past week, visiting at Peru and the homes of some of their number.

Thursday was spent at the home of Dr. W. N. Ramey, in Lincoln. In the afternoon the party drove to Peru where the men participated in the annual homecoming festivities, and in the fortieth anniversary of the introduction of football at the school. Dr. Ashley was captain of the first football team at Peru normal. He spoke at a special convocation Friday morning. All of the men spoke at a gathering of the Peru Literary society Thursday evening. During their days at Peru the four men "batched" together.

Sunday the four comrades will be the guests of E. D. Campbell at his home in Omaha.

STOCK FEEDING BREAKS RECORD

Great Numbers of Cattle and Sheep Going Into West Nebraska.

(Special to The Star.)

ALLIANCE, Neb., Oct. 15—Feeding operations are breaking all records in western Nebraska this season. More stock will be fed this year than ever before, according to present indications. This is true in a great measure of the upper end of the North Platte valley, where many carloads of sheep and cattle have already been received by farmers for feeding S. R. Sweet, farmer of near Bridgeport, has started a movement to that vicinity by receiving two carloads of sheep, which he is going to feed. Several farmers of that vicinity have received cattle to be finished for the eastern and Denver markets.

Beet tops will be available in the valley, and many beet growers have reported the sale of the tops to feeders who want them hauled a short distance, as well as to the feeders who will use them up on the farms where the beets are harvested. Feed racks for stockmen are being constructed at several points and this also serves to indicate the heaviest inflow of feeders just ahead that the valley has ever known.

The range of stuff has also shown a wide variety, some of the shipments arriving early containing some of the best feeder stock ever brought into the North Platte valley of the panhandle section of this statee.

Grass on the ranges is in excellent condition. Except for a severe freeze the stock can be held for several weeks on good pasture, as the grass is well cured. There is an abundant hay crop in the lowlands of the range country and there is more hay stacked in the grazing sections than in any year of the past.

Commercial Club At David City is Making Progress

(Special to The Star.)

DAVID CITY, Neb., Oct. 15—The annual report of the David City commercial club was given at the weekly dinner Wednesday. Hugo A. Hahn, secretary of the club, gave a detailed financial statement, showing a balance on hand in the general fund of $3,223.14, a balance in the budget fund of $1,232.18, making a total balance of $4,513.32. When the club was organized there were 75 charter members. Today there is 1055 members in the city and 66 associte members outside of the city. Officers elected for the ensuing year are as follows: H. G. Schaaf, president; V. Dolpher, vice president; C. O. Crosthwaite, treasurer; Hugo A. Hahn, secretary; Clyde Jones, financial secretary.

HUSKING CONTEST FOR GAGE COUNTY

(Special to The Star.)

BATRICE, Neb., Oct. 15 — The merchants division of the Beatrice chamber of commerce will hold a meeting Monday evening to make final arrangements for the Gage county corn husking contest. The farmers who are sponsoring the contest will attend the meeting. Twenty counties in the state have already made arrangements for husking contests. The winners in the county events will compete in a state meet to be held later in the fall.

New Building For Creamery People

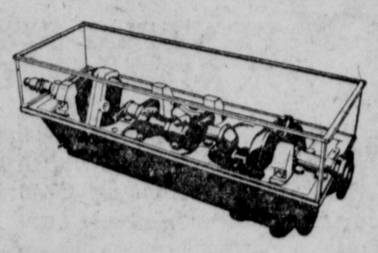
Only Buick has an engine Vibrationless beyond belief



Ask any Motor Car Dealer to Duplicate this Test

—now being staged in many Buick showrooms throughout the country.

A stock Buick crankshaft, lying loose in the crankcase, and driven by an electric motor, is operated at high speed right before your eyes—and there is visible only smooth, velvety operation. Not a single tremor—not the slightest trace of vibration.

BUICK'S remarkable freedom from vibration is due primarily to three vitally important factors. First—the inherent smoothness of the Buick Valve-in-Head six-cylinder engine. Second—rubber engine mountings, front and rear. And third—the scientific and almost perfect balance of the entire Buick crankshaft assembly.

These factors, in turn, have been made possible by Buick principles of design; Buick facilities of research and experiment; and Buick's unrivaled experience in the manufacture of two million quality motor cars.

Only Buick enjoys these advantages. And only Buick provides the silken performance—the unvarying smoothness at all speeds—the longer life and greater serviceability of an engine vibrationless beyond belief.

Nebraska Steps High In Trampling On Pioneers

Husker Gridsters In Decisive Win

Nebraska's Scarlet-Jerseyed Team Reels Off 58-0 Victory Over Pioneers From Grinnell.

BY "CY" SHERMAN.

Smarting from the sting of an unexpected 7-6 drubbing in their conflict with Missouri the previous week, the Cornhuskers took revenge on the Grinnell Pioneers yesterday at the Nebraska stadium, the Huskers' scoring machine rolling on and over the Iowans in the compilation of 58 to 0 triumph.

The Pioneers lacked nothing in pluck and fighting spirit, but they were outsized by a wide margin and as completely outclassed in the art of smashing the line, running around the ends and piling up touchdowns.

Presnell Dazzling Plunger.

Halfback Glen Presnell, whose ground-gaining dashes made him the central figure in Nebraska's losing fray at Missouri, gave a dazzling exhibition of sprinting over the chalk lines. On four occasions, Presnell hurtled across the Grinnell goal and entered in the record an equal number of touchdowns to the Cornhuskers' credit. Halfback Bud McBride lugged the ball on three touchdown scoring plays, while Halfback Blue Howell and Halfback Dutch Witte each contributed a singel marker to Nebraska's total of nine touchdowns.

Nebraska Shows Its Power.

The statistics tell in graphic fashion the story of the Cornhuskers' advantage in plunge and power. The Nebraska offensive accounted for 575 yards on drives at the line or runs around the ends and a net total, including forward pass plays, of 674 yards. Grinnell's net total, including 53 yards via the aerial route, was 90 yards.

Pioneers Pull Old Trick.

Coach Bearg of Nebraska elected to pit his reserves against the Pioneers at the kickoff and the Grinnellians held the Huskers scoreless during the opening period. The Iowans, in fact, successfully worked that venerable football wheeze in which an end or back hides out near the sideline, then taking a forward pass. The trick worked for a 35-yard gain, Evahn flipping the ball to Quarterback McIntire, who scooted to Nebraska's 30-yard line.

Turned Back at Goal.

Another eight-yard pass and a 15-yard penalty against Nebraska gave the Pioneers an opportunity to knock at the touchdown door, but a line plunge was turned back by the Husker forwards and a five-yard penalty balked the Pioneers when every inch counted. A final pass play was grounded back of the Nebraska goal and not once thereafter were the Iowans within hailing distance of scoring.

Regulars Do Their Stuff.

The Cornhuskers quickly punted out of the danger one. Coach Bearg then interjected his first-string regulars and the parade was on. Presnell swung around Grinnell's left end on a scintillating run of 37 yards and Howell followed with two pile-driving plunges at the line that netted 10 yards. The ball was a scant foot from the Pioneers' goal when the pistol shot terminated the first quarter and Presnell, taking the ball on the first play of the second period, shot through center on the first scoring play of the day.

Attack In High Gear.

The Nebraska offense was charging ahead in high gear and rolled on to two additional touchdowns, both by Presnell, before the intermission for the half halted the Husker attack.

The third period added four touchdowns to Nebraska's scoring harvest, Presnell and Howell each speeding over the Grinnell goal, while Witte and McBride, after breaking into the Husker backfield, also crossed the final chalk mark and contributed to the Pioneers' rout.

Reserves Carry On.

Coach Bearg sent his regulars to the sidelines early in the fourth period and the reserves carried on to the extent of a final pair of touchdowns in which McBride lugged the oval on the scoring drives.

The Nebraska offense was functioning perfectly, the Grinnellians steadily giving ground on a mixture of plunges, end sprints and successful passes which enabled the Huskers to take the ball from kickoff and parade down the gridiron to the Pioneers' goal.

Slim Crowd Present.

The Nebraska management booked the Grinnellians as a "breather" affair and the followers of the pigskin sport in the Corn-

YALE GETS BACK AT BROWN TEAM

Eli, In 19 to 0 Victory, Takes Revenge For 1926 Defeat.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Oct. 15—(INS)—Yale's Bulldogs gained sweet retribution today against their Brown rivals, smashing their way through to an impressive 19 to 0 victory. Bruce Caldwell was in the main responsible. He slashed his way through the line for consistent gains, hurled precise forward passes to Scott and otherwise made his presence felt.

The Elis' first score was made in the closing minutes of the second period, when Caldwell crawled his way from the Brown 21-yard line to score. Cox missed the goal.

In the fourth period a steady march from the Yale 22-yard line ended with Caldwell's 26-yard dash for the second score. Caldwell himself tried a drop-kick goal after this touchdown, but missed.

Slightly injured, Caldwell was taken from the game and Hammersley given the role of smashing the line for another and final touchdown. He also kicked the goal.

Brown ventured well into Yale territory for a possible score, but a fumble robbed it of that chance.

DOPE UPSET BY ORANGE ELEVEN

Syracuse Puts Over Big Surprise By Defeat Of Georgetown.

New York Team Takes to Air and Passes Its Way to Victory.

BY L. J. SKIDDY.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Oct. 15—Raining forward passes and springing the unexpected at every turn, Syracuse's Orange jerseyed gridiron combination, led by the fiery Ray Barbuti, provided one of the biggest upsets of the season here this afternoon when it defeated the Georgetown Goliaths by a score of 19 to 6.

The Washington steam-roller, which had romped home with 176 points and easy victories in its first three games, was taken completely by surprise as Syracuse carried the fight to the visitors from the first moment of play, tossing discretion to the wind and beginning a forward pass attack immediately after receiving the kickoff.

Goldman Goes Over.

Within four minutes of play, Syracuse worked its way down field in possition for a try at field goal. This was foiled, but the Orange team quickly regained possession of the ball and a series of forward passes by Baysinger to Goldman, Lewis and Barbuti put the Orange deep into Georgetown territory again and Goldman finally took a pass from the lanky quarterback and trotted over the goal line for a touchdown. Brophy kicked the goal point, the only successful kick for the day.

Orange Repeats.

In the second period, Syracuse again forward passed its way to the Georgetown doorstep. A penalty on the Georgetown team, which ruled a pass complete because of interference, aided in the Syracuse advance. Goldman slipped across the line for a second touchdown after a simple double pass play in the backfield.

Late in the third period, Georgetown came back with a rally end, penetrating Orange territory with an intercepted pass, pierced its way deep into Orange territory and finally Nork broke through the line for a touchdown.

Georgetown Rallies.

With the count 13 to 6, Georgetown put on a drive that netted four first downs in succession and went down to the Syracuse 25-yard line, where the Orange held. Baysinger punted and when Georgetown tried the air, Baysinger bobbed up with the interception of a pass. His next punt backed Georgetown to its own 10-yard line. On two line plays,

OKLAHOMA HELD BY CREIGHTON U.

Sooners Forced Take Tie Dose In Grid Joust At Norman.

NORMAN, Okla., Oct., 15. —(UP)—Oklahoma university, the team that two weeks ago conquered Chicago university, today barely saved itself from defeat at the hands of Creighton university. The score was Oklahoma 13; Creighton 13.

The Sooners marched down the field for seven points in the first quarter. In the second, after Beha had made 17 yards around an end, Creighton made a touchdown and tied the score.

At the half, the regular backfield was put in by the Sooners, but even this failed to stop the Creightonites and they made six more points in this period.

In the last quarter, after a pass, Haskins to Brown, for 15 yards Haskins went around end for a touchdown. His kick for goal veered to the side of the goal posts.

The game ended with both teams using all their strategy and power to break the tied score. Creighton was in possession of the ball on its own 19-yard line.

The weather was warm and clear and a crowd of 7,000 saw the game

KANSAS BOWS TO BACHMAN OUTFIT

Jayhawk Feathers Fly As Aggies Romp To Two Touchdowns.

LAWRENCE, Kas., Oct. 15—(U.P.)—The University of Kansas football eleven discovered this afternoon that Holsinger was too hard hitting and Springer too fast for the Jayhawkers to win the clash with the Kansas Aggies and fell, 13 to 2, before the team from Manhattan.

The Jayhawkers' lone score came from a safety early in the game when the Aggies attempted to kick the ball from behind their own goal line after the university team had failed by inches to score a touchdown.

The Aggies first score came late in the second quarter when, after a 15-yard run from the Kansas 40-yard line by Springer, Holsinger crashed around left end, running over Kansas tacklers to cross the goal line. The kick for point failed.

Springer Goes Over.

The Aggies' second counter came early in the third perfiod when Springer grabbed the ball and raced 35 yards to cross the oal line. Householder kicked point to make the score 13 for the Aggies against two for Kansas.

In the final period, Coach Cappon sent in Schmidt and Ash, backfield reserves, who opened up with a belated passing attack which failed to bring home a score.

Holsinger and Springer stood out on the Manhattan team, whie the stars on the Kansas eleven were Cooper and Olson.

PANTHERS CLAW DRAKE BULLDOG

DESMOINES, Oct. 15—(I. N. S.)—The dogged Drake Bulldogss today found the slashing Pittsburgh Panthers too tough and succumbed to the eastern invasion, 32 to 0. Except for the second period, when Drake rallied, Pittsburgh had matters all its own way.

The Panthers started with a rush, scoring two touchdowns in the first quarter. One came on an 80-yard sprint by Hagan. Another touchdown was added in the third period and two more in the closing quarter.

MEEHAN'S TEAM STILL IN STRIDE

New York Uni. Tramples On Rival, Fordham; Wins, 32 to 0.

Violet Eleven Attacks Brilliantly; Counts 5 Touchdowns.

BY LEONARD COHEN.

YANKEE STADIUM, N. Y., Oct. 15—New York unviersity continued on its way to victory here today and while 43,500 fans, a record crowd for a battle involving metropolitan rivals cheered the elevens, ran wild to a 32-0 triumph over its time honored foe, Fordham university. Five touchdowns and two kicks for the extra point represented the Violet's total.

There never was any doubt as to the Meehan's men's supremacy. Scoring early in the first period, adding another touchdown in the same period, a third in the second quarter and two more in the final period, N. Y. U. held the upper hand throughout.

Fordham Passes Fizzle.

Fordham tried a veritable rainstorm of forward passes, but the Maroon was consistently unsuccessful in its aerial offensive. On the other hand, N. Y. U. scored twice on aerial touchdowns, Connor

SOONER FARMERS WIN TIGHT GAME

Stillwater Aggies Turn Back Marquette By 8-0 Margin.

STILLWATER, Okla., Oct. 15—(U. P.)—In a game marked by numerous fumbles, Oklahoma A. & M. college here today defeated Marquette university, 8 to 0.

The first Aggie score came from a safety in the second quarter when O'Leary was forced to punt from behind his own goal posts and the center passed the ball over his head.

In the fourth quarter, the Aggies scored again when McCoy, Aggie halfback, intercepted a Marquette pass and carried it to the four-yard line. Bowman advanced three yards and Whittenberg went over for the touchdown.

Marquette threatened to score in the last quarter and drove the ball to the two yard line, where Aggies staged a stonewall defense. A place kick went wide of the posts.

There were numerous penalities and Marquette made three fumbles and the Aggies six. Six first downs were made by the Aggies and five by Marquette.

Lincoln Sophs Tie Havelock Seconds

Gridiron heroes of coming years were in action at Ballard field Friday afternoon during the intermission of the Havelock-Cathedral high game and following it when the Havelock reserves and Lincoln high sophomores battled to a scoreless tie.

The red and black representatives from Lincoln threatened to cross the goal several times, but the young Boilermakers always managed to tighten up enough to save themselves when in danger. Henderson starred for Coach Martin's Havelock team.

When Robertson of Lincoln trotted on the field he was the fourth bearer of his name to play in the moleskins during the afternoon. A pair of Robertsons substituted for Havelock against Cathedral and one was sent in for Cathedral.

ERNIE FRANK TO COACH G. I. TEAM

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., Oct. 15—Ernest Frank, former University of Nebraska football star, has taken over the coaching of football at Grand Island college. Coach Uhls will continue to serve as athletic director at the Baptist institution.

Speed-Ball King Steps Out of American League

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—(I. N. S.)—Walter Johnson, the famous American league speedball king, today asked the Washington baseball club for his unconditional release.

Johnson announced that he now wished to be free to invest his money and services in some baseball club.

President Clark Griffith of the local club declared that Johnson's wishes would be respected.

Waivers will be asked on Johnson and no objections are expected to be interposed because of the pitchers' valuable services to baseball for 20 years.

Persistent reports have been in circulation that Jonnson would take over the management of the Baltimore baseball club of the International league and the Washington club would join him in the purchase. These rumors have been denied both here and in Baltimore.

Crete Clash Next On Lincoln Slate

Runner-Up In 1926 State High Race Tackles Red and Black Saturday On Capital City Gridiron.

BY GREGG McBRIDE.

Crete high school, runner-up to Gothenburg in the race for the mythical state high school football title last fall, is the hurdle facing the undefeated Lincoln high football machine this week. The Crete-Lincoln game, booked for next Saturday on the Lincoln high gridiron, head-lines the high school card for the weekend.

Crete looms as a big threat to Coach W. H. Browne's Lincoln team, the Saline county aggregation being an all-veteran combination and "pointing" for the Lincoln game since the moleskins were salted away last fall.

Another outstanding game on the week's card is the Omaha invasion of Kansas City Central, the Kaysee eleven, being booked to tackle Omaha Tech.

MIDDIES SUNK BY ROCKNE ELEVEN

Irish Team Blows Holes In Navy Outfit; Wins By 19-6 Count.

BALTIMORE, Md., Oct. 15—Notre Dame ably demonstrated her superiority and brand of middle-western football today by crushing a fighting Navy team, 19 to 6, in the first big intersectional clash of the 1927 season.

In every department of play, Knute Rockne's Irish were better than the Middies, who took their first beating in two seasons at the hands of what looks very much like a championship eleven.

Young Christy Flanagan, Notre Dame's star back, ran wild against the Navy team, gaining a total of 116 yards in the eight times that he carried the ball. Two of "Texas Christy's" dashes turned the tide definitely in Notre Dame's favor early in the second half, after the Middies had surprised 50,000 spectators by leading by the margin of a touchdown at half-time.

Neimic Also Irish Star.

There was another Notre Dame hero, too, Johnny Neimic, who ripped up the Navy line and skirted the Navy backfield, scoring the final touchdown.

The inside story of the Irish triumph was superiority of the line. Against the seasoned, driving forwards of Notre Dame, the Navy line made a sorry showing.

Knute Rockne pulled his favorite stunt of starting his second team, and the Navy rushed down the field for a touchdown at the very start. Immediately, Rockne's regulars estered the game.

Spring Navy Hero.

The Navy had its hero today, as well as Notre Dame. His name was Art Spring, a second classman at Annapolis. Up to the moment in the final period when he was carried from the field, this youngster from Tacoma, Wash., was the star of the Navy attack and was a major portion of its defense.

The Middies scored in the opening

SET DATES FOR STATE "Y" CARD

Volleyball, Gymnastics and Handball Tourneys To Be Held Here.

Dates for state tournaments on the Nebraska Y. M. C. A. program were set at a meeting of Association physical directors and committeemen held at the Lincoln Y. M. C. A. Saturday.

The dates announced for the 1928 schedule:

Jan. 21—Junior and senior swimming at Omaha.

Feb. 23—Volleyball at Lincoln.

March 16-7—Basketball at Fremont.

March 30 — Junior and senior gymnastics at Lincoln.

April 7 —Handball at Lincoln.

A pair of telegraphic meets will also be promoted by the state association. The senior hexathlon is booked for February and the junior event for March. The date for the open swimming championships will be announced later.

Directors Present.

Physical directors in attendance at the meeting were O. B. Anderson and Cliff Cunningham, Lincoln; Robert Waterhouse Fremont; Charles Plath and Newman, Beatrice; Frank Adkins, Omaha; Wintersteen, Columbus; John W. Fuhrer of the national council. Committeemen present were: H. A. Wendling and Dr. G. A. Grubb, Lincoln; Charles Musselman, state secretary; Clifford Dahl, Fremont; M. A. Boettcher, Columbus.

H. A. Wendling of Lincoln was re-elected chairman of the state organization. M. A. Boettcher of Columbus was chosen vice-president; O. B. Anderson, Lincoln, secretary; Clifford Dahl, Fremont, treasurer.

IOWA STATERS IN TIE WITH ILLINI

Valley Conference Team Even Up In Clash At Urbana.

URBANA, Ill., Oct. 15—(INS)—Iowa State's eleven of Ames, Ia., held Illinois eleven to a tie this afternoon. The score was 12 to 12.

The Illinois line was too strong and Lindblom of Iowa alone was responsible for most of Ames' gain.

Iowa scored right at the start of the game, but Illinois scored two touchdowns in the second quarter and looked like the winner until the Iowans came back in the third quarter and tied it up.

Zuppke's team made a desperate fight in the last quarter and was close to the Iowa goal line twice. Once a fumble spoiled a chance and the next time Iowa held. The teams were as evenly matched as the score shows.

BADGERS VICTIMS WOLVERINE JINX

Michigan Outdowned But Wins Annual Clash From Rival.

MADISON, Wis., Oct. 15—(I. N. S.)—Once again Michigan's ancient "jinx" over Wisconsin reigned supreme today as a well-geared, high-powered Wolverine machine added one more year to the 28 that have elapsed since the last Badger victory, by running up a 14 to 0 triumph.

For three-quarters the Cardinal-clad huskies battled like the fighting creatures for which they are named. A bad "break" gave the Wolverines their first score in the second period, but aside from that the teams were almost on even terms so far as playing was concerned.

The final period, though, was a different story. Wisconsin was tired and broken, and when a trick play, tried in desperation, went wrong, it was a simple matter for the Wolverines to put across the final and clinching tally.

So far as statistics go, Wisconsin made nine first downs to four for Michigan.

Gilbert of Michigan probably was the outstanding figure of the day. His passing was good, while his kicking gained far more ground for Michigan than did actual playing in the line.

Wildcats Down Buckeyes.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 15—I. N. S.)—A mighty Northwestern university football team came back after a nervous start to crush a game Ohio State team, 19 to 13, here toda" It was the first "Big Ten" game for the Wildcats and the first victory ever recorded by an Evanston team over the Buckeyes.

The otherwise strong and veteran Ohio line was powerless before the mighty thrusts of the giant battering ram, Leland Lewis.

HUSKER GRIDSTERS IN DECISIVE WIN

husker realm were conspicuously absent, as the crowd was estimated at a scant 8,000.

It was anticipated that the Pioneers would not have the punch to give the Huskers a worthy argument, although they held the Kansas Jayhawkers to a 19-0 count in the opening encounter of the Missouri Valley conference campaign, and forecasts that the Iowans would be flattened with ease lacked nothing in verification.

Tenth Touchdown Annulled.

The Huskers, as a matter of fact, had the edge by a margin more decisive than is indicated by the point total. A tenth touchdown, after a brilliant run by Witte, was disallowed when the gain was annulled and the ball called back for infliction of a penalty against Nebraska.

The Huskers were within 15 yards of the Pioneers' goal and charging to a touchdown when the first half terminated and were only two yards away from another scoring play when the final pistol sounded the end of the game.

Syracuse Comes Next.

The Cornhuskers emerged without a serious injury and will have an open date this week end and a two weeks' period in which to prepare for the intersectional clash with Syracuse, booked for Saturday, Oct. 29, on Nebraska sod. Syracuse humbled Georgetown yesterday, achieving a brilliant victory, and the tough job which confronts the Huskers is made to measure for a stand-jamming attendance at the Nebraska stadium.

CORNELL UPSETS MICHIGAN AGGIES

EAST LANSING, Mich., Oct. 15—(UP)—Deceptively mixing a running attack with the most brilliant passing seen here in some time, Cornell college of Iowa today staged an upset victory over Michigan State college 19 to 13.

Crabtree, speedy Iowa back, completely demoralized the Michigan defense in the first quarter when he tossed the pigskin like a baseball into the outstretched arms of his ends. Two touchdowns were scored thus in the first quarter, one on a pass to Cook, who took the ball 24 yards for a score, and another to the same man came from the 15-yard line.

Michigan State came back strong in the closing quarters, but a series of line plays from midfield gave Cornell another touchdown and the game in the final quarter.

MYSTERY FIRE AT DOG RACE TRACK

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 15—(U. P.)—Police investigation of the third fire in a few weeks at the North Kansas City greyhound race tracks failed to yield a clue in the mysterious case.

While armed guards patrolled the tracks last night, a bomb was exploded which ripped away part of the fence and early today a fire started myteriously in a waste can. For a time, the entire plant was threatened.

Meanwhile authorities at the tracks could assign no blame for the fires and even admitted that all the fires might have been accidental.

Plans to Halt Races.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo., Oct. 15—(U. P.)—North T. Gentry, attorney general of Missouri, told the United Press today he knew of no manner in which the state could take action in the apparent effort made in Kansas city to burn the dog racing track.

The attorney general indicated that he was investigating the cases at Kansas City and St. Louis, and that if he could find no legal means of stopping the races as nuisances, he would do so if the depradations continued.

HARVARD FIGHTS TO BEAT HOLY CROSS

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Oct. 15—A fighting Harvard team, playing in marked contrast to its listless performance against Purdue a week ago defeated Holy Cross, 14 to 6, today.

Harvard scored the first touchdown in the first period when a series of rushes and a Crosby forward pass put the oval within easy scoring distance.

Holy Cross almost tied the score in the second period when a wonderful 40-yard pass, Ryan to Drais, put the ball on the Crimson two-yard line and Clancy went between left tackle and guard for a Holy Cross touchdown but Ryan failed to boot the goal.

Harvard soon staged a comeback. A neat pass, Gauranaccia to Fordyce, playing left end, and a short run by Fordyce netted the second Harvard touchdown. French kicked the goal.

Harvard was on the Holy Cross five-yard line at the final whistle.

ARMY WALKS OVER DAVIS AND ELKINS

WEST POINT, N. Y., Oct. 15—(I. N. S.)—Davis and Elkins sent a chill of fear through Army ranks this afternoon when the visiting eleven scored a touchdown in the second period and held a 6-to-0 lead over the Army until the start of the final period. Then the Cadets ran wild and rolled up 27 points for a one-sided victory, 27 to 6.

The visitors' touchdown was scored in the second period. Davis and Elkins took the ball on downs on its own 30-yard line and gained on a double exchange of punts, advancing to the Army's 35-yard line. Bowles made first down and then Close went over.

DAKOTA NEXT ON WESLEYAN BOOK

Coyotes and Methodists Collide Saturday On Uni. Place Grid.

Both of the capital city state conference schools, Nebraska Wesleyan and Cotner, will face their hardest tests of the season during the next two weeks. Since neither football team has come out on the long end of the score at any time during the season to date, much work is to be expected at both camps.

Nebraska Wesleyan, with defeats at the hands of St. Regis and Peru and a tie with Midland on its record, will meet former Central conference brethren, South Dakota and Morningside, the first at Johnson field next Saturday and the Iowa team at Sioux City the following week.

The Methodists have faced hard games thus far and have had to present a green lineup. Coach Durham has spent much time experimenting with new men, since he has been finding difficulty procuring satisfactory men to fill the shoes of several of the good players lost by graduation, such as Wiberg and Huyck.

South Dakota Tough.

The South Dakota eleven which invades Johnson field next Saturday will be a tough opponent for the Methodists, as is shown by its victory over North Dakota Saturday. But the yellow-jacket crew should play an improved game against the Coyotes.

Since the new material has had opportunity to taste regular varsity experience, much of the crudeness that marked Wesleyan's early season play should be worn off, and Coach Durham has a much more thorough knowledge concerning the needs of the team and the best ways of supplying those need.

Cotner Tackles Teachers.

The Cotner college eleven, which opened its state conference campaign last Friday by dropping a 13 to 0 encounter to the Nebraska Central Quakers, faces the task of preparing in the next two weeks for more serious clashes with Wayne Normal and Peru.

The two teachers' schools look like the hardest teams on the Bulldogs' schedule and are leading contenders for the state conference crown. Although Cotner is definitely out of the race because of its defeat last week, the possibility of gaining distinction and glory still lies ahead by handing either of its next two opponents a dope upset.

Bulldogs Scoreless.

Cotner has yet to score its first touchdown this season battling to a scoreless tie with Tarkio in the first game and losing the Central tilt last week. Like Wesleyan, however, the Bulldogs have opened their 1927 slate with a predominance of uninitiated material. Except for four linemen, all of the Bethanyites are new men.

A late start also hampered the Cotner team this year and accounts for slowness in the first games. The dope predicts defeats in the coming two games for the Bulldogs, but accords them a chance.

QUAKERS DOWNED BY BEZDEK TEAM

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 15 — Uncorking a wonderful attack in the second half, Penn State's football eleven surprised Pennsylvania today to defeat the Quakers, 20 to 0.

The game was played before a crowd of 65,000 in almost ideal fall weather. The wame was the worst defeat for Pennsylvania since Red Grange ran wild against the Quaker team in 1925. It was the first big victory for Penn States since 1923 and also the first time State had defeated the Quakers since that time.

BOBCAT ELEVEN GAINS REVENGE

Peru Wallops Wesleyan Before Homecoming Day Crowd.

PERU, Neb., Oct. 15—The Peru Bobcats secured revenge on the Wesleyan Coyotes for last year's defeat, by running up a 22 to 0 score against the Methodists at Peru Normal home-coming today.

The Wesleyan machine was out of gear, blocked punts in the first quarter of the game resulting in safeties for Peru. Hertz, Peru tackle, succeeded in tackling one Coyote for one of the safeties.

With the 4 to 0 score, the Bobcats gained a moral advantage that stayed with them throughout the game. Fort, flashy Peru Fullback, succeeded in puncturing the Wesleyan line for good gains. Two passes in the first half netted Peru 70 yards gain. Young was responsible for the completed passes, thrown by Krejci.

Bobcats Work Passes.

A pass, Krejci to Young netted 40 yards, putting the ball on the 5-yard line, after two short gains through the line, Fort went around for the first touchdown of the game.

In the last minutes of the first half, Peru had the ball on Wesleyan's one-yard line with four downs to go. For the first time in the game the Wesleyan line appeared impregnable, and after four line plunges, Peru lost the ball on downs.

A passing attack by Wesleyan in the second half yielded marked gains, but scrimmage play necessitated punting, which kept the Methodist from scoring in the third quartet.

The last quarter of the game opened with the ball on Wesleyan's 6-yard line, Fort went around end for the second touchdown. Krejci intercepted a pass by Wesleyan and ran 50 yards to a touchdown in the next five minutes of play.

In the last few minutes of play Wesleyan attempted 10 passes, a forty-five yard pass to Manchester brought Wesleyan to Peru's twelve-yard line as the game ended.

Manchester seemed to be the entire Wesleyan team, punting, passing, plunging, receiving, and making brilliant breaks through the Peru line for tackles. On the part of Peru the passing of Krejci to Young and Zorn calls for favorable comment, while the all-around work of Fort made consistent gains for the Bobcats.

M'CREADY'S TOE BEATS MAROONS

Hastings Quarter Kicks Extra Points, Trims Morningside.

HASTINGS, Neb., Oct. 15—The trusty toe of McCready of Hastings was responsible for a 14-12 victory over Monringside University here this afternoon.

McCready carried the ball over the line for both of Hastings counters. A fake pass late in the opening quarter enabled him to run 29 yards for the first counter. Late in the third quarter he snared Hatter's pass intended for a Sioux City lad and raced 80 yards through a broken field to make the score 13-6.

Maroons Score Early.

Morningside scored its first touchdown on a pass, Brinkman to Means. Hatter's placement hit the goal post on the try-for-point. The Methodist chalked their second counter after a mixture of passes and smashes at the opening of the final frame. Williams crossed the line Hatter failed a second time on the attempted extra point. Both teams passed repeatedly and furnished fans with thrills a plenty.

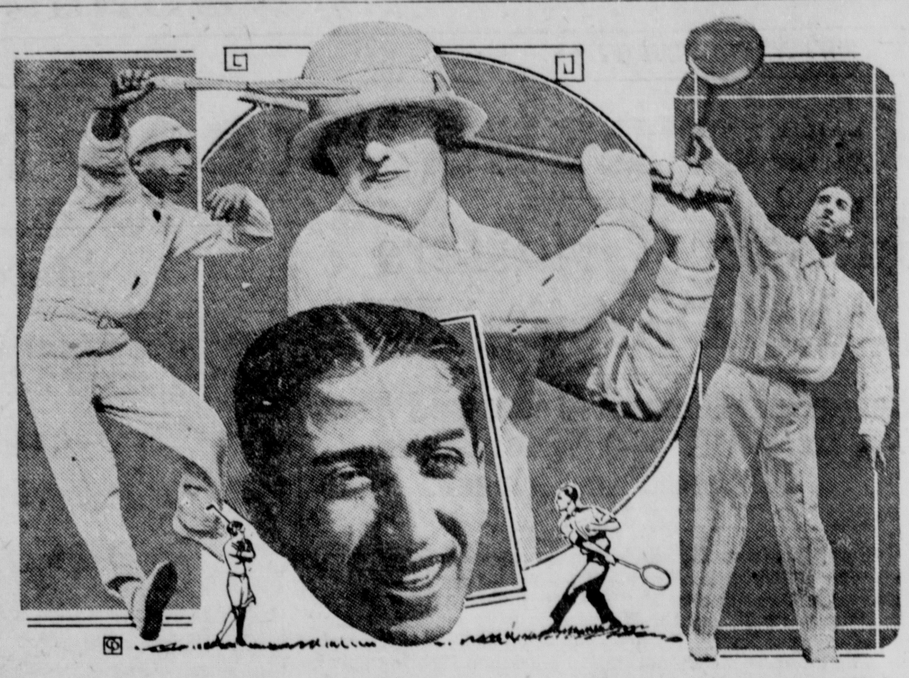
YORK SMOTHERS OMAHA U TEAM

YORK, Neb., Oct. 15 — Omaha university proved no match for the York Panthers today and the York eleven scored a 60-0 victory.

Kutzelman scored three touchdowns, Boyles and Franz counted two and Gilliland and Casebeer each scored one. Omaha threatened the York goal but once.

Tennis Champion to Quit Racquet Game?



NEW YORK, Oct. 15— Is tennis about to lose its greatest player?

The net world would like to know and is watching Rene Lacoste, world's finest court star, with anxiety.

Lacoste, so say visitors from sunny France, where the tennis wizard has his habitat, may soon relinquish his net honors and plunge into business.

Son of a wealthy Frechman Lacoste has often been urged by his father to forego sports and try a few backhand smashes at business problems.

Lacoste, senior, can point to himself as an example of the wiseness of such a course. A famous oarsman in his day the elder Lacoste quit at the height of fame and entered business, where he has been very successful.

Three years ago, at the time Rene first came to America, the elder Lacoste asked him to quit. Rene answered that unless he became a champion of champions he would quit.

Now Rene's ambition has been realized There is none in the tennis world who can stand before his racquet and his great tennis attack. Satisfied—will he quit?

Rene plays almost perfect tennis. He never makes an error. He plans everything. He is cool and he is sure. That is why he is known as the French sphinx. He is a master of his game.

There is more than just rumor to the story that Rene will quit. He has reached the very top. He can go no further. He will never play greater tennis than he has. He has brought tennis' greatest trophy — the Davis cup—to his native land It is the first time the cup was ever out of the possession of English-speaking nations.

Lacoste has said he would give up after this year. Will he? When the Frenchman assemble on the courts of the Racing club at Paris in 1928 to defend the Davis cup—will he be there?

Another item: Romance is said to have entered the life of Rene Lacoste. He paid great attention to Mlle Simone Ione de la Chaume, woman golf champion of France and England, as they returned home by ship from American tennis and golf wars. Should Rene marry he would have another excuse to retire from tennis.

SCORELESS TIE ON G. I. FIELD

Omaha Tech Is Halted By Third City High Gridsters.

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., Oct. 15—Omaha Tech and Grand Island high battled to a scoreless tie here Saturday, in a hard fought game. Both teams had chances to score but lacked the necessary punch to shove the oval across the line when in a scoring zone.

Omaha threatened to score constantly in the first quarter twice within only a few yards of the Island goal, but couldn't make it. Grand Island passed up a similar chance in the second quarter when within two feet of the Omaha goal failed to punch the ball over in four downs. Grand Island forced the play in Omaha territory throughout the second half, but couldn't gain when necessary.

Moore On Rampage.

Moore, Grand Island fullback, ran the Omaha ends for plenty of yardage, once breaking around the Omaha left end for a 47 yard run. Worthing, Omaha quarter, was a consistent ground-gainer for Tech. Peterson, Omaha guard, played a stellar game until forced to withdraw on account of injuries.

Lineup and Summary.

High Teams Enjoy Layoff This Week

Both University Place and Havelock high grid squads, with decisive victories gained last Fridaytucked under their belts, will enjoy a weeks' layoff with open dates ahead for both schools.

Both the Boilermakers and young Methodists have enjoyed a walk-away aainst College View, by 50 to 0 and 70 to 8 scores respectively. Each has dropped a game to out-of-town talent once, University Place to Crete and Havelock to McCook. Havelock trimmed Cathedral last Friday.

Hard Games Ahead.

Coach Walter Black's charges at Havelock can put in their extra time to advantage by digging in hard for the stiff games that lie ahead. First will come Creighton Prep from Omaha, then York, Crete, Agie high and University Place.

The Creighton Prep game will be the occasion for "Homecoming Day" at the shop town and former grads will be there to see the 1927 team face one of its stiffest opponents.

University Place's next games, after their open date, will be against Cathedral and Wahoo. Coach Baller's proteges probably will hold several scrimmages with the Nebraska Wesleyan reserves before the Cathedral game.

TEXAS U. STEPS ON VANDERBILT TEAM

DALLAS, Tex., Oct. 15—(U. P.)—Vanderbilt made a brave but futile rally in the final quarter of the annual intersectional game with Texas university here this afternoon, the Longhorns winning, 13 to 6.

Unleashing a sparkling aerial attack in the first period, the Texans registered two touchdowns before the Vanderbilt defensive tightened and held off the furious offensive of Leo Baldwin and Joe King, Texas backs.

The half ended with Texas waging an unsuccessful offensive in the Tennessee team's teritory.

Bill Shears, Vanderbilt's spectacular quarterback, thrilled the 16,000 spectators at the opening of the second half when he launched a forward passing attack.

The Texans were sent to the defensive for the remainder of the game.

MAROONS NOSE OUT ON PURDUE

One-Point Margin Gives Chicago Victory Over Boilermakers.

CHICAGO, Oct. 15—(I. N. S.)—Chicago upset the applecart today and humbled Purdue, conquerors of Harvard last week, 7 to 6. Welch, who was the hero of the Harvard combat, was the goat for Chicago today.

It happened on the sixth play after the kick-off. Welch started an end run from a punt formation, barely got his hands on the ball, when it was passed and, after juggling it on the run, let it get away from him altogether and Priess downed it on Purdue's eight-yard line. Mendenhall took it over in three plays and McDonough then place-kicked for the extra point, the tally that proved to be the winning one.

Scored on Maroon Blunder.

Purdue's chance came in the second period and the Boilermakers came close to muffling it beyond recall. Harmeson, brother of last years captain, went in at half and started throwing passes and running the tackles, working the ball down to Chicago's 24-yard line. Harmeson fumbled and Weaever, Chicago guard, got the ball and carried it to Purdue's 39-yard line.

Anderson punted and Harmeson captured the ball and while the Maroon players appeared to have gone to sleep on the play, raced 75 yards to cross the goal line. Roush broke through to mess up the try for goal and the score was 7 to 6.

HAWKEYES EASILY WIN FROM WABASH

IOWA CITY, Ia., Oct. 15—(I. N. S.)—The University of Iowa experienced no trouble today in taking Wabash into camp. The score was 38 to 0 and the counters were for the most part the result of straight football, Coach Ingwerson keeping his pet plays in the bag for future conference engagements.

Family Stuff

Buccaneers' Flop In Big Series Puzzled Baseball Wiseheads

NEW YORK, Oct. 15—Nothing ever can create understanding of the drab and doleful showing of the Pirates in the world series just agone.

When they lost the final game—and the last chance that ever was to come to them to gain the 1927 honors—on a wild pitch, it was a fitting climax to their inexplicably atrocious baseball.

Pirates Below Par.

The only time the Pirates did anything right throughout the whole series was by accident. This proud and powerful baseball machine, which had crushed all opposition in the National league, disported like mannekins when batting for the highest honors in balldom.

Sans fight sans spirit and minus all the things that made them the champions of the National circuit, the Pirates played baseball that would have disgraced a sand lot league.

They couldn't have lost the first game except by establishment of a few new records in the matter of sloppy and bonehead play.

Went Through Motions.

They played the second game like men who seemed to be out there on the field for no other purpose than to go through some sort of motions for about two hours. Listless and dispirited, they took their turn at bat and then they sojourned to the field and made motions until a kindly fate helped them to retire the Yankees.

After which they went to bat again, went on the field again, and thus played out their nine innings.

"A yellow ball club," some have explained.

No Streak of Yellow".

But, of all things, the Pirates are not yellow. No club that lacks gameness and courage could have won the National league fight of 1927. For to achieve that victory, they had to overhaul the flying Cubs, beat back the fierce rally of the Giants and then crush and humble the world's champion Cardinals.

And yet this same team that fought its way to the top, went against the Yankees and practically curled up. The fighting spirit was as foreign to the Pirate display in the series as Afghanistan is foreign to Saskatchewan.

Those who wish may cheer themselves hoarse over the idea that "the Yankees completely outclassed the Pirates." They did in that series. But the game that the Pirates played was of such terrible variety that the Red Sox might have crushed them with almost equal ease.

The Yankees won, not so much because they were so great, but because the Pirates were so terrible. The kind of baseball the Yankees sprayed upon the records, was good enough to whip the Pirates four times in a row. But it would not have won four straight games from any other team that has gone into world series conflict in the past 20 years.

Yanks Not So Much.

Praise the Yanks to the highest heavens—and then it must be conceded that their play was nothing superlative. They hit 30 or 35 points under their regular season mark; they pulled three errors in four games; they never broke out with the rash of expected home runs; they stole only two bases during the four games; they garnered every "break" that was possible.

And 27 times in four games they struck out.

The Pirates, playing the most listless baseball ever seen in a world series, exhibiting no fight and no fire, executing seven errors in four games, making every mistake of hand, foot and head that baseballing humans can make still were beaten only twice by decisive margins.

What's The Answer.

What was the matter with the Pirates?

None can ever say—unless those who wish to speak, may try to explain it by mention of the name "Kiki" Cuyler.

In the opening game the occasion arose where a pinch-hitter was needed. Few players in either league are more dangerous in a pinch than Cuyler. But Donie Bush, the manager, did not call upon him. The man he called was a failure.

Cuyler and Bush long ago had some sort of disagreement. Since then Cuvler never has been used by the Pirate chieftain except for bench warming purposes. Bush and his feelings toward Cuvler have kept the great "Kiki" out of the lineup.

The Case of "Kiki".

Did the failure of Bush to use Cuvler in that first game take the spirit out of the team? Did those Pirates, many of them pals of Cuvler, resent Bush's action? What effect had such resentment? Did they give their best at all moments in the second game?

Or did some of them, hoping to show up the need for Cuyler, especially in pinch-hitting moments, try to force that knowledge on Bush by failure to give of their heart and their mind and their muscular skill and strength in the second and third games?

In the first, before the refusal of Bush to use Cuyler in a pinch, had happened, the Pirates even though they played pop-eyed baseball, gave the Yankees a great scare and came within a one base blow of winning the combat.

Warmed Seat On Bench.

Cuyler's bat might have turned the trick. But Bush kept "Kiki" on the bench.

After that, the Pirates played two games like men in a trance.

Then came the final combat, when, with their backs to the wall, the Pirates had to fight to save themselves from annihilation.

What a vast contrast was their fourth game effort to that which they put forth in the second and third.

What was the explanation?

Some will insist that the Yankees outclassed the Pirates. Maybe they did. But it is noticeable that in the first and fourth games, when the Pirates really were fighting to win, they garnered close to 20 hits, punched out a total of seven runs—and lost their games because the "breaks" of the game came to favor the Yankees.

One of the Greatest.

A great ball club, this Yankee organization; perhaps one of the greatest of al ltime. But, great as it is, it doesn't seem that it had enough power to annihilate the Pirates four straight times without luck to favor it on two occasions and something inexplicable to assist on twice more.

Many explanations have been offered as to what ailed the Pirates." None is really satisfactory; none complete. And perhaps none may come through the drift of the years for the showing of the Pirates perhaps ever shall remain as one of baseball's real mysteries.

MEEHAN'S TEAM STILL IN STRIDE

tossing to Lassman and Barrabee for the scores.

Frank Briante and Captain Connor again led the Violet attack. Briante smashed the Maroon line almost at will and gained from three to 35 yards whenever he hit the Maroon wall. Connor picked his holes off tackle with the gracefulness of a dancer, while his judgment and passing were above reproach.

Carried Back Kicks.

Strong carried back kicks in commendable style. Barrabee justified Meehan's confidence in him at end and turned in a splendid game. Lassman, back at tackle, was a tower of strength, as were the other Violet forwards.

N. Y. U.'s first touchdown came in the opening period. Fordham opened up its game quickly and Delaney threw passes all over the field, most of them failing. Midway in the quarter, Delaney kicked to Strong, who dashed back 30 yards to the Maroon's 45-yard stripe. Connor and Briante smashed the Fordham line to pieces, bringing the ball to the enemy's five-yard line. On the last down, Connor hurled a short pass to Lassman, playing offensive end, for the touchdown. Strong place-kicked the seventh point.

The second score was not long in forthcoming. Delaney fumbled on the first play after the kick-off and Hill fell on the leather for N. Y. U. on the opposition's 22-yard line. Briante carried it over in four powerful assaults at the line. Strong missed the kick.

Fordham lost the ball on downs on the final play of the period on N. Y. U.'s 34-yard line. Briante again proved irresistible and his first smash netted 34 yards. N. Y. U. rushed the ball down to the five-yard line, but Gripp here intercepted a pass from Connor and skipped back 55 yards before going down. N. Y. U. took the ball on downs on its 35-yard mark. Connor tossed to Barrabee, who, aided by splendid interference, galloped 45 yards for the touchdown. Strong kicked the twentieth point.

Briante Brilliant Lugger.

The final touchdowns in the last quarter ca meas the result of the cont nued effectiveness of the Violet's running attack. Briante romped 30 yards off tackle for one touchdown, while Connor sprinted 18 yards through the other side of the line for the other. Roberts put the Violet in a scoring position by intercepting a toss from Delaney and galloping 25 yards to the Maroon's 30-yard line. Connor hurled a pass to Roberts and then Connor went over on the next play.

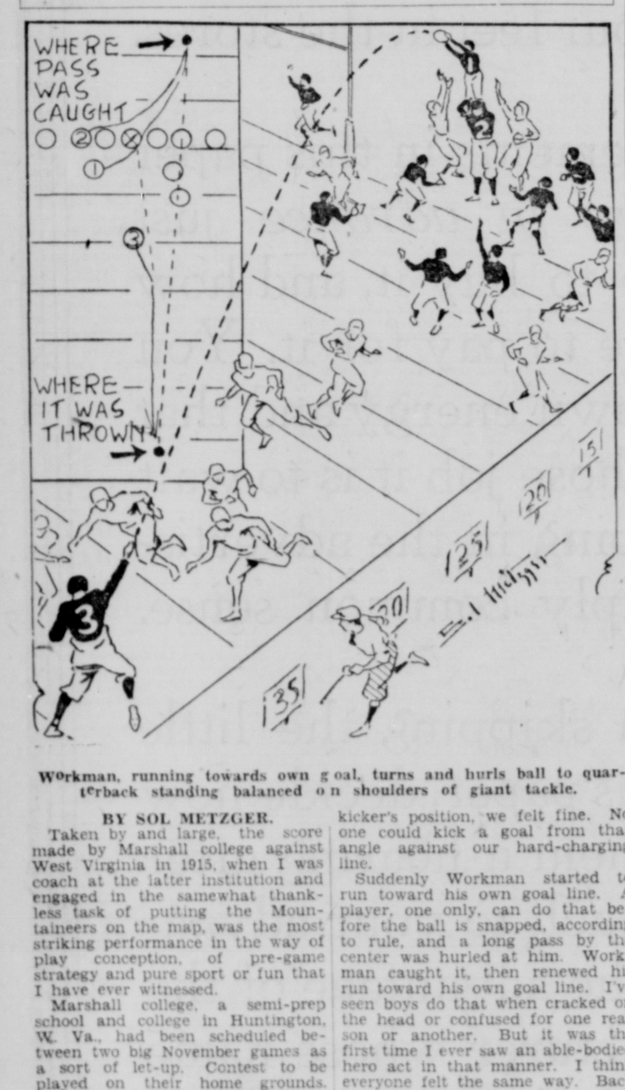
Can Tunney Hold Title Against These Challengers.

The next twelve months should see the greatest activity in years in the ranks of the heavyweights. Four of them are on Gene Tunney's trail. Jack Sharkey of Boston (left) is sure to make a determined bid for the prize. Phil Scott, England's "white hope" (upper) has just arrived in New York and will shortly embark on a campaign to win recognition. Jack Dempsey (right center) promises to meet all comers and is begging for a third crack at Tunney. Tom Heeney (right), Australian slugger, has made several impressive starts since coming to the United States, and experts say he may figure prominently in the forthcoming free-for-all. Paolo Uzcudun (lower left), the Basque woodchopper, is also rated as one of the most dangerous, as well as colorful, contenders.

Freak Pass Play Scored Touchdown on Virginians



Workman, running towards own goal, turns and hurls ball to quarterback standing balanced on shoulders of giant tackle.

BY SOL METZGER.

Taken by and large, the score made by Marshall college against West Virginia in 1915, when I was coach at the latter institution and engaged in the samewhat thankless task of putting the Mountaineers on the map, was the most striking performance in the way of play conception, of pre-game strategy and pure sport or fun that I have ever witnessed.

Marshall college, a semi-prep school and college in Huntington, W. Va., had been scheduled between two big November games as a sort of let-up. Contest to be played on their home grounds. Boyd Chambers, now physical director at the University of Cincinnati, was their coach. We were warm friends. Said Boyd to me just before the game:

"This is my home town. You fellows can lick us by any score. What about taking out your first team if you score 30 points in the first half? I'd appreciate it."

As I had planned to do this very thing, I was most acquiescent. But we did not score 30 points in the first half. We did it in the first quarter. So, as the second quarter started I sent in four substitute backs, who were raw and inexperienced. Marshall had the ball, about their own 30-yard line. I began locking around for a string of sub linemen when Chambers' team uncorked a freak spread passing formation and in two or three passes landed the ball for a first down on our 5-yard line.

Marshall tried to rush our line for three plays and lost exactly 5 yards. It was fourth down, the goal line, 10 yards away, to go. We felt pretty safe as we had a darn good line in there. The ball was away over on the right side of the field, too, so when Marshall got into a drop-kick formation with a young fellow named Workman (later an Ohio star) back in the kicker's position, we felt fine. No one could kick a goal from that angle against our hard-charging line.

Suddenly Workman started to run toward his own goal line. A player, one only, can do that before the ball is snapped, according to rule, and a long pass by the center was hurled at him. Workman caught it, then renewed his run toward his own goal line. I've seen boys do that when cracked on the head or confused for one reason or another. But it was the first time I ever saw an able-bodied hero act in that manner. I think everyone felt the same way. Back he went to the 20-yard line, then the 30 and our whole line was streaming after him. At the 40-yard line he came to a quick stop, turning, so he could see the field. We looked, too. The plot was now exposed.

Far back up the field, in our end zone, there stood on the shoulders of a giant tackle, as neatly balanced as an acrobat, the diminutive 125-pound quarterback of Marshall. Workman burned a pass right into his hands. The kid caught it and fell to the ground for a touchdown. And my team on the field and the substitutes and about every fan there fell to the ground, weak with laughter. They nearly stopped the game after that to celebrate. It sure was a play.

Between halves I laid it on pretty hard and put the whole first team back. The idea was to make 100 points to Marshall's 6. But we fell short of the mark, only rolling up 96.

The only thing I can't figure out since is why Chambers quit coaching. Any man who could conceive of a play like that has it by a mile over Rockne, Zuppke, Warner, Wade and the rest.

JUNIOR COLLEGE LOOP ORGANIZED

Seward, Hebron and Wahoo Schools Unite For Athletic Card.

Preliminary steps toward the organization of a Nebraska Junior Denominational College Athletic association were taken in Lincoln Saturday with the meeting of representatives from Luther college of Wahoo, Concordia college of Seward and Hebron college.

The organization will promote and award championships in basketball, tennis and baseball, according to plans made at the Saturday meeting. Faculty representatives will meet with the athletic heads late this month to draft the final organization of the conference.

Coach C. O. Samuelson of Wahoo was elected president of the group. W. H. Rosellius of Hebron is vice-president and Walter Hellwege of Seward, secretary-treasurer.

ORLEANS ELEVEN TRIMS HOLDREGE

ORLEANS, Neb., Oct. 15—Orleans high school handed Holdrege its first reverse of the season yesterday, trimming Holdrege 7-0 in a bitterly contested game.

The ball was in Holdrege territory most of the game the visitors never getting inside the Orleans 30-yard line. The work of Quarterback Hull in returning punts featured in the Orleans victory.

Coach Julian Pool's Orleans team has won a 52-2 victory over Franklin and defeated Beaver City, 7-6, in the other games played this season.

Aurora 's Winner.

AURORA, Neb., Oct. 15—Coach Del Danker's Aurora high school team defeated Hastings here yesterday, 6 to 0. Aurora was outweighed by the Hastings. Meismer at tackle and Dierdorff at end and center featured the Aurora play.

MIDDIES SUNK BY ROCKNE ELEVEN

period before Knute Rockne had sent his first-string eleven into action. Notre Dame scored three touchdowns in the second half. Two came in the third period and the third in the final quarter, to which was added the extra point after touchdown.

Blocked Punt Disastrous.

Notre Dame, quick to take advantage of every Navy mistake, scored its first touchdown when the Navy's line failed to hold and protect "Whitey" Lloyd, Navy's backfield star, who for once failed to shine.

Frederick blocked Lloyd's punt on Navy's 35-yard mark and the ball bounced and roleld back to the Middies' 15-yard line, where Walsh snapped it up and ran across the Navy goal line.

The second Notre Dame tally came after brilliant charges by the inimitable Charley Flanagan, who brought th epigskin down to scoring distance and then passed to Riley to confound the Middies and score the touchdown.

Poor Strategy By Middies.

It was poor Navy generalship that opened the door wide for Notre Dame's final score. In the fourth period Navy yielded the ball on downs to Notre Dame on Navy's 48-yard line. Notre Dame marched straight down the field and across the goal line for the score with Niemic, one of Rockne's apt understudies, smashing and crashing through the whole Navy eleven.

The Navy touchdown was scored with the Middies' "pony" backfield. Ransford and Bauer confused the South Bend team with some forward passes and nicely timed delayed pass plays. They carried the ball fro mthe enemy's 33-yard mark over the line in seven plays. Then Rockne trotted his whole first eleven on the field with the exception of Flanagan, who came on later, and Navy wilted.

Of the expense incurred during the Tunney-Dempsey fight in Chicago, $265,866 was paid in federal tax, $241,650.43 in state tax, and $150,000 for additional costs.

Georgetown was forced to take losses, as the Syracuse line broke through, and Monney went behind his own goal line to punt.

Winnick locks Punt.

Winnick, Syracuse tackle, broke through and blocked the punt. In the mad scramble for the ball, Winnick landed on it for Syracuse on the 12-yard line. A pass, Baysinger to Goldman, brought it up 10 yards and a first down and Sebo bucked over for the touchdown that ended the games scoring.

The visitors made a valiant effort in the closing minutes, advancing from their 10-yard line to the Syracuse 25-yard stripe before Baysinger once more bobbed up with a pass interception and Syracuse held the ball until the game ended.

Baysinger the Hero.

Baysinger, with his exhibition of passing for Syracuse, his punting which averaged slightly more than 50 yards, and his frequent interception of Georgetown's tosses was the outstanding hero of the game from the Orange standpoint, while Nork was equally valiant in behalf of the Washingtonians.

WINTER WARNING TO CAR OWNERS

Service Manager of Buick Gives Out Cold Weather Hints.

FLINT, Mich., Oct. 15—It's time for the car owner to prepare for cold weather. This is the reminder issued by C. W. Jacobs, service manager of the Buick Motor Co., who advises attention to batteries, oil, tires and brakes as a precaution against winter annoyance.

The following suggestions made by Mr. Jacobs hold good for most cars:

1. Have battery checked and if necessary charged to insure vigorous cranking in cold weather. Have generator cleaned and charging rate advanced to maintain battery in proper condition.

2. Switch to lighter oil at the first indication that the starter is having hard work cranking the engine.

3. See that tires are sound. It is less troublesome to repair them now than to make emergency changes in cold weather.

4. Have brake action equalized, particularly on two-wheel brake cars. "The newer the car, of course, the less the chance of interrupted service due to cold weather," said Mr. Jacobs. "With the new Buicks, for instance, most of these preparations may be omitted. Buick for 1928 is equipped with an automatic charging control which prolongs the life of the battery by preventing over-charging. The charge is adjusted for winter and summer operation without any attention. Addition of water is all the new Buick's battery is likely to need for a long time.

5. Sufficient alcohol should be added to radiator to prevent damage by freezing, but not until weather requires it.

"The crankcase oil in Buick for 1928 need not be changed very often. It must of course be replenished from time to time, and as cold weather approaches, these replenishments should be made with lighter oil.

"Unless they are very evidently out of adjustment, the Buick brakes will need no attention in preparation for winter. But for the average car, they should be checked over carefully for icy streets and badly-equalized brakes are a dangerous combination.

"Pretty nearly every one who is driving a car today can remember when the majority of owners jacked up their automobiles for the winter, drained the oil and water, and deflated the tires. Today that is almost unheard of. There is no reason why, with a little extra care, the modern motor car should not go through the winter without a single interruption of service."

Auto Notes

A car will give a jerky action when throttled down to eight or 10 miles an hour if the various parts in the power transmission system are badly worn.

A discarded nutcracker is a useful tool to keep in the car. For turning grease cups that are difficult to loosen, it will be found much better than a pair of pliers or pipe wrench. It is also useful for holding the head of a bolt while a wrench is being applied to the nut.

A badly bent axle will cause premature wear of the tread of tires.

SUIT PLANNED AGAINST FORD

Claimed Millions Due Old Lincoln Motor Co., Stockholders.

DETROIT, Oct. 15. — (INS.) — Henry M. and Wilfred C. Leland today set in motion the machinery to pave the way for a suit against Henry and Esdel Ford and the Ford Motor Co., for several millions of dollars alleged due stockholders of the old Lincoln Motor Co.

In a circular to stockholders, the Lelands requested each one to give Wilfred C. Leland the power of attorney to start legal action against the Fords on the ground that they failed to abide by an agreement made at the time of the sale of the Lincoln plant six years ago to reimburse the Lincoln stockholders for losses sustained by them.

Shortly after the sale of the Lincoln plant letters exchanged between the Lelands and Fords regarding alleged promises the Lelands claimed the Ford interests made, were published in the newspapers.

About this time the aged ex-president of the Lincoln plant Henry M. Leland, gave an interview to newspapermen in which he stated Henry Ford not only refused to answer his letters but snubbed him when he called on Ford to discuss the proposition.

Attorney Retained.

It was learned the Lelands have retained Attorney eKnneth Stevens to prosecute the action as soon as the agreement is obtained from the stockholders.

At the receiver's sale February 4, 1922, Henry Ford bid $8,000.000 for the Lincoln plant and held that this sum automatically became the total assets against which creditors might present claims.

The actual physical assets of the company at the time represented about $4.000.000. In addition to this Ford sent out checks to some 900 merchandise creditors of the company for $4.200,000 and to the seven directors who had endorsed its notes for $4,250.000.

It is unofficially estimated by some of the old stockholders that the Fords still owe them, according to their alleged pre-sale agreement about $4,000,000 and it is for this sum that the present suit is being organized ,it was said.

FINDS IT DIFFICULT TO RENT ARMORIES

State Auditor's Refusal to Pay Claim Causes Owners to Boost Terms.

Because of State Auditor Johnson's refusal to pass favorably on the rental payments for the National Guard armory at Omaha,, considerable difficulty is being met in obtaining armories in other cities on satisfactory terms, Adjutant Generfal Paul said Saturday.

"Auditor Johnson's arbitrary ruling is costing the state a lot of money," Paul said. "Our leases on other armories throughout the state are expiring, and because the auditor holds that we cannot enter into leases extending over the time the appropriation covers, the owners of these buildings are asking higher rentals."

The Adjutant general was in Grand Island Friday attempting to make arrangements for an armory there. The lease on the building used there now expires November 1. The owner of the building has boosted the terms to the extent of $25 a month. However, there is a new building being built which Paul expected to obtain Friday when he talked the matter over with the owner, Paul says he was told by the owner that he did not care to rent the building on a short time lease unless he received considerably more money for it.

"I could not promise him a long time lease, but I did promise him that the national guard would continue to use the building so long as I am holding this office. We are very much in need of a good safe building in Grand Island. There is a machine gun company in Grand Island consisting of 65 men and possessing about $75,000 worth of government equipment for which the state is responsible.

Leases on armories at Hastings and North Platte have expired this month and new arrangements are now being made, but the approval of the state auditor has not yet been ascertained. Another lease on a building at Hartington will expire on December 1. The remaining twenty or so leases which the national guard holds in other cities and towns in the state will not expire until sometime in 1928.

Paul pointed out that the Nebraska national guard has approximately a million dollars worth of government equipment in its possession. The state is responsible for the safe keeping of this equipment and any loss or damage done to it will have to be made good by the state either out of its own funds or the fund given the state by the federal government for national guard purposes.

With such a large amount of equipment in its hands for safe keeping, it is vitally necessary that proper storage places be obtained for it, Paul said.

Although Auditor Johnson was not in the city Saturday it was said at his office that there is little possibility that he will object to any arrangements being made by Adjutant general for armories at either Hastings, Grand Island or North Platte.

Johnson, when he refused to pass the rental vouchers for the Omaha armory, said that his objections were based on his understanding that the building being used was donated by the city for a term of ten years for the nominal rental of a dollar a year. He objected to state paying a monthly rental of $350 to the Omaha Armory Building company which was later organized to take care of the maintenance of the property. The term of the lease was a side issue, but was raised to strengthen his position.

Vouchers for rentals on other armories have been approved up to date, it was said, the only ones held up being those on the Omaha building.

KATHLEEN KEY BRUISED.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 15—(I. N. S.)—Kathleen Key,film actress, is nursing a badly bruised shoulder here today, following an automobile accident last evening. ORCHESTRA BUILDS UP SUNDAY SCHOOL

(Special to The Star.)

PAWNEE CITY, Neb., Oct. 15—"No single force is as effective in building up Sunday school attendance as a good orchestra," declared Vester Vinsant here today as he relinquished superintendency of the Methodist Sunday school, held for five years, to the superintendent-elect, Claude A. Barker.

The Methodist Sunday school attendance now averages near 300 each week. The orchestra referred to by Mr. Cinsant is led by Mrs. F. C. Calhoun and plays before the morning classes open, and frequently for the church song service. In the five years of Mr. Vinsant's superintendency attendance has grown almost 100 per cent, and the collections have more than doubled. Mr. Barker, new superintendent, is postmaster of Pawnee City.

GUERNSEY WILL DELIVER TALKS AT UNIVERSITY

Nathaniel T. Guernsey, vice president of the American Telephone & Telegraph company, will give a series of lectures at the university college of law this week, and will be the guest of the college for several days.

Mr. Guernsey was formerly counsel for the telephone company, and, according to Dean H. H. Foster of the law college, is one of the leaders of American industry.

He will speak on "The Regulation of Public Utilities" in a series of five lectures in Room 101 of the law building. The lectures are primarily for law students, but others will be admitted if there is enough room. The lectures begin Monday at 10 o'clock and continue until Friday.

(Special to The Star.)

Bridgeport, Neb., Oct. 15—In a show window in Bridgeport is a unique sugar beet that is attracting much attention. It is small, but perfectly shaped, and has a big tap root that measures more than four feet in length. Several other beets in the same field had two and three feet roots.

Bellows Leaves U. S. Radio Body and Pickard Succeeds

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—(I. N. S.)—Henry A. Bellows, former announcer and director of station WICC at Minneapolis, resigned from the federal radio commission today, effective November 1, and the White house announced the appointment of Sam Pickard of Manhattan, Kas., as his successor.

Bellows, who will return to WICC, stated that financial reasons prompted his retirement.

Pickard at present is secretary of the commission. Formerly he was chief of the radio division of the department of agriculture, having been brought to Washington by Secretary Jardine. He is a radio pioneer, being credited with first conceiving educational programs for the farmers of the middlewest. During the war he served in aviation and was wounded in action. He is 34 and a democrat.

Search Canyon for Gen. Frank Sutton , Vancouver Financier

VANCOUVER, B. C., Oct. 15—(I. N. S.)—A police party this afternoon was searching for Gen. Frank A. Sutton, Vancouver financier and former military adviser to Gen. Chang Tso-Lin, Chinese war lord, who is reported lost in a canyon in the Peace river district, northeast of here.

General Sutton's disappearance was reported at Hudson Hope, B. C., by J. M. Bryan, member of the provincial parliament for North Vancouver. He told police the one-armed war veteran was lost somewhere in Twenty-four Mile canyon near Long Portage, and that Sutton's companions who were with him in a surveying party, feared he had met with an accident in the canyon.

CHICAGO BANDITS ARE AGAIN ACTIVE

CHICAGO, Oct. 15—(I. N. S.)—Increasing cold weather brought Chicago bandits into renewed activity here today.

Three bandits entered a restaurant today and shot and probably fatally wounded Michael Kissane when he resisted their efforts to obtain $800.

Four bandits in automobiles escaped with $3,000 payroll today after snatching it from officials of an electric company.

Three robbers entered a clothing store and robbed four employes of $30,000 in furs.

A woman bandit and her male companion were captured a short time after they are alleged to have robbed an elevated station attendant.

Probe Major's Death

EL PASO, Texas., Oct. 15—(I. N. S.)—Maj. Allen G. Thurman, 39, assistant adjutant of the First Cavalry division at Fort Bliss, was found dead in his car at the fort today. A pistol near him had been discharged once. Authorities indicated a probe would be instituted to ascertain further details of the shooting.

Major Thurman, who had been in ill health for some time, leaves a wife and three children.

DEWEY NAMED ADVISOR.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 15—(I. N. S.)—Assistant Secretary of the Treasury Charles S. Dewey today announced his appointment as financial advisor to the Polish government and director of the Bank of Poland. He will have supervision of the $70,000,000 loan just negotiated. His resignation from the treasury post will not be offered until his appointment has been confirmed, he said.

ACTRESS GETS DIVORCE.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 15—(I. N. S.)—MBrs. Mary Jane Mallotte, picture actress, and her musician husband, Albert Hay Mallotte, are separated legally today, the actress having obtained a divorce. Mrs. Mallotte obtained $150 a month alimony and $1,500 to cover expenses of her suit.

Plenty of Snow, Rain, Sleet, Ice, Predicted by "Astrologer."

Cold Season to Begin About November 12; Storms to Come.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Oct. 15—(I. N. S.)—An old fashioned winter with plenty of snow, rain, sleet and ice, is the prediction for the next few months of Paul K. Schimmack, self styled weather shark and astrologer.

Sitting in his study with maps and charts, Schimmack has traced the position of all the planets up to May 7, 1928, in a special forecast for International News Service.

Schimmack advises there will be a big flood in California on October 22, with winter weather setting in about November 12.

New York and vicinity will be visited by a big storm lasting from December 1 to 3 inclusive. Three days later there will be a heavy snowfall in Canada and the northern part of the United States.

White Christmas.

Christmas shoppers will have to trudge about in mud and slush this year, but will be recompensed with a white Christmas, after which January and February will be cold and blustery.

Schimmack says the lion will show his teeth the first part of March but that month and April will be relatively springlike. May and June will prove to be unseasonaoble, the astrologer said.

Chronologically, here is what he forecasts:

October 22—A big flood in California. Mercury is in the sign of the Scorpion and Venus descending in Virgo, Mars in Libra the Earth sign, Jupiter in Pisces and Saturn in Sagittarius—They are all in the water sign on October 22.

November 3—Rain with a mixture of snow.

November 12—May look for winter weather coming out of the east westward to Youngstown, O., including Pittsburgh on November 14.

November 14—Real snow.
November 21—Snow.
November 29—Snow.
November 28-29—More snow.
December 1-3—There will be a big storm in New York.
December 6—Canada will be buried in snow.

Snow in Canada.

December 10-12—Canada will be buried in snow again, a large portion falling also over the northern United States, as far south as Pittsburgh, where outside work will be impossible at this time.

December 14—Snow.
December 17—Snow.
December 18—Snow.
December 19—Snow.
December 22—Snow.
December 24—Snow. Schimmack personally guarantees there will be a white Christmas.
December 25—Snow.
December 26—Snow.
December 28—Snow.

January 1, 3 and 5—Schimmack advises that heavy snow may be expected on these dates.

The entire months of January and February will be real winter months.

March and April will be springlike.

May 7—Will see the last cold snap of the year.

Mining and Industrial Convention to Be Held Casper, October 27-28

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Oct. 15—(I. N. S.)—It was decided at a meeting of the state board of commerce and industry held at Casper, Wyo., recently to hold a mining convention in Casper, October 27 and 28, to be followed by an industrial convention on October 29.

A number of persons interested in the minin industry appeared before the board and discussed various matters pertaining to the industry. The board feels that with the co-operation of newspapers and commercial organizations of the state much good can and will be derived from the October meetings.

The meetings will be open for discussion of the various problems connected with the mining industry in Wyoming, and every prospector, mine owner or interested party will have an opportunity of addressing the convention.

CRETE NOTES

CRETE, Neb., Oct. 15—Crete Woman's club met Friday afternoon at the club room for the regular October meeting, Mrs. W. R. Douglas presiding. Miss Mable McCarger song leader and the singing was followed by the salute to the flag. By informal ballot two delegates were elected to attend the state convention at Kearney, they being Mrs. M. R. Byrnes and Mrs. S. L. Mains, Alternates are Mrs. V. W. Brown and Miss Mable McCarger. Parliamentary drill was given by Miss Nettie Axamit. A paper was read by Mrs. E. F. Aron on City Sanitation and review of the September "Club Woman" was given by Mrs. O. L. Bassett. John E. Makota, attorney, told in an interesting manner of wills, how they are made and how probated, after which two vocal numbers were given by Dorothy Hunt and Clarice Saunders. Mrs. C. L. Anderson gave a report on the work started in the Americanization school, eleven being enrolled and the project progressing nicely. Classes meet in the high school building, and state and county school money is available for the purpose. The women of three organizations are interested, they being the Woman's club, D. A. R. and Legion auxiliary.

Joe Plouzek, secretary of the Izaak Walton league, has received a consignment of 3,000 perch to be planted in the Blue river. Pike, bass and catfish are to be sent later.

The annual meeting of the Blue Valley association of Congregational churches was held here this week, closing Thursday afternoon. There was quite a large attendance and the ministers were entertained at the weekly dinner of the Rotary club.

DIANA MILLER IMPROVED.

HOLLYWOOD, Cal., Oct. 15—(I. N. S.)—Marked improvement was reported here today in the condition of Diana Miller, motion picture actress and wife of George Melford, director, who has been confined to a sanitarium for several months. Miss Miller suffered a breakdown last July

DON'T overlook the smaller advertisements in this paper. Look them over. The message which an advertisement conveys is vastly more important than the mere size of the space it fills. Some of the biggest values are often described in type no larger than ordinary news-print.

The safest method is to read all the advertisements, large and small. Experience proves that it is time well spent. The more time you spend in preparation for shopping, the less actual time you will have to be on your feet in the stores.

Read the advertisements in this paper and you will know in advance just what to buy, where to buy it, and how much you will have to pay for it. You will conserve your own energy and that of the salespeople whose job it is to wait upon you. Preshopping in the advertising columns is simply common sense.

If you have been skipping the little advertisements in this paper, decide now that you will give them a hearing after this. It will be as much to your advantage as it will be to the advantage of the merchant or manufacturer whose name is signed to the advertisement.

Referring again to size, there's a little boy in the movies whose salary makes that of many a man look like petty cash

MISSOURI WINS AT WASHINGTON

Tigers Score Twice To Win Warmly Fought Game, 13-0.

ST. LOUIS Mo., Oct. 15— UP)—A 75 yard run by Earl Diemund, University of Missouri halfback, on an intercepted forward pass, and line smashes by Harry Howse, Tiger reserve, gave the Missouri Tigers a 13 to 0 victory over the Washington Bears today.

Diemund took the pass and raced to the goal line for the six points that put Missouri in the lead in the third quarter and in the fourth quarter. Howse hit the line in a series of smashes that accounted for another touchdown.

Maschoff kicked goal afteh the second touchdown, after failing in the first.

Bears Flash Strength.

The Bears displayed surprising strength both on offense and defense, and the Tigers failed to play their customary excellent brand of football. The Bears once held the Bengals on the six inch line, and the Tigers retaliated by standing firm on their own one yard line.

In the third quarter, the Tigers apparently woke up and played football, such as was displayed against Nebraska and Kansas Aggies in Missouri's other two games.

The Missouri team turned back the Bears without the services of Flamank, Tuttle, Glen Smith, Bert Clark and several other regulars, who watched the game from the sidelines. The lineup:

PITT PANTHERS SMOTHER DRAKE

Bulldogs No Match For Eastern Foe; Pitt Wins, 32-0.

DES MOINES, Oct. 15—(U. P.)—Led by the stellar work of Dick Booth, Pittsburgh university today buried the Drake Bulldogs under a 32 to 0 score.

Two touchdowns came in rapid succession in the first quarter, with Booth making both scores. The second marker resulted from a 79 yard run.

Booth made both points after touchdown with place kicks.

Welch plunged over for the third touchdown after the third quarter started after another long run by Booth, who missed the extra point.

Pitt counted twice more in the last period. Drake's only threat in the second quarter ended on the visitors' 5-yard line.

COWBOYS JUMP ON CHADRON EAGLES

LARAMIE, Wyo., Oct. 15—(I. N. S.)—Wyoming university today rode roughshod over Chadron, Neb., normal in the last ten minutes of play, coming from behind to win by a score of 30 to 13.

The Cowboys unleashed a sensational rally that swept everything before it to allow Wyoming to win a game that seemed lost by a scant point.

At the start of the last period the score was knotted a 6-all. Wyoming counted a touchdown in the opening minutes of the period.

Chadron then scored with a touchdown and converted the goal into a one-point lead.

With 10 minutes left to play, Wyoming opened up with a terrific overhead attack that resulted in 18 points.

Harkins and Whitman starred for Wyoming, while Almgren and Garvin stood out for the invaders.

HOOSIERS BAFFLE MIGHTY GOPHERS

Indiana Holds Minnesota To 14-14 Draw In Tense Fight.

BLOOMINGTON, Ind., Oct. 15—(INS)—The crack of the final gun today, leaving Indiana tied at 14-all with Minnesota, probably was the most welcome sound that 21,000 half-crazed Indiana "homecomers" ever heard. For Indiana, duped to take a good beating, was not beaten and Minnesota, marching down the field in the closing minutes with Herb Joesting leading the way, didn't win, to the great confusion of experts who had made the Gophers a top-heavy favorite.

McCracken, Indiana sophomore end, was both hero and goat of the game. He presented the Gophers with a point after touchdown by being off side when Almquist missed his attempt to drop-kick.

Scoops Ball and Scores.

In the fourth period McCracken, tearing down the field under a punt, scooped up the ball when Nydahl fumbled and sprinted over the line. Balay stepped back to the 15-yard line and coolly drop-kicked over the tying point.

The game ended on Indiana's eight-yard line with the ball in Minnesota's possession after a series of passes by Joesting had followed his battering-ram attack that had driven the Hoosiers back and back to their own 30-yard line.

CALLES CERTAIN REVOLT AT END

Mexican President Declares Situation is Now Calm.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 15—(I. N. S.)—"The situation is calm and the rebellion has collapsed."

President Calles made this statement to the International News Service today, when requested for a statement regarding dispatches appearing in American papers indicating that the Mexican revolution has not been entirely quelled.

The president stated to the International News Service that the true condition of affairs in Mexico has been pictured by Mexico City dispatches and that dispatches from other sources are not true.

Gen. Arnulfo Gomez, presidential candidate and one of the leaders of the latest uprising, has only thirty-five followers with him, according to news received here from Vera Cruz. Gomez is said to be in the mountains of the state of Vera Cruz, with the pursuing federals close at hand. It is believed here that General Escobar's federals have Gomez hemmed in so closely that he cannot escape and that his only alternatives are death or capture. Capture would result in immediate courtmartial.

Less than thirty federals were killed in last Sunday's battle which broke the back of the Gomez-Almada revolt.

TRINITY PILES UP PONDEROUS SCORE

BALKAN FEUD IS BREWING AGAIN

Assassination of Albanian Envoy Causes New Apprehension.

PRAGUE, Czecho-Slovakia, Oct. 15— (I. N. S.)—Fresh troubles began to brew in the Balkans today as a result of the assassination of the Albanian minister, Tzena Bey Kryoziu, by a Bulgarian student.

Bulgaria has just emerged from a "balkan crisis, involving Jugo-Slavia, arising from raids on Jugo-Slav soil by Macedonian comitadjis.

Although Albania is expected to make strong protest it is not believed that serious consequences will follow.

After the student had been questioned at length, the police declared that he claimed to be an "Albanian patriot" and that he confessed the shooting. According to the police the student claimed that "Albania had been sold out to Italy" and that the Albanian minister in Prague had not shown proper patriotism.

After his examination, the police were in doubt as to whether the assassin was a native Bulgarian or Albanian. He gave the name of Algy Vinadha.

PEKING SAVED FROM INVASION

Chang's Forces Capture Kalgan and Part of Shansi Troops.

PEKING, Oct. 15—(INS)— The city has been saved from invasion, according to all indications today.

Marshal Chang Tso-Lin's headquarters announced the capture of Kalgan from the Shansi forces. Thus the whole railway line between Peking and Kalgan has been consolidated for the Pekingese forces. The Shansi (anti-Pekingese) army is retreating westward.

Two Shansi regiments at Chofow, thirty miles south of Peking, surrendered after a desperate battle with the Pekingese forces. Twelve pieces of field artillery that the Shansi troops had been using to harass the Pekingese lines were captured.

Marshal Chang's headquarters announced the occupation of Shi-Schianchwang and the surrounding territory; also the defeat of Gen. Feng Yu Hsiang's army and the occupation of Kweiteh, on the Lunghai railway.

DEATH AT BEATRICE.
(Special to The Star.)

BEATRICE, Neb., Oct. 15—A. C. Reins, 76, old resident of Gage county, died at his home here early Saturday. He was formerly engaged in farming east of the city, but retired some years ago and moved to town.

He is survived by his widow and the following children: Fred L. Reins of Pasadena, Calif., Mrs. John Arney, Beatrice; Bert Reins, Grant, Neb.; Mrs. Clayton Gish of Beatrice, and Henry Reins of Knoxville, Ia.

LINCOLN STAR Classified Advertising

The Lincoln Star is a member of The Association of Newspaper Classified Advertising Managers, which includes leading newspapers throughout the country, and has for its aim the elimination of fraudulent and misleading classified advertising. The Lincoln Star, as well as every other member of the Association, endeavors to print only truthful Want Ads and will appreciate having its attention called to any advertisement not conforming to the highest standard of honesty.

Ads ordered for seven times and stopped before expiration will be charged for only the number of times the ad appeared and adjustment made at the rate earned.

Careful attention given to mail orders.

Cash in full must accompany out-of-town advertisement.

Advertising offered for irregular insertion takes the one time rate. No ad is taken for less than a basis of three lines. All ads are restricted to their proper classifications and to the regular Lincoln Star style of type. The publishers reserve the right to edit or reject any classified advertising copy.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING INFORMATION.

Errors in advertisement should be reported immediately. The Star will not be responsible for more than one incorrect insertion.

The individual advertisements under the following classifications are arranged in ALPHABETICAL order for quick references.

CLASSIFIED ADVERTISING RATES.

Daily rate for consecutive insertions. Count six average words to a line. These special cash rates apply to advertising paid for within seven days after last insertion. Minimum cash rate is 36 cents.

LIONS HEAR GOVERNOR.
(Special to The Star.)

BRIDGEPORT, Neb., Oct. 15—Bridgeport's Lions club postponed its regular Tuesday noon luncheon this week to Thursday noon, in order to act as hosts to the district governor, who visited the local club on a tour of inspection. A social hour was enjoyed after the program, and the governor made a talk on Lionism.

LAND SALE—$5 down, $5 monthly, buys 40 acres Southern Missouri. Price $200. Send for list. Box 22, Kirkwood, Mo.

SALES AT AUCTION—

Selling Real Estate at Auction is the best method to realize cash same, be it farm, city or town property. Success of such sales depend on the knowledge and experience of the man employed. If you had a fractured limb you would not go to a medicine doctor for treatment, nor if you were defending a criminal charge, you would not go to a collection lawyer. In both cases the man experienced in that line would be employed. Same applies to Real estate auction sales. The best is the cheapest. We will sell at auction: On Oct. 20th, at 2 p. m. at Western, Nebr., three business lots on main street, and interest in 80 acres of Saline county land. On Oct. 22nd, at Milligan, Nebr., the James Turek's 80 acre farm, in Fillmore county, 3½ miles north and ½ mile west of Milligan. On Nov. 10th, at Tobias, Nebr., a 5-room residence and two lots belonging to the estate of Adam Macklin. On Nov. 24th, at Tobias, Nebr., a 5-room residence and two lots belonging to the estate of Solomon Hubiltz. Write us for further information regarding these properties. If you wish to sell your farm or other real estate quick, for cash, use the latest method; don't try to row the Behind-time boat, and expect to win the race against the Auction-Motor boat. With our service you will get the benefit of our 25 years' of experience without extra cost. F. O. Kucera real estate auctioneers, 303 So. 11th St., Lincoln, Nebr.

DISTANCE SPEED RECORDS BROKEN

Chrysler Averages 66.995 Miles for Twenty-four Hours.

Word has just been received by Murphy Motors that William Attwood and A. H. Colliver recently smashed every Australian distance speed record above 100 miles when they drove a Chrysler "70" roadster 1,607.87 miles in 24 hours over the dry bed of Lake Perkolilli. The previous 24-hour average was 61.662 miles an hour, made on the Maroubra speedway. Their new mark is 66.995 miles an hour. They broke the old 24-hour record of 1,480 miles in slightly more than 22 hours.

The run was started at 5 p. m. It was timed, checked and certified by representatives of the Royal automobile club of Australia, which has certified all records made as new official Australian marks.

Australian newspapers point out that the checkings reveal the remarkable steadiness under which the car traveled. The first hour was reeled off at 68.39 miles an hour; the first 100 miles at 68.964 miles an hour; 500 miles at 68.4 miles an hour; 1,000 miles at 68.568 miles an hour. The time for 1,000 miles was 875 minutes, and for 500 miles 438 minutes and 35 seconds.

Checkings and certifications made by the R. A. C. also reveal the car's steady performance ability. The engine was never stopped and only one complete stoppage of the wheels was made—to replace a punctured tire during the last half of the run. No water was added to the radiator from start to finish.

Mr. Atwood, informing Chrysler officials both in Australia and at Detroit of the car's performance, points out that the greatest heat recorded on the radimeter was 140 degrees, and that a thorough examination of the engine at the finish showed that the polishing marks on the bearings were still visible. This, he continues is overwheleming proof that the "70" would have stood up to even greater speeds than were attained.

"Fastest time registered was 78 miles an hour," he declares, "and the car was not nearly 'flat out' at that. After finishing the run the car was driven for several laps at 75 miles an hour.

CHEVROLET TO EXTEND PLANT

Start Building New Assembly Units at Atlanta, Ga.

DETROIT, Oct. 15—An indication that the automobile industry is now looking forward toward increasing prosperity was noted here today with the announcement by the Chevrolet Motor company that construction will start immediately on a new Chevrolet assembly plant in Atlanta.

The Atlanta plant has been made necessary to meet the requirements of the growing demand for Chevrolet cars in the south and at the same time to relieve the Cincinnati plant, which has been operating on an overtime basis to care for southeastern business as well as that from more immediate territory. The Atlanta plant will serve Florida, Georgia and parts of Alabama and South Carolina.

When completed next spring the plant will represent an investment of more than $2,250,000, covering acreage, buildings and equipment. Thirty-one acres have been taken taken over for the Atlanta layout. Building plans call for 410,000 square feet of floor space, including plants, office and driveway shed.

The plant will be one of the largest and finest of its kind in the entire south with a capacity of 350 cars a day. Work will be provided for 1,200 people and the payroll will exceed $8,000 daily.

The assembly plant proper will be a one story unit, 800 by 320 feet, of face brick construction with a monitor steel roof. There will be a Fisher body division of similar construction, 160 by 680 feet, and a parts supply depot 120 by 204 feet. Plans also call for a two story office building, 40 by 204 feet.

Auto Notes

Try to avoid ruts and bumps in the roadway. It saves excessive wear on the springs.

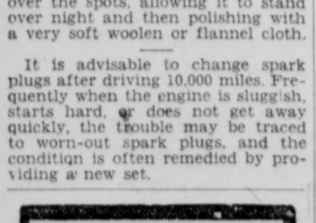
In order to obtain longer wear from tires, shift the tires and rims from front to rear wheels.

Running a car in street car tracks quickly destroys tires. This practice tends to cut the tread and eventually even to sever the cords in the carcass.

Never wait to grind valves until they begin to lose compression. They may be badly pitted, and the longer this is allowed to run, the greater will be the labor of grinding them. Valves should be reseated every 1500 miles to obtain the best results.

Grease and oil spots can be removed from the fenders and body of the car without injuring the glossy finish by rubbing a little lemon oil over the spots, allowing it to stand over night and then polishing with a very soft woolen or flannel cloth.

It is advisable to change spark plugs after driving 10,000 miles. Frequently when the engine is sluggish, starts hard, or does not get away quickly, the trouble may be traced to worn-out spark plugs, and the condition is often remedied by providing a new set.



MOTORS AND THEIR CARE

The Foot Pedals.

The clutch and brake pedals on a car will eventually wear down to a smooth surface, and in an emergency a sudden pressure of the foot may cause the foot to slip off sidewise. Accidents have been caused in this way. Rubber pads should be placed over the pedals, or they should be roughened. To roughen a pedal, it should be taken off and a series of diagonal lines drawn on the surface. By covering the pedal with chalk, the lines can be drawn with any fine point. Then take a diamondnose chisel, and at each point of intersection of the lines, the nose of the chisel should be placed and a blow struck with a hammer. The nose of the chisel will dig into the metal and raise a small projection. A large number of these projections on the pedal will enable the foot to retain its grip.

Cause of Loose Tire Tread.

A loose tread is caused by water soaking into the fabric through tread cuts. It is difficult to prevent a tire from being cut occasionally, and then when it runs over wet roads water enters this cut and follows around the fabric, which soaks it up like a blotter. Then the fabric can no longer hold the rubber tread. To prevent this, keep out the water by sealing the cuts. If they are large, have them vulcanized. If small, use a tire putty. If the cuts are very numerous, have the tread covered with a strip of raw gum and vulcanized, but have it done at once. One bad cut and one wet day is enough to ruin a tire.

A Good Thing Overdone.

Neglected cars are numerous, but overly cared for cars are of about the same number. Next in folly to the car owner who neglects his car is the one who is always fussing around it, throwing out of adjustment parts that do not require touching. Lack of lubrication means rapid wear, but to pour oil continually into the generator bearings will result in the armature becoming soaked with oil and causing a short circuit. Any indicator registering the amount of oil to be carried should be respected and the oil carried to that exact point, not overloaded. When the engine flounders in oil, it quickly carbonizes. The fan belt requires tightening at times, but when too tight it shortens the life of the belt and also springs the fan bracket out of line. Proper care of the car is similar to exercise of the body—it requires a certain maount, but too much is injurious.

Worth Remembering.

One of the first essentials in keeping the car in efficient working order is regular and systematic inspection and lubrication. A thorough inspection should be made once a month, and a systematic inspection should be made every morning before taking the car from the garage. This daily inspection should include such things as the amount of water in the battery, gasoline supply, engine oil and air in tires. Monthly inspection should include wheel alignment, bearing, clutch, valve and gear adjustments, brakes, tires, battery, cooling system, electrical system, tightening of bolts, rattles, in fact, every part of the car.

To Place Rims on Wheels.

There is a right and a wrong way to place rims on wheels, and a right and wrong way to tighten the bolts that hold the lugs. When replacing a rim, have the valve hole at the top of the wheel and see that the valve stem is exactly in the center of the hole. Put all the bolts and lugs on. Tighten up one lug, and then tighten the other lug opposite it. Do not tighten the lugs in regular order, as this may throw the rim out of true on the wheel. After the tire and rim are replaced, spin the wheel to see if it is running true.

Loose King Pin.

One of the commonest mistakes in going over a car for the purpose of putting it in condition is to tighten the front wheels when they are not loose. The motorist shakes the wheels and decides that because they seem loose they need to be drawn up tighter on their axles. He does not realize that the looseness is the king pins. He could decide this point easily by noting that the ends of the axles move with the wheels when the looseness is felt. If the wheels were really loose on the axles, the wheels not the axles, would move when being shaken.

To Remove Tar Spots.

Tar splashes on cars may be removed quickly with eucalyptus oil. The oil, when applied with a soft cloth, immediately softens old and dry tar spots, and effectively removes them without in any way injuring the surface which the tar disfigures. During the cleaning process, the tar-stained cloth should be discarded for a new one as soon as soiled. The oil should be applied liberally, the cleaning commencing at the boundary of the stain and proceeding toward the center.

Clean Out Old Grease.

Front wheel bearings get their lubricant from the hub caps. While the supply of grease in these units may be considered adequate, its condition is a point that merits attention. If the lubricant is silvery in color, the fact is an indication that it is filled with dust and filings. In such a case, it should be changed without delay, for these substances play havoc with the lubricating qualities of the grease.

Tightening Pays Double.

Keeping the body bolts tight has an advantage other than it servees to eliminate troublesome noises and wear. If the bolts are taken up regularly, it means that they are not allowed to become so rusty that the nuts cannot be turned on them. It does not pay to allow this task to remain undone over a long period, for when the motorist gets around to it he probably will find that many of the bolts will have to be replaced or allowed to remain loose.

Clean Upholstery.

Dirt and grit accumulating in the upholstery of closed cars cause it to wear more rapidly than usage ever does. For this reason, apply the whisk broom and vacuum cleaner to the fabric at regular intervals. If the up-holstery is spotted, apply one of the dry-cleaning compounds. When it has evaporated, apply a hot flatiron, wrapped in a wet cloth to the spot. Rub lightly against the nap of the fabric.

Protection and Care of Spare Tire.

Always use a tire cover to protect the spare from the sun and rain. The spare tire should be put into service at frequent intervals to keep the rubber from hardening. If it is kept out of use too long it loses its elasticity. Put it rubber band in a box or drawer and allow it to remain for several weeks particularly during hot weather, and it deteriorates rapidly. A tire will do the same thing.

Brake Efficiency Varies.

When driving in traffic, do not apply the brakes suddenly unless it is absolutely necessary. The car behind may have less efficient stopping equipment and the result will be a collision. Keeping always in mind that the other operator's brakes may be better or less efficient than one's own is a distinct factor in safe driving at all times.

Tips on Washing Car.

Wait until the hood and radiator are cool; use the best chamois on the windows and hood; remove dirt by washing, not spraying; never fuss with electric-lights while the hands are wet.

Painting the Fenders.

Before paint is applied to any metal surface, such as fenders, all the rust must be removed, as no kind of paint or enamel will hold to rust. After the surface has been thoroughly cleaned, two coats of lead should be applied. When this is thoroughly dry, apply one or two coats of good black enamel.

Proper Test for Storage Battery

The hydrometer is used to test the specific gravity or state of charge of a storage battery. These directions should be followed:

Remove vent plugs from cells.

Compress bulb of syringe hydrometer.

Insert small soft rubber tube through vent hole into electrolyte.

Release bulb until sufficient solution is drawn into the tube to cause the hydrometer float to rise.

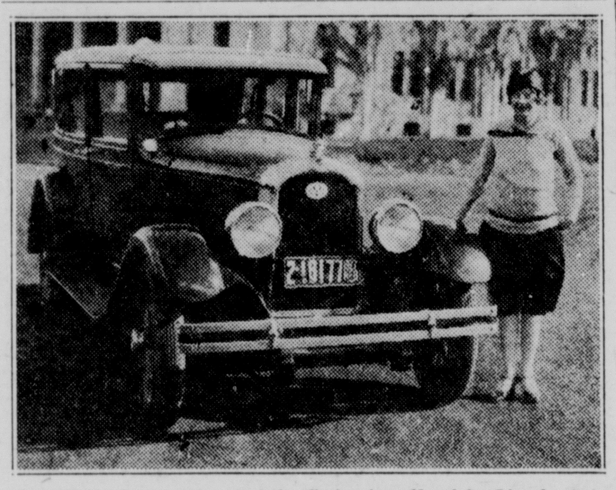
With the syringe in vertical position, so that the float does not touch sides of tube, specific gravity reading is taken on scale at level of solution.

Compress bulb and allow electrolyte to run back into the same cell from which it was taken.

eplace vent plugs.

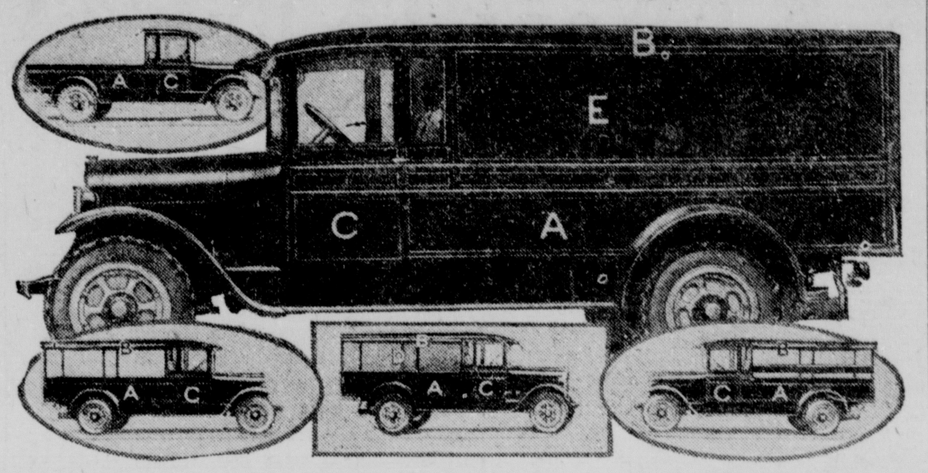
Never try to pass another car until the way is absolutely clear.

Win Lincoln Auto Club Prize.



Mrs. Irwin Schaus who won the first prize offered by Lincoln Automobile Club in its campaign for new members, from June 17 to October 15. The Marmon car was the first prize, and a Frigidaire, the second, which was won by Mrs. A. Prewitt, for the second highest number. Other miscellaneous prizes were given out. The total number of memberships secured reached the 600 mark. Mrs. Schaus will continue in the employ of the club, securing memberships.

Owners Graham Trucks Change Body Economically



Ingenious design of the bodies for Graham Brothers trucks provides the owner with exceptional advantage and economies. The standard line, including express, canopy, screen panel and carryall types is built so that body typess can be changed simply by adding or removing various standard units. In the large view the part marked "A" is identical with the parts "A" in the smaller views. "C," representing the cab, is similar in all types. "B' represents the standard top in all covered jobs, while "D" and "E" respectively are the screen and panel sides added to the canopy type to produce these different models.

Not only is the economy of this design important, but the first cost is reduced to a minimum because of mass production in manufacture.

It Wont Blind

Mitchell, S. Dak.—Mr. W. M. Willy of this city has just invented a new and amazing device for automobiles which absolutely makes it impossible for the dangerous headlights of passing cars to blind you.

The device fits all cars. It can be installed in one minute. It is inexpensive. It is entirely different from anything else previously used for this purpose. The inventor is now ready to place his remarkable discovery on the market.

To get his free sample offer, and a chance to make big steady commissions acting as distributor in your locality, enclose your name and address in an envelope and address it to W. M. Willy, Dept. M-72, Mitchell, S. Dak. No experience necessary.—Advertisement.

SOCIETY PEOPLE In The PICTURES

Sisters—they have played together and worked together all their lives, and when they grow up they often have to part and go their different ways, sometimes to the far corners of the earth. But here in Lincoln there are a number of attractive sisters who are still close to one another and who are very active in the social life of the city.

Mrs. Roy Withers and Mrs. Chauncey W. D. Kinsey are two young matrons whose marriages have not parted them. They were the Misses JoAnn and Allegra Westgate and formerly attended the University of Nebraska.

Mrs. Charles Stuart and Mrs. Richard Kimball are seen together often at social affairs and at family gatherings. They too, are making their homes close to one another. They were formerly Miss Elenore Talbot and Miss Marie Talbot.

Mrs. Arthur H. Edgren and Mrs. Harold W. Wood were once the Misses Leota and Effie Powell.

Mrs. Raymond N. Westover and Mrs. Earl Coryell are among Lincoln's most attractive hostesses. They were the Misses Ada and Margaret Stidworthy.

Mrs. Edward M. O'Shea and Mrs. Donald H. Pegler are seldom seen at a large social function unless they are together. They have lived in Lincoln the greater part of their lives and attended the university here. They have lived in Lincoln the greater part of their lives and attended the university here. Members of Junior League Schedule Two Big Events

Annual Rummage Sales to Open Friday and This Will Be Followed By Carnival at University Coliseum Late In November. Event to be Featured by Style Show

From baby clinics to the gayest and liveliest of carnivals is an easy jump for the energetic and efficient Junior League members. Each member gives of her time to care for the unfortunate children in the Orthopedic hospital and also works earnestly to make money for philanthropic purposes.

Friday the annual Junior League rummage sale will begin at 8:30 o'clock in the morning and continue two days, the members acting as the sales ladies. It will be held at 237 South Eleventh street. Mrs. Vance Traphagen will be in charge and the proceeds will go to the baby clinics of the city. Assisting Mrs. Traphagen will be Mrs. Sam Waugh, collecting chairman; Mrs. Leonard Flansburg, marking chairman; Mrs. Seneca Yule and Mrs. Robert Talbot day chairmen; Mrs. John Lawlor, publicity and Mrs. Donald Pettis, treasurer.

The activity toward which the greatest efforts are being made this year is the big carnival some time around Thanksgiving at the university coliseum. Miss Helen Hall is in charge, plans are being developed rapidly to make the carnival a big social event as well as a profitable venture for the league. There will be booths around the spacious floor of the building and goodies will be sold In the center there will be a large stage and stunts and acts will be given during the evening.

The floor around the stage will be devoted to dancing.

The affair is to last from seven until one o'clock and league members are planning to ask permission for university women to stay out after 12:15. The admission fee will be small and there will be no charge for dancing. A number of groups from towns out in the state are planning to attend the carnival and will probably remain over the weekend. A style show will be one of the features.

Hallowe'en Note Prevails As Fraternities Entertain For Alumni And Freshmen

Another grid classic this week seems to have meant another series of fraternity house dances honoring visiting students from Grinnell and Nebraska alumni. Many of them carried out the Hallowe'en season and decorated their houses with spooks and ghosts to frighten the fair co-eds who are perhaps the real incentive for the rush and work of a house dance.

On Friday night the members of Phi Delta Theta presided at the first house dance of the year honoring their freshmen. About fifty couples were present and an informal entertainment was given during the intermission. The chaperone sfor the affair were: Prof. Mrs. W. E. Lantz, and Mr. and Mrs. C. W. D. Kinsey.

The active chapter of Beta Theta Pi honored a number of their alumnae at a house dance Friday evening, which was attended by about forty-five couples. Out of town guests were: Fred Vette, Clarence Reed and Thomas Adams, all of Beatrice. Other alumnae members were: Robert Lang and Milton Anderson. Chaperoning the affair were: Dr. and Mrs. Fred Teal, Dr. and Mrs. J. E. Pierce, and Dr. and Mrs. A. P. Haller.

Forty couples attended the dance given by Delta Sigma Lambda at the chapter house on Friday evening. The house was decorated in colors suggestive of the fall season and during the intermission a singing and dancing act was given. The chaperones were: Mrs. C. M. Sailes, Dr. and Mrs. Fred W. Eiche, Mr. and Mrs. D. W. Hayes and Mrs. H. C. M. Burgess.

After the game, parties were numerous and gay. One of the largest of these was the one given by Delta Sigma Phi at the chapter

Lincoln Woman Pins Medal On Coat of British Prince

Back in the middle ages Saint George of England won fame on the battle field and his name has endured. The present Prince George, second son of King George and Queen Mary also has won fame, but it is of another kind. He won a medal for proficiency in dancing and none other than Mrs. Ted Cowell of Lincoln had the honor of pinning it on his coat.

Mrs. Cowell lived for two and a half years on the continent, and they were years filled with many eventful experiences — experiences that will gain in glamor and romance the longer she remains in America.

Mrs. Cowell spent her winters in Paris and the summer seasons at Deauville, and though she visited other cities the time spent in the world's gayest city will be cherished the longest.

Wins Dancing Prize.

According to Mrs. Cowell dancing contests are all the rage in Europe. She danced in one and acted as a judge at another. It is along the picturesque Riviera that they were the most popular. It was at a contest in Nice that Mrs. Cowell won her prize, a gold medal. Prince George won his prize in the Casino at Cannes.

Camille de Rynal is sponsoring the events, and is famous because of having tutored Gaby Deslys, Pearl White, and Dolly sisters, and many other well known dancers. Mrs. Cowell studied under him while she was in Paris.

"French men and women alike declare that the American girl is the most attractive in the world, and their greatest ambition is to be like Americans. They even go so far as to chew gum, for they think this is a national custom," declared Mrs. Cowell. Paris may be called the center of fashion, but the styles created there are built for the American figure, which is

Seven Dancing Clubs Plan Informal Parties This Week

There's no difficulty finding a pleasant pastime for a dewy, rainy, or moonlight evening when the dancing club season has opened. A smooth floor, an orchestra that knows its notes, and a partner who knows the latest novelty steps assures three hours of careless joy.

The parties are informal this week, with just a suggestion of the weirdness of Hallowe'en in the free use of black cats and black frocked witches. The majority of the clubs are waiting until the real winter season for the formal parties, with dinner, entertainment de luxe, and fancy favors.

Monday evening the Hokomok club members dance at the Lincoln hotel. It is to be a Hallowe'en party, with three favor dances and refreshments. The members of the committee include Dr. and Mrs. S. W. Alford, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Burr, Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Keim, and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Roper.

On the same evening, the Namid club members are planning an informal dance for Avalon party house. Mr. and Mrs. Harry Schmitz, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sprague, and Mr. and Mrs. John Howe, the officers of the club are planning the affair.

Mrs. Howard Enslow, Mrs. W. L. Anderson, Mrs. L. W. Eggers, and Mrs Edward Leet are making the arrangements for the Fifty Fifty club party Tuesday evening. A Hallowe'en party for the Country club has been planned. A group of feature dances will be enjoyed. Punch and wafers will be served during the evening, and the candies will be in the Halowe'en black and gold.

The regular dancing party of the Allons club is planned for the quite different from the Parisian type.

Saw French at Home.

Mrs. Cowell was able to be in touch with the real home life of the French instead of merely seeing the tourist side of Paris. Some of her best friends are French girls, and she found them charming and gracious. They are extremely fond of social life, but also are very devoted mothers.

Southern France is exotic in its beauty, but it palls when one sees too much of it. Life there is more transient, for during one month it is the "season" here, and the next month there, Paris is marvelous at all times. It offers diversions of all kinds and for all types of people.

Mr. and Mrs. Cowell spent about six months travelling but the rest of the time had an an apartment in Paris. She had the usual difficulty that an American has in learning the French language. "I knew a few words and phrases, and of these not very many that I could use. I soon picked up those that I needed along domestic lines, for that was absolutely essential, and then the rest I learned gradually." Their youngest son, Benny, is a year and a half old and does not speak a word of English. When he and his father come to America in the spring they will bring a French nurse who will stay until the child learns his native language.

The Cowells were on the landing field the night that Lindbergh arrived in Paris. There was a high iron fence between the mass of people and the space where the plane was to land but as soon as Lindy was really there the mob rushed over the barrier as if it were paper.

BIBLE SECTION BEGINS STUDY HEBREW HISTORY.

At the regular meeting of the Bible department of the Lincoln Woman's club, in Y. W. C. A. last Tuesday, Prof. Lewis, the instructor, lectured on "The Beginning of Hebrew History." The speaker stressed the antiquity and growth of the Old Testament and gave a short geographical survey of the early Hebrew wanderings, thus accounting for those tendencies common to the Hebrew people. Their failure at self government and lack of scientific understanding was explained as the natural outgrowth of the fact that their interest was of a purely religious nature.

LINCOLN LEAGUE OPENS WORK FOR THE SEASON.

The first general meeting of the year for the Lincoln League of Women Voters will be held Monday, October 17, at a 12 o'clock luncheon at the Cornhusker hotel. The program for the coming year will be presented and discussed. The program for the day will be on city government. All members and others interested are urged to be present.

The state board of the Nebraska League met at headquarters Wednesday, October 12, to discuss plans for the state convention which is to be held in Hastings, November 9-11 at the Clarke hotel. A number of interesting features will characterize the convention, among them the demonstration of a voting machine, which is coming into such popular use in many places. This machine records all votes accurately, and eliminates the possibility of spoiled ballots. A demonstrator from Jamestown, New York will be present to conduct the exhibition.

On the afternoon of the tenth, Miss Gertrude Ely of Bryn Mawr, Pennsylvania will confer with the new voters, representatives from the college eLagues in the state, to help them with their plans for the year. Miss Ely is the national counsellor for new voters. This conference will be followed by a dinner in honor of the new voters, after which they will present skits and stunts.

Mrs. Roscoe Anderson of St. Louis will speak on the discussion method for round tables and give a demonstration on some subject to be announced later.

Miss Louise Griffith of New York City, assistant national treasurer for the League and who is making a tour of the west will be present to discuss the budget for the coming year, and to help with financial problems.

Miss Ruth McIntosh, regional secretary, will present the subject of the survey of voting habits which the National League is sponsoring just now.

The social event of the convention will be a reception to be given by Mrs. Charles H. Dietrich in honor of some of the out-of-town speakers.

Mrs. Charles H. Dietrich, Mrs. E. M. Forsythe, Mrs. C. L. Clark, and Mrs. Ellery Davis are acting as a committee to complete the details of the program, including the securing of several speakers whose names cannot yet be announced.

Miss Josie Sullivan has been a faithful worker at the state headquarters recently, preparing copy for the Lincoln Directory which is to be published soon.

Mrs. F. H. Putt, of Friend, reports a fine meeting of the Friend League on October 4, held at the home of Mrs. Floyd Bollen. Their next meeting will be October 25, at the home of Mrs. E. A. Dilley.

LEAGUE'S ACTIVITIES IN FULL SWING AGAIN.

The October business meeting of the League occurred on Thursday evening, beginning with the usual dinner in charge of Mrs. Esther Freeman; the dining room and decorations were under the supervision of Miss Bertha Hugg; assistants and servers were Miss Ethel Fritz, Miss Gertrude Auman, Miss Florence Hamm, Miss Erma Austin, Mrs. Etta Berggren, Mrs. Anna Crowley, Miss Esther Craven. Huge bouquets of autumn leaves were at all possible places about the rooms, and alternated with baskets of bright winter flowers along the length of the tables, which were placed in the form of a large letter U.

The program was in direct charge of Miss Emma Craven. Miss Edna Leninger gave a group of songs including "My heart is a haven," and "Life up thine eyes," and responded to an encore. Little Anita Calfot gave a group of solo dances and songs, and was recalled several times. Miss Mildred Lyman accompanied both on the piano. Mrs. Mary E. Wishman, a member of the Business and Professional Women's club at Winona, Minn., spoke briefly of the work of the Salvation Army over the country.

President McNiff announced the club's contribution for a farewell gift to Mrs. Emma Dot Partridge, who has served for several years as national executive secretary.

The commissioners announced the assistants in the departments for the year as follows; Julia Contancer, membership commissioner, will be assisted by, Emma Craven, Mrs. Lola Carney, Bess Maguire and Roxie Lewis. Carrie B. Moore, educational commissioner announced Frederica Cheney, Dr. Ruth Warner and Emma J. Hedges. Miss Mary Beach has selected for the recreation and hospitality deparment, Maud Constancer, Mrs. Emma Shurtleff, Bertha Hugg, Blanche Williams.

Lyda Hafer, commissioner of public affairs, having been obliged to give up her work and leave the city, has tendered her resignation and Bertha Hugg has been selected to succeed to that office.

Guests were introduced as follows: Isobel McDonald, M. D., Bernice Wallace, superintendent of nurses and Grace Nishaus, instructor, all of the Green Gables staff, were the guests of Carrie B. Moore and Frederica Cheney; Alice von Bergen presented Nettie Shively, a teacher in the Saratoga school; Laura Wessel brought Blanche Wideman, who is engaged in secretarial work.

Dr. Ruth Warner is leaving to attend the inter-state medical conference at Kansas City, where 5,000 delegates are expected from mid-western states.

Alice von Bergen goes to Columbus on the 19th and will speak before the Association of Milk Dealers.

TO CONDUCT CLASSES PARLIAMENTARY LAW.

Mrs. Arthur G. Christensen of Fremont, state press chairman, N. F. W. C., gives out the following information regarding the program of work to be done at the state convention of Women's clubs to be held in Kearney, October 25-27:

Mrs. John Slaker of Hastings, past state president of the Nebraska Federation of Women's clubs, and author of "The Main Motion," will conduct her usual morning classes in parliaentary law during the state convention to be held at Kearney, October 25-27.

Two hundred copies of "The Main Motion" were sold to Nebraska club women at their state convention last fall. The increasing popularity of Mrs. Slaker's convention classes; the steady demand for her book; and the systematic study of "The Main Motion" at club meetings as shown in the new yearbooks, indi-

The New Acousticon

If you are hard of hearing, you will be delighted with the Silver Anniversary Model...developed after 25 years of service to the deafened . . . which we are now demonstrating, free.

It is the smallest, the lightest, the least conspicuous of all hearing-aids, with a new and tiny "full-tone" receiver, or earpiece, no bigger than a dime, worn in the ear without headband or other attachment.

Its new principles will enable you to hear clearly and distinctly, and you can wear it without the least embarrassment, without compromising your pride.

May we not show you the fineness, and refinements, of this amazing new instrument

CHAPTER DL, P. E. O. PLANS YEAR'S WORK.

Chapter DL, P. E. O. met Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. W. L. Roberts, 2421 Sewell street. Mrs. Lena Armstrong was assisting hostess. Plans for the year's philanthropic work were outlined by Mrs. Lieuellen, chairman of the philanthropic committee. A discussion of the year's program followed.

The chapter was much interested in a report given by Miss Lulu Wolford, past state president, on the supreme convention which has just closed its twenty-eighth biennial session in Oklahoma City.

The outstanding feature of the convention was the gift of Cottey college at Nevada, Missouri, to the P. E. O., Sisterhood by the founder and president, Mrs. Virginia Cottey Stockard. This is a girls' junior college established forty-three years ago. It is fully accredited to the University of Missouri and is well equipped in every way. The plant consists of six buildings and seven acres of campus valued at $350,000. The P. E. O. Sisterhood will endow the college to the extent of $200,000, said endowment to be paid by installments from the surplus in the general treasury fund.

The convention reported the memorial library built at Mt. Pleasant, Iowa, in commeoration of the seven founders of the organization had been completed and was being rapidly equipped. A number of gifts were made during the convention, among them being a grand piano and a brown mahogany spinet desk. Motion pictures were shown of the breaking of the sod, laying of the corner stone and dedication of the library.

A unique feature on the program was musical numbers by the Bayone Indian school. A number of Indians appeared in native costume and blankets—among them, Princess Ataloa, of international note as a musician. Another special feature was a musical tea put on by Oklahoma City's quadruplets, now twelve years of age.

Oklahoma City was of unusual interest, being but twenty-four years old and having had a most wonderful growth and development. It is a city of fine churches and splendid business blocks.

Miss Emma Mead of Alexandria, S. D., corresponding secretary of the W. C. T. U. in that state, will be a guest of the convention.

EGYPT DESCRIBED TO LOTUS DELPHIANS.

Miss Lucille Holfenstein, for the past six years an instructor at Assuit, Egypt, in a school sponsored by the United Presbyterian church, spoke Tuesday afternoon before the Lotus chapter of the Delphian society. Her subject was the religious and social life of Egypt.

Miss Holfenstein, whose home is in Iowa and who is a former Iowa school teacher, is visiting her sister in Lincoln. She plans to return to Assuit next year as a missionary.

Miss Holfenstein, one of the few Christians ever permitted to enter a Mohammedan mosque, described the social customs and religious beliefs of the Mohommedans and stated that although they still cling to their religion they are rapidly learning to send their children to Christian schools, for the native schools do not give nearly as liberal an education as do the foreign schools.

In commenting on modern Egyptian art the speaker told the society that most of the art in Egypt today is merely a replica of ancient Egyptian art and is on a strictly commercial basis, meant only to sell to tourists. Egypt today, she stated, has no originality either in its ceramics or paintings.

House Guests Miss Alice Howell.

Mrs. Wilbur C. Knight, of Laramie, Wyo., and Mrs. Wyman Kirby, of Sedro-Woolley, Wash., are the house guests of their sister, Miss Alice Howell.

Mrs. James Wilson, chairman of home economics, demonstrated gesso painting and picture frames and boxes and he followed this with samples of cushions and made by Mrs. L. A. Pixley, Mrs. J. J. Nelson and Mrs. H. E. Sturm.

New members who joined were: Miss Esther Shafer, Mrs. J. F. Mohr and Mrs. Peterson. Mrs. J. J. Nelson of Lakeview, was a guest.

The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. H. E. Sturm on West O street, October 26. The literature department will be in charge of the program; home reading, including the short story and children's magazines, will be discussed.

TO CONDUCT CLASSES IN PARLIAMENTARY LAW.

cates the wide interest in parliamentary law which has been aroused through Mrs. Slaker's valuable contribution to the annual state convention programs.

The June issue of the Iowa Club Woman paid the following tribute to Mrs. Slaker: "The quietest, most unobtrusive, yet one of the most important persons on the platform during the state convenion at Davenport, was Mrs. John Slaker of Hastings, Neb., parliamentarian of the convention. She was instantly equal to every emergency and her decisions were always given with a full sense of justice to everybody while adhering strictly to unchangeable law."

During a visit in Washington, D. C., last year, Mrs. Slaker was invited to conduct for a time the parliamentary law classes of the widow of Gen. Henry M. Robert, author of "Robert's Rules of Order."

PURITAN BACKGROUND AND COLONIAL WRITERS.

The literature department of the Lincoln Woman's club met for the first time this year in Faculty hall, Thursday. Miss Josie Sullivan presided, Mrs. C. E. Burton being out of town. This is an accredited department and Miss Sullivan explained to the new members how to obtain credits in the University. Prof. Wilcox spoke on "The Puritan Background and Colonial Writers'. He outlined the work.

Model Home To Be Feature Of Convention Of Woman's Clubs

Housewives from all parts of the state will gather in Kearney October 25, 26 and 27 for the annual meeting of the Nebraska Federation of Woman's clubs.

One of the chief attractions this year will be the Gold Medal model home. The home exhibit will cap the climax of the "Better Equipped Home" campaign, which has been conducted by the federation during the past year as part of a national movement.

"The Gold Medal Home should attract thousands of women," said Mrs. Will Minier, president of the federation. "The home was erected from plans drawn by Hugh McClure who won a gold medal for the best plans exhibited in a national contest. Also the model home has been decorated and furnished from cellar to attic under the close supervision of various committee chairmen of the federation. All the latest improvements have been installed in this model home, including the latest electrical appliances. Special attention has been given to the draperies and the art of the home, also to the kitchen. One of the proud possessions of the kitchen will be a knife sharpener. Housewives appreciate this handy instrument in the kitchen. Every woman in the state is invited to attend this exhibit, even though they are not members of the state federation."

Mrs. Minier said that the home will be attractive because it is a moderate priced home and the furnishings and decorations fit the purse of the family of moderate means.

Following the convention the home will be thrown open to public inspection.

Do you feel like going back to bed?

AFTER YOU have dressed your children, fed them, and sent them off to school, do you feel like going back to bed? Do you shrink from your daily task of dish-washing and house-cleaning? Are you tired? Discouraged?

Many women have found that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is an excellent tonic for that tired feeling. It builds up the appetite. It induces natural sleep. Read what these two women say about it.

GAINED 18 POUNDS

Cleveland, Ohio:—"After having my first baby I lost weight no matter what I did. I went down to 98 pounds. My neighbor told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it helped her very much, so I tried it. After taking four bottles I weigh 116 pounds. It has just done wonders for me and I can do my housework now without one bit of trouble.' Mrs. M. Reissinger, 10004 Nelson Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

Remember this package. None genuine without the signature of Lydia E. Pinkham.

NERVOUS SPELLS GONE

St. Paul, Minn.:—"I used to get nervous spells that would last a couple of days and were so bad that I was afraid in my own house in broad daylight. One day a little booklet was left on my porch and I read it through. I found a case similar to mine. I bought Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and have had fine results. Now housekeeping doesn't tire me." Mrs. Jack Lorberter, 704 Dellwood Place, St. Paul, Minnesota.

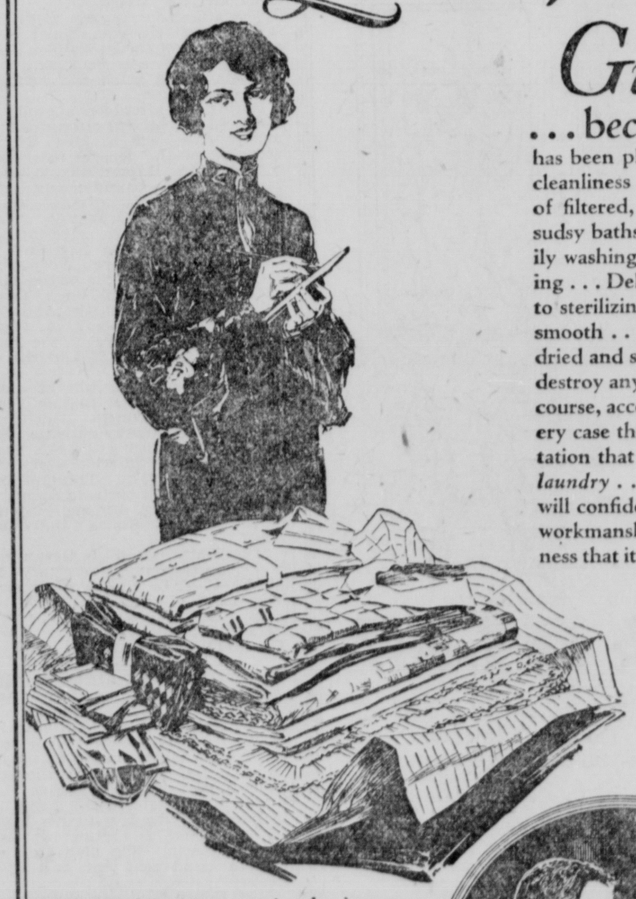
Laundry-washed-clothes Guard Health



...because every step in the laundry process has been planned for complete sterilization as well as cleanliness . . . For instance, more than 600 gallons of filtered, rainsoft water are used in the numerous sudsy baths and velvety rinses given the average family washing . . . The ironing process is equally purifying . . . Delicately adjusted ironing rolls, steam-heated to sterilizing temperatures, purifying the fabrics as they smooth . . . Many articles that require no ironing are dried and sterilized in heated air currents that speedily destroy any lurking foe to health . . . Methods vary, of course, according to the types of materials . . . But in every case the process insures hospital standards of sanitation that definitely guard health . . . Visit a modern laundry . . . Then you, like millions of other women, will confidently turn to the laundry—for the superior workmanship, amazing economy, and absolute cleanliness that it can give you . . .

BLOCK AND BRIDLE CLUB PLANS SHOW

Tenth Annual Baby International Will Be Held October 22 at Ag College.

The tenth annual Baby International will be held Saturday, October 22, in the judging pavilion at the college of agriculture. The Baby International is an amateur show sponsored by the Block and Bridle club, composed of men majoring in animal husbandry. It has for its purpose the promotion of a greater interest among students in fitting and showing live-stock. Freshmen are especially urged to take part in the show because of the training received and also the enjoyment incoming in competition for the several prizes given in each class.

Several days before the show each contestant expresses the type of animal he wishes to show.

After he is assigned to the animal he immediately starts preparing to pass the closest scrutiny given by any judge and also trains him to show to the very best advantage. Everyone is assured of as good an animal as his rival. However, the judges pay no attention to the quality of the animal but judge only the condition in which the animal has been fitted and the way the animal is shown.

There will be six different classes of stock with approximately eight to ten animals in each class. Plans are for two classes of cattle two classes of sheep, two classes of horses and one class of hogs. A representative of the Kansas Agricultural college at Manhattan, will judge all classes.

During the show there will be several acts of entertainment with music throughout the entire evening. After the awards are announced there will be a dance in the student activities building. Also sponsored by the Block and Bridle club.

University Notes

The October issue of the Nebraska Alumnus came off the press Saturday. The month's feature is an appraisal of Samuel Avery, chancellor emeritus, by associates most intimately acquainted with him, including Regent William P. Warner, J. E. Miller, former regent, Fred W. Upson, chairman of the department of chemistry, and Irving S. Cutter, former dean of the college of medicine. Other articles include a discussion of delayed fraternity pledging by John E. Whitten, '28, and "The Chief Interest of a University," by Dean R. Leland, Presbyterian student pastor. V. Royce West, '27, is editor of the Alumnus.

Preparations for the presentation of John Philip Sousa and his band at the University coliseum November 1 are going forward in the student activities department. Sousa's band will give two concerts on that date as a part of the university's new policy of bringing educational and cultural attractions to the huge new Coliseum, which was built for athletic purposes. A new cyclorama costing $2,000 has been installed on the coliseum stage, and special lighting effects will be used for the presentation of the band.

Prof. F. G. Blood af the college of business administration will make a talk Wednesday evening before the International Direct Mail Advertising Association convention and the National Associaton of Teachers of Marketng Advertisting, meeting in Chicago. The subject of his paper will be "Teaching Direct Mail Advertising to University Students."

Carl Madsen, a graduate of the electrical engineering department in 1926, was the speaker at the meeting of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers in the mechanical engineering building Thursday evening. Having just returned from a radio installation enagement in Siberia, Mr. Madsen spoke on his experiences abroad. He will leave soon to continue radio engineering at East Pittsburgh, Pa.

Eighteen members of the college of engineering faculty motored to Lawrence, Kas., Friday for the meeting of the Nebraska-Kansas section of the Society for the Promotion of Engineering Education. Dean O. J. Ferguson, Prof. C. W. Duff, and Prof. J. W. Haney spoke at the business sessions.

Two members of the university maculty, Prof. John D. Hicks, chairman of the department of hiseory, and Gilbert H. Doane, librarian, are contributors to the Dictionary of Ameerican Biography which will appear in March. Prof. Hicks has written articles on Frederick Billings, William V. Allen, John A. Creighton, Oliver P. Morton, J. Sterling Morton, Lorenzo Crounse, and Ignatius Donnelly. Mr. Doane writes of Ethan Allen and Ira Allen, Thomas Chittenden and Martin Chittenden, early governors of Vermont, and Nathaniel Chipman.

ACOUSTIC AID FOR COLISEUM

Cyclorama Costing $2,000 Being Installed at University.

Used First Time For Sousa's Band Concerts, Nov. 1.

A new cyclorama costing $2,000 has just been installed on the stage of the university coliseum, and will be used for the first time when Sousa's band is brought to Lincoln for two concerts on November 1.

The cyclorama is in three sections and is made of durable fireproof material. Being hung in a wide semi-circle back of the performers on the coliseum stage, it will not only greatly enhance the appearance of the stage but will serve as an additional aid to the acoustics of the building. The huge arched ceiling of the coliseum is already equipped with a special kind of acoustic corrector, a light, porous board made of cane pulp. With the wooden floor and these other properties productions can be put on at the coliseum with no trouble from echoes or sound reflection.

Another feature being arranged for the presentation of Sousa's band is a system of special overhead lighting effects. All these will also be put into use when the Chicago Grand Opera company is brought here in March.

The university will present Sousa's band on November 1 as the first of a series of cultural attractions in the coliseum, in accordance with a new policy of using the huge new athletic building for such events in addition to athletic purposes.

Sousa will arrive in Lincoln on Tuesday morning, November 1, and will be escorted through the city with a parade. He will speak at the Rotary club and in the afternoon will give his first performance, that will include a special educational feature for the school children who will attend. His second performance will be in the evening.

The "march king" who is seventy-two years old, is this year celebrating the thirty-fifth anniversary of his famous band and the fiftieth anniversary of his career as a conductor.

University Notes

Dean J. E. LeRossignol of the college of business administration spoke to the Omaha Ad club there Tuesday evening on "Sales Resistance."

Dr. William H. Adolph, new member of the faculty in the chemistry department, spoke to the Nebraska section of thee American Chemical Societey Tuesday evening on "Phases of China's Food Problems." The habits of food economy in China are interesting and somewhat practical, Dr. Adolph brought out, and may well be studied for application in this country. In the absece of a dairy industry China is able to supply the vitamines and other necessary food elements, and soy-beans take the place of meat.

The weekly lecture at the Morrill hall auditorium Sunday will be given by F. G. Collins, assistant curator of the museum, and will be entitled "The Romantic Origin of the Smithsonian Institution." The lecture will deal largely with the part played by the noble house of Percy, the forbears of Smithson, in English and American history. After the lecture some illustrative lantern slides will be shown. It begins at 4 o'clock.

The Lincoln Garden club met in Morrill hall auditorium Thursday evening. Two films of motion pictures entitled "Tulip Land" were shown, illustrating the tulip bulb industry in Holland, and Dr. E. H. Barbour, curator of the museum, spoke on "Plants of the Cargoniferous Age," illustrating his talk with colored lantern slides. Membership in the Lincoln Garden club is not restricted, being open to all those interested in gardening and plants. Mrs. C. B. Towle is the president.

The Awgwan, campus humorous magazine was published for the first time this year, Monday. The October issue featured a parody on Milt Gross, a sketch on the "acting" officials on the campus, and editorials. Munro Kezer, '29, is the editor.

Prof. R. B. Wilcox of the English department will give a series of six lectures at open meetings of the York, Neb., Woman's club, beginning Tuesday, October 18 and continuing monthly. The subjects: Standards and Tendencies in the Modern Novel; The End of Victorianism; The American Novel; The Russian Novel; Social Satire; The Significance of Joseph Conrad.

School Will Have Surplus of 5,000 Bushels Potatoes

Out of a total crop of 8,560 bushels of potatoes, grown under irrigation on 42 acres of land, the Kearney state industrial school for boys will have a surplus of 5,000 to 6,000 bushels which will be sold to other institutions or to private purchasers, according to information given out by the board of control.

Part of them will go to supply the tuberculosis hospital at Kearney, which will pay the industrial school for them at the current market rate. What will be done with the rest depends on whether it will be more advantageous to ship them in carload lots to institutions located elsewhere, or to sell them at Kearney and let the institutions needing potatoes buy them locally.

The average yield on the 42 acres was 213 bushels to the acre. The tubers are worth approximatelty $1 a bushel.

Santa's Problem Simplified

Every year Santa's problem becomes more simplified. Millions of people are realizing that a Photograph is the most appropriate and appreciated gift that they can give. A Photograph means a long remembrance. The recipients realize that they have been remembered individually. They can buy anything that you give them except your Photograph. The artistry that has been developed within this profession makes a present day Photograph a real treasure. Photographs are the happy solution to the ever old question—"what shall I give."

Minerva's Mail

Take Your Troubles to Minerva.

Four Human Examples Are Cited As Reasons Why Married Women Should Not Work Outside The Home—Found — A Man Who Is True To One Woman.

Four Experiences.

Should married women work? "Carmelite", in addition to giving praise that is carefully tucked away in my heart, has four experiences to offer on this all-absorbing topic. Not one of these cases, where the wife worked or wanted to work, has turned out happily. But would they have "lived joyfully ever after" in any event? Wouldn't number 1 have cheated any way? Wouldn't number 2 have run away with a flapper even though he had to take the train? Do you think number three would make decent provision for his wife even if she stayed at home? And lastly, number four. Wouldn't the wife, if she were the nagging, small-minded sort, have found some other subject to "crow" about if she never had been independent?

I don't know. But it does seem to me that the trouble in the cases mentioned by "Carmelite" were a part of the individuals themselves and not so much the circumstance of working outside the home.

Dear Minerva: I have been wanting to write to you for a long time, but I have been mighty busy as I have had a house full of company all summer. They are all gone now so I will get some of the things off my mind.

No matter how busy I am I always take time to read your Mail. I always enjoy your answers. I think the advice you give is very safe and sound.

I want chiefly today to say one or two words about women working after marriage. I have four friends whose experiences seem to me to point a pretty god moral.

Friend number one. She only wanted to work until they got their home paid for. She worked every day for four years, then found out that her husband had two big raises in pay that he hadn't told her about. He acted so queer about it that they started a quarrel that ended in the divorce court.

Friend number two wanted a "really good car." Se she went to work. The next week after they got the car paid for her husband took it and a little flapper that worked in the office with him and she has never seen either of them since.

Friend number three has been working eight years. Her husband expects her to keep it up. His work takes him away from home more than half the time, and when he is gone he writes to her once in two or three weeks. Has not given her a dollar in two years and when she tells him he ought to give her money he says, "Why, you are working, ain't you?"

Friend number four is the worst case of all. She started working against her husband's wishes. He made good money and from the very first turned it all over to her, but she always talked about being independent and having her own money. So one bright summer day he just left her and the state, and when she tried to get alimony for herself and little boy, he wrote her a letter that said something like this:

"You always wanted to earn your own living. You never missed a chance to let everyone know that you earned your own money. You made me out a poor fish who could not take care of his wife. Now I am giving you a chance to work all the rest of your life. You will never get a cent from me."

So, you see, I emphatically do not believe it pays in any way for woman to step outside of her home sphere and earn money after she is married. It isn't the normal thing to do and someone always suffers for it. CARMELITE.

Not All Cheats.

There are decent men in the world, and lots of them. More times than one have I gone so far as to express my faith in that assertion.

"Twenty-nine," a cynical young woman, who has made her living for some years rubbing elbows with the males she scorns, declared that I didn't know my men if I could believe such drivel. For there isn't one of the entire sex, in her opinion, who will not cheat upon occasion. Which condition of affairs, she holds responsible for the fact that, in spite of several enticing offers of marriage, she prefers to remain single.

I, too, have mingled with the workaday throng for quite some time. Nor do I confine the knowledge of the male to any one variety. And still, I have my faith. It is shared by others, as witness this letter from "The Wife of One Decent Man:"

Dear Minerva: I am afraid that "Twenty-nine" is the one to show her ignorance when she says there no decent men in this world and that they will all cheat.

They will not all cheat and there are surely decent men in the world. I married one of them. He was twenty-six before he kissed a girl and that girl was myself. That is the truth. When he took a girl out he never kissed her goodnight, and he liked some of them pretty well, too, but he figured that he didn't love them, so why kiss them. He could enjoy their company without the kisses.

He also spent sixteen monhts in France during the war. He came back the way he went, clean, and left nothing to regret. The first thing he told his mother on returning was that he came back the way he went. I am the only girl or woman to have his kisses or his love. There is one wife at least who can truthfully say that, so you see there is one decent, clean man who believes in a single standard. He wanted a good girl and he stayed that way both for her sake and for his own. And he is one of the best-looking men I've seen, and all the girls and women like him pretty well. So he could cheat if he wanted to, but he will not, under any consideration. We have been married nearly seven years and feel as we did seven years ago.

And I know one other decent man, too. Perhaps I've been fortunate in my men friends. THE WIFE OF ONE.

The Bright Side.

Dear Minerva: I am visiting in your beautiful city of Lincoln, as I frequently do.

Looking through The Star I saw a letter written by "Pearl." How unhappy she must be, judging from all the bitterness and, yes, hate she puts into her letter. I wonder if she couldn't look on the bright side a little bit. If I were she I would work hard to get out of this city and go where I was more content. If I couldn't do that I'd boost instead of knocking. It would help her to get along better. Once in a while it's hard for good and honest people to get work, but I find that the person who is willing to work cheerfully and do his best is not out of work long. I know of a young man who is out of work a great deal but he's always knocking. Somebody is always taking advantage of him, to hear him tell it He is so afraid he'll do a little more than his share. The fact is he isn't worth hiring. But his cry is always —he doesn't get a fair chance.

Now about these old retired farmers. If "Pearl" thinks they have such a snap I wish she could try farming and I think if she saved up enough to retire she would have to get into the habit of saving. Where there is one farmer worth a hundred thousand dollars, there are half a dozen who went bankrupt the last year.

Oh yes, they have a crop around Lincoln this year but don't get jealous of them. They have earned it. And don't grumble because they live plain. Their digestion will be better and they won't feel so bitter toward their fellow men as some folks do.

Now these dear old bachelors like "Jack" and "Roger" are a jolly good sort in a way. I know because my brother is one. He is not so young —travels a great deal and has what to him is a good time.

But what does he know about bringing up children? He has been brought up in a careful home and is big and strong enough not to go astray. But what about children who haven't been shielded through their tender years? There may be some religious radicalism in Lincoln but there are more people that need a little religion than there are who have too much.

Good wishes to you, "Pearl." If you could only get out on the farm and have to work hard for your vegetables, fruit, milk and eggs—have plain, healthy food, little money, pure, clean air and thoughts you'd be a great deal happier. —MOTHER GRACE.

Building or Destroying.

Dear Minerva: It is recorded in the Scripture that after a three years drouth, followed by a famine that took heavy toll throughout all Israel, the wicked Ahab went out to meet the prophet Elijah, and greeted him with the question, "Art thou he that troubleth Israel?" And Elijah answered, "I have not troubled Israel; but thou, and thy father's house, in that ye have forsaken the commandments of the Lord, and thou that hast followed Baalim."

Elijah knew that Ahab was the real trouble of Israel, and said, "Thou art the man," but like many a modern Ahab, the king sought to fasten the blame upon innocent shoulders.

The reading of Roger's latest attack of anti-reformer-probia brought this incident about Ahab and Elijah to my mind. Ahab and —Jezebel hated all the prophets and sought to put them to death. They turned their backs upon the true God, and built altars upon which to offer sacrifice to Baal. There is a striking analogy. The modern worshippers of Baal try, like Ahab, to dodge the responsibility for the woes of the nation. It isn't just exactly the thing to slay the prophets nowadays, so they take it out in launching propaganda, and yearning for the tide to turn so that the "reformers" can be banished to St. Helena or some other lonely isle far off the beaten track.

There is something behind all this anathematization of "reformers." When a man starts out with "I hold no brief for the saloon, and hope they will never come back, but—" just keep your eye upon him, and your ears open, and "in three "shakes of a sheep's tail" as old pioneers used to say, yiu will hear him presenting rabid wet arguments against prohibition, scoffing at the feasibility of law enforcement, and lambasting the "reformers" as "peanut-minded" and everything else he can press into the tongue-lashing he is giving them. Listen to a group of wets and they will all tell you the "reformers" are the troublers of Israel, but the Lord knows better, and so do we. He who does not know better is asinine indeed.

Thanks to the "reformers" of preceding generations, who had the vision of a cleaner world, and the "reformers" of a more recent era who worked to make that vision closer to realization, the old world has been purged of some of its filth, in spots, and the tables areno longer full of comit nor the streets with sickening stench. God never promised that all sin and sorrow would be taken out of this present world—the promise relates to that city four-square into which nothing shall enter "that defileth, neither whatsoever worketh abomination, or maketh a lie." But the fact that God never promised to make a Utopia of the present world does not mean that we should take a hopeless view of the situation, hold out the flag of truce to the enemy, or make a compromise with Satan, as some wish to do.

Those who are broadcasting their poison propaganda to pave the way to the reapeal of the eighteenth amendment tell us the law can't be enforced, and that booze is more plentiful now that it was in the old days of the saloon. Even a braying jackass would have sense enought to know better. Why all the howl for repeal if it is more plentiful now and easier to get than in the past? They haven't succeeded in pulling the wool over anyone's eyes.

In 1902 there were thirty-six saloons and ten breweries or brewery distributing houses owned and operated in Lincoln. Today the stinkholes are gone, and Lincoln is one of the cleanest, the most beautiful, and the most progressiv of cities, building new churches and schools, always an evidence of healthy growth. Everybody recognizes her rapid growth except thoss "everlasting grouches" who hope to find a beer barrel on top the supports of the pearly gates of the new Jerusalem, and all its golden streets flanked by saloons, pool halls, and dance halls.

Thirty-six saloons in Lincoln in 1902 was bad enough, but there were other places with still darker records. Back in the 70's the little town of Greenville, Ohio, with a population of onlv 2,600 boasted of thirty-four saloons, according to James M. Hiatt in "The Ribbon Workers," a book published in 1878. Think of a town of 2,600 people with thirty-four saloons, and then go down on your knees and thank God that the world is slowly growing better despite the radicalism and "peanut-mindedness" of the anti-reformers.

Along about the twenty-fifth of July a justice of the peace by the name of Thumm was stoned to death one Sunday down in West Virginia by five disciples of the "personal liberty" idea. He had stoped on his way to church to ask the quintet to disperse from a Sunday afternoon drinking-party, and the five resented his interference with their "personal-liberty" to desecrate the Lord's Day with their drunken debauchery. But this defiance to the law is nothing new. This element has always been lawdefying, and always will be, and the Mississippi flood, with all its damage, was a little thing in comparison to the havoc of life, property, health and happiness done by that other and graver evil that from the beginning of the world has destroyed men's souls. Billy Sunday was right when he said several years ago that the opposition to equal suffrage "wriggled its rotten carcass out of hell," and the opposition to prohibition wriggled forth from the same source.

Once again the question fits into the case: "Are you helping to build a nation, or are you helping to destroy one?" Will future generations rise up to bless your memory for the dreams you sherished in your heart, or will it be their task to tear down the ugly foundation you began, and build a better structure? "Where there is no vision the people perish, but he that keepeth the law, happy is he. There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death. Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people. He that justifieth the wicked, and he that condemneth the just, even they both are abomination to the Lord. They that forsake the law praise the wicked, but such as keep the law contend with them."

Are you helping to build a nation, or are you helping to destroy one: —ARDENT.

Regarding Etiquette.

Dear Minerva: I would like you to answer a few questions of etiquette for me. I could look in the etiquette books, but most of them are for people who lead such formal lives and in such large homes that they don't seem to apply to me.

How does one eat olives? How does one eat asparagus? I've wondered all summer, but just got around to asking you.

Does a girl take a boy's arm on the street? Should I wait for him to help me in the car, or out of it? Should we sit in the car?

My boy friend's mother asked me to come to their house for a week end. It is in another city. Should I go? What kind of clothes should I have. Please tell me, Minerva.—LOUISE.

A.—Eat olives with your fingers. It is the best form now to eat asparagus with a fork, as the old finger method seemed rather messy and awkward.

I notice all the young things do hang onto the boy's arm, but it seems rather unnecessary. As a matter of appearance, I would not do it, although I do not see any great moral issue involved. I should think the boys would prefer a girl who stood on her own feet. In this day, it does not seem necessary for a boy to help a girl in or out of a car. Most of them, independent, free, agile, hop in and out as the boys do, and I like it. I've never cared for the clinging vine. Don't sit in the car late at night. It may be harmless, but it gives the neighbors an excellent opportunity to gossip. Go into the house when you come home.

As long as the boy's mother asked you, go, of course, if your own mother is willing. Buy your own ticket, pack your bag, and go. A jersey or flannel dress, or one of some novelty material, tailored, a felt hat, and fall coat, for the train. One afternoon dress for Sunday, or church, if they attend, and the afternoon. If you know there will be some sort of outdoor sports, try to have a suitable outfit for that, or an evening dress, if there is a formal party. You will probably only be there from Friday night to Sunday evening, so don't overburden yourself.

"Temporal Happiness"

I seek not to be rich, but happy;
The one lies in bags, the other in content, which wealth can never give. We are apt to call things by wrong names. We will have prosperity to be happiness; and adversity to be misery; though that is the school of wisdom, and oftentimes the way of eternal happiness.

"Turn to the Right"

A JOHN GOLDEN famous success, written by Winchell Smith, a play so distinctly human, yet a gripping love story of refreshing humor. A heart warming play with some unforgettable characters, this will be a household word after the first performance. This is being offered for the fourth week of the second season of the "Pierre Watkin" players in Lincoln. Here, too, you may hear the VERY popular "REVELERS." What more can you ask? At the Liberty Theater.

After You Have Searched

THE shops o'er for furniture that will meet some particular problem of interior furnishing —after you have dispaired of finding just the right thing—know that you can have it MADE TO ORDER at VANCE AND HOLM'S! They can also supply you with unusually effective window draperies, and will furnish, if you wish, complete interior decorating service of a high order.

It was the week before little Willie's birthday and he was on his knees at his bedside, in a very loud voice petitioning Divine Providence for presents. "Please send me," he shouted, "a bicycle a tool chest, a—"

"What are you praying so loud for?" his younger brother interrupted. God ain't deaf."

"I know he ain't," said little Willie, winking toward the next room, "but Grandma is."

Juvenile Feet

What glorified things pajamas have become—witness those lovely boudoir lounging pajamas—nothing could be more gorgeous!

A Few "Don'ts" In The Care of Fur Coats!

"Don't rub the fur with the palm of your hand, as the friction is injurious to the top hair.

"Don't hang a fur coat on a hook, or throw it careless over a chair, as this will cause it to lose its shape.

"Don't dry wet furs by hanging in the sun or near any kind of heat as this dries up the natural oil of the skin, causing cracking and ripping.

"Don't send furs to be dry cleaned as the cleaning fluids may cause it to become brittle and lose its luster.

"Don't permit your coat to be buttoned too tightly when sitting for a long time, as on automobile trips. The resultant strain on the back of the garment may cause rips and tears."

Modern Eve Would Like to Shop for You

I like to match samples for you; to pick out a gift or two for little Johnnie's third birthday; to pick up a clever cushion or lamp for your home; to buy your hats, shoes, gloves and hosiery, if you want me to; to tell you where you can get the best dried prunes.

CLUBDOM

ECHOES FROM WOMEN'S CLUBS OVER THE STATE.

The first meeting for the year of the Nelson Woman's club was held Tuesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. F. A. Scherzinger. The new president, Mrs. Lillian Burd, presided. The occasion was in the form of a musicale, as it was "guest" day with the club, and an informal tea. Thirty-seven were present and the guest list included the teachers of the Nelson schools. During the time set aside for business, a number of names were added to the membership roll.

The program rendered was:

Piano solo, The Flaterer(Chaminade)—Mrs. J. E. Ingram.

Vocal solo (a) Somewhere a Voice is Calling, (b) One Fleeting Hour—Mrs. Will Bardsley.

Piano solo, Spring Song (Mendelssohn)—Willa McHenry.

The new yearbooks were also distributed, being neat little orange colored folders containing the well-planned and interesting program for the club work during the ensuing year.

Tea and frosted tea cakes were served by a committee consisting of Mesdames W. L. Bunn, L. P. Rickard and A. A. Swartz.

The Polk county federation of woman's clubs will convene at the United Brethren church in Shelby on Monday for the fourth annual meeting. Polk will be represented by four clubs, the total membership of which is about forty-two. Mrs. John Inks of Shelby, formerly vice president, is now acting president, on account of the vacancy made by the departure of Mrs. C. H. Skinner, Polk, for New York. Mrs. W. R. Kepner of Osceola is secretary and Mrs. A. C. Morrill of Stromsburg, treasurer. Mrs. Maude Nuquist of Osceola, president of the fourth district, will be present and deliver the address of the day.

BRIDGEPORT, Neb., Oct. 15—Twenty-seven representatives from nine rural women's clubs of Morrill county, that are taking the "Make the Home Beautiful" project work of the state university extension service, met with Miss Rizpah Douglas of the department on Thursday, for the first meeting of the present year. Arrangement of flowers in the home and rejuvenation of kitchen furniture were studied.

DELPHIANS HEAR A RETURNED MISSIONARY.

The first meeting of the Daleth Delphian chapter was held in the council rooms of the C. C. White building, Monday, 7:30 p. m. Members of the Athenian Delphian chapter were guests. Mrs. O. H. Bimson reviewed the first lesson of the course. Miss Lucille Helfenstein, a returned missionary from Egypt, gave a talk. Light refreshments were served.

MRS. SHELDON SPEAKS TO A. A. U. W. AT BREAKFAST.

The American Association of University Women, Lincoln branch, held a breakfast at the Lincoln hotel, Saturday morning. This was the first general meeting of the year. Miss Lula Runge, president, presided. The arrangements were in charge of Mrs. Wayne Pringle, assisted by Mrs. C. Petrus Peterson and Mrs. C. L. Clark. About 100 members and guests were present.

Mrs. Addison E. Sheldon, state president of the A. A. U. W. was the speaker. Her subject was "Once Over." Mrs. Sheldon has recently returned from a European trip of three and one-half months. Mrs. Sheldon was accompanied on the trip by Miss Alice Sanderson, Nebraska '27. They left Montreal about the middle of June for London, and spent some weeks in England, taking many motor trips to interesting and historic places. They later visited Germany, Austria, Italy, Belgium, Switzerland, Holland, Scotland and Ireland.

While in London, Mrs. Sheldon visited the headquarters of the International Association of University Women, and the hall of residence for university women studying in London. The International association is housed in a building owned by the British association. Carved in stone over the entrance to this great building is this inscription: "In the year 1926 the women graduates of Great Britain were able with the geenrous help of their friends in this and other countries to acquire the ancient hall of Sir John Crosby, and to erect on the site of the home of Sir John Moore this quadrangle, dedicated to the encouragement of learning and the promotion of friendship between the women of all nations." This building is located near the Thames river, in the literary and historic part of London. Any graduate woman student member of the association of University Women, working in research or graduate work is always eligible for residence in this hall. Mrs. Sheldon also visited the French association of University Women headquarters in Paris.

Mrs. Sheldon described as the most picturesque countries including the British Isles, Holland and Belgium. Judging from a survey of the landscape, Germany appeared to be the most thrifty country, as there were no waste lands and no weeds, she said.

FINE ARTS SECTION HEARS FIRST LECTURE

Dwight Kirsch of the University School of Fine Arts, gave the introductory lecture beginning a course on "Interior Decorating," before the members of the fine arts department of the Woman's club, at the Y. W. C. A. Friday afternoon.

Mrs Kirsch stated that the subject was a broad one, including everything within the four walls of the house. Its purpose is to make the home more beautiful and more inviting. The home should be adapted to the needs of the family and should grow and change as the family does. The work of the interior decorator was explained and some houses described. The home of Thomas Ince in California was done in the style of the early Spanish settlers, the rugs were made to order in Spain. The department will be represented at the state convention in Kearney by Mrs. C. L. Hall.

Miss Annie Smith and Mrs. C. F. McAdams were appointed hostesses.

NEWS OF PROFESSIONAL BUSINESS WOMEN'S CLUBS.

The Superior Business and Professional Women's club held its regular meeting in the club rooms on Monday evening. A number of business matters were discussed among which was the question "Shall we keep our club rooms?" Evening classes in polychrome work, weaving, etc., will be started soon under the instructions of one of the members.

Following the business meeting a shower was given for Mrs. Ila Hasemeyer a member who was recently married. The remainder of the evening was spent in singing club songs and a social good time.

Tuesday evening a number of the members took a small truck and went out collecting magazines which were sold to the city junk man. Extra money can be very easily made this way as most people are anxious to get rid of their old papers and magazines. A weinie roast at Lincoln park rewarded the workers for their labor.

On Sunday afternoon, October 9, the Omaha Business and Professional Women's club held open house at their club rooms in the Gardner building to which the public was invited. The program consisted of a review of the novel, "The Cutters," by Bess Streeter Aldrich, given by Miss Helen Mackin. Musical selections were given by the boys' quartet composed of William Larsen, violinist; William Baynes, cello; Charles Baynes, trumpet and Franklin Doty, pianist. A piano selection was also given by Franklin Doty. Refreshments were served following the program.

On Tuesday evening the regular weekly dinner meeting was held in the club rooms with Dr. Karl F. Wettstone, president of the University of Omaha, as speaker.

Miss Jean Berger is leader for October and will be assisted by Alma Peters, Mrs. Florence Waterbury, Jennie Sharkey, Lois Short, Mrs. L. A. Gowen, Velma Brooks, Mrs. Esther Lamb, Harriet Allberry, Bessie Christie, Dr. Olga Stastny and Kate Worm.

Mrs. Nadine Parker Schmollmeyer of Brownsville, Tex., was a guest of the Omaha club at a recent meeting. Mrs. Parker is state secretary of the Texas Federation and told of the work of the Texas clubs.

Observe Birthday Anniversary.

James and Robert are the nine year old sons of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Manners of Alvo. They celebrated their birthday anniversary recently.

DISCUSS ROMANESQUE GOTHIC ARCHITECTURE.

The Delta Delphians met in the city Library parlors, 9:30 p. m. Thursday for the study of "Romanesque and Gothic Architecture and early Italian art." Mrs. C. A. Fetterman, leader, named these ladies as having papers ready: Mesdames H. W. Miller, George S. Peach, J. E. Theobald, L. W. Hiles, E. W. Rowe and Miss Florenece Petring.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION ENROLLS SIXTY-FIVE.

The first meeting of the physical education department of the L. W. C. was held Wednesday, 10 a. m. in Y. W. C. A. gymnasium.

Much interest in the work was shown and eleven guests were present beside sixty-five members. A business meeting was held after the class work. Mrs. Frank Ireland, president, presided.

CLUB PERSONALS.

Mrs. John Slaker of Hastings, past state president of the Federation of Women's clubs and author of "The Main Motion" will conduct her usual morning classes at the state convention of League of Women Voters to be held in Hastings, Nov. 9-11.

Two hundred copies of "The Main Motion" written by Mrs. John Slaker, were sold to club women at the convention last fall.

The social event of the convention of the League of Women Voters, to be held in Hastings, Nov. 9-11, will be a reception given by Mrs. C. H. Dietrich in honor of out of town speakers.

Miss Ruth McIntosh, regional secretary of the Nebarska League of Women Voters, will present the subject of the survey of voting habits which the national league is sponsoring just now, at the state convention.

The state budget for the coming year will be thoroughly discussed at the state convention of the League of Women Voters.

Miss Josie Sullivan has been a worker at the state headquarters, League of Women voters, recently, preparing copy for a Lincoln directory.

Dr. Ruth Warner of the Business Women's league, is leaving to attend the interstate medical conference at Kansas City, where five thousand delegates are expected from mid-western states.

Miss Lyda Hafer of the Business Women's league has tendered her resignation because of illness in her family.

Axis club enrolled three new members at last meeting.

The P. E. O. sisterhood has just received a gift of Cottey college, located at Nevada, Missouri. It is the gift of Mrs. Virginia Cottey Stockard. This is a girls' junior college, forty-three years old. It is accredited to the University of Missouri. The sisterhood will endow the college to the extent of $200,000.

PIONEER CALF CLUB OF THE STATE HAS WON MANY HONORS

BY ISABEL O'HOLLAREN.

"Nebraska's first Baby Beef club," is the honor that goes to Boone county's Calf and Baby Beef club which has been in the limelight at county, state and national stock shows ever since it was organized in 1920-21.

Pioneer days for the club did not last as long as they do in building a country, or a business. It has only seen seven seasons and in that time the club has produced state grand champions and been honored with trips to national stock shows where individual animals have topped the blue ribbons.

It was in the early winter seven years ago that a small group of stockmen of the county met in the back room of one of the banks in Albion to discuss the organization of such a club. There were no others of its kind in the state and so their ideas were original and lacked but practical experimentation.

All the men were interested and so were the business men of Albion, especially the bankers, who volunteered to finance any boy or girl wanting to borrow money to buy a calf to enter in the club.

So the club was organized with 24 charter members and John Clipston leader. Later J. E. Donaldson, the present leader, took the club and has headed it ever since.

First Members.

Those first members of the club were. Herbert Schuneman, George Hendricks, Lucile Foltz, Bertrand Williamson, Glenn Michael, Lew Hendricks, Archy Watson Walter Michael, Frederick Barnhardt, Frank Long, Neal Childs, Sam and Guy Mills, Ruth Riley, Fred Speigel, Ella Donaldson, Frances Brown, Bernard Barnes, Dale Havens, Joe Watson, Donald Foltz, Arthur Ternes, Charles Donaldson, and Ray Reynoldson.

The last six boys are still members of the club and are taking prizes and producing some excellent beeves. Each member has stayed in the club as long as the age limit would allow. Al 4-H cubs have a ruling that permits boys and girls to belong between the ages of 10 and 18. Before and after that age they are ineligible. Many of the first members are now breeding their own stock and some are attending college, but everyone is making good.

Joe Watson is one of the most outstanding members of 4-H club work in Nebraska. Joe is a junior in the college of agriculture of the University of Nebraska and is still under 18 years of age. He won a scholarship in club work which paid part of his expenses during his freshman year in college. Last winter he was a member of the dairy judging team of the college, an honor coveted by most "Ag" men.

Joe comes home during vacation and feeds his calves and in the winter his brother takes care of his stock while he is at college. When he graduates he plans to return to the farm and use the training he has got to produce high class stock.

Bernard Barnes, another charter member, is a sophomore and Ella Donaldson a junior in the college of agriculture. Both won scholarships to go to college.

Miss Donaldson, who is a daughter of the club leader, has an enviable record in club work. Beginning with the first club in the county she fed baby beeves every year until she was ready to go to college. By this time she had saved enough money to pay two years' expenses. While she still had a balance left at the beginning of the current eyar it will not be sufficient to pay the expenses of the remaining two years.

Club Work Pays.

"Club work pays," one of the members wrote in the annual report which has to be made out every spring. To prove this one has only to refer to what the boys and girls are now doing. Glenn Michael, Ray Reynoldson, Donald Foltz and Charles Donaldson are now breeding their own stock and they own cattle worth many times the value of those with which they began club work.

In the first report Ray told how he got the money to start in the club. "I borrowed $75 from the bank to buy my calf and to pay the expenses until I raised it. I fed it that year and in the fall sold it for a good profit. With this money I bought a cow and calf and now I have five head of breeding stock, each worth at least $100. They are all pure bred Shorthorns."

One thing that the club work has done is the improvement of the quality of stock that the boys raise and this in turn has improved the general average of the stock in the community. Through their breeding experiences they have learned what to breed for and what qualities to weed out. Determining good points in stock for feeding and breeding purposes is one of the phases of club work that the club here has emphasized.

Honors and prizes have come to the club and its individual members every year since its beginning. Two years ago Glenn Michael a charter member, won the grand champion ribbon at the state fair in Lincoln. But he did not sell his animal then. He decided to send it to other shows and by winning a trip to the American Royal Livestock show in Kansas City he was able to take his champion with him.

Wins National Honors.

Here it won first in the Shorthorn club classes and also took third in the open classes. Still another chance lay ahead of the lad and he sent his beef to the International Livestock exposition in Chicago where he competed with those from all parts of the country. At this show his prize winner brought him another first prize ribbon and a championship in the Shorthorn class.

Last year was Glenn's final one as an active 4-H club worker, his age prohibiting him from keeping on in one work. "Club work teaches you how to care for and feed cattle," he said, "and to make a success of it, too. I also learned how to tell good stock from poor stock, both for feeding and breeding."

Joe King, one of the present live wires in the Boone county Baby Beef club, was one of the four boys and girls in Nebraska to win a trip to the National Club Congress in Washington, D. C., this summer. Joe wrote interesting accounts of his trip and of the benefits he derived from it, for a number of papers in the state.

To J. E. Donaldson, himself an expert breeder of pure bred livestock, belongs much credit for the development of the prize winning club members. Mr. Donaldson is just as interested and as happy when one of the boys or girls makes a mark with his beef as if it were his own. He has given freely of his time to coach the clubs and his long years of experience have been an open book for them.

Mr. Donaldson always urges every member to finish the project annually, and he has found that this has encouraged the members to complete other things they begin.

Whenever any of the club stock is to go to a fair or show Mr. Donaldson is right with them, to help in any way he can or to chaperone the members.

"I have always taught the boys and girls that they can't always win, but that they should try to be right at the top. We have always come in for some of the ribbons at the state fair, since the first year we began," Mr. Donaldson stated.

Mr. and Mrs. Donaldson have four children and everyone of them has been a member of the clubs which he has sponsored.

At the Omaha show and sale recently Allen Knott's shorthorn beef took the blue ribbon in that class and carried off the fourth highest price paid at the sale, his calf bringing 19¼ cents. Allen realized $160.96 from his prize winner this year. His brother Oliver placed second in the same class. Allen paid but $37 for the calf last December and fed it corn, oats, and alfalfa. Ray Reynoldson placed fifth with his senior shorthorn, Dale Havens eighth and Joe Watson tenth in the junior section, while Charles Donaldson was second in the heifer class.

Brought High Prices.

"Our calves brought the highest price that we've ever realized in the seven years of club work," Mr. Donaldson stated proudly. "And for that matter, the highest price ever paid for baby beeves in the history of the state was paid at that sale. Those prices are going to be an encouragement for other boys and girls in Nebraska to start club work, because it pays in big returns," he said.

The Boone County Baby Beef club has the same number of members it started with, but there is a difference in the earnings of the boys and girls. The club sold all the calves at the Omaha sale and the total receipts were $4,686.90 which averaged nearly $190 per member. Mr. Donaldson figured that each boy and girl will net about $100 for the year's work.

Besides the Baby Beef club in the county the dairy judging teams have won their share of honors. This fall they took first place at the state fair, which carried with it a $300 cash prize given by Walter Head of Omaha and which is to pay their expenses to the national dairy show in Memphis, Tenn., October 15-22.

The boys in this group are Joe King, Jesse Bilyeu, and Russell Hughes. All the boys are students in the Smith-Hughes course in the Albion high school and have been coached by C. C. Girardot, who is teaching this work. The team and Mr. Girardot left October 11 and made stops in Lincoln and Kansas City on their way to the south. They will compete in Memphis with 25 other state teams and the winners of this contest will get a trip to London.

The judging team last year, also took first place and won a trip to Kansas City later in the fall.

About 100 boys and girls have had the advantage of 4-H club work in Boone county since the first one was organized seven years ago. Besides their cash prize winnings they have realized a sound financial income from their stock, besides receiving valuable training in the breeding, and choice of good cattle.

"There is not one of our boys and girls who has been a club member who is not glad that he has. And too, all of them have set definite goals for their future and we are expecting great things from these blue ribbon winners in Boone county," Mr. Donaldson stated. "They are going to teach some of us how to raise good cattle in spite of the fact that we think we know how now."

The boys and girls of Boone county are preparing for the future through their present pleasant interests. The picture on the upper left shows the R Busy Needleworkers Sewing club style show members on their display day, August 24, 1927. Miss Ella Donaldson, the leader, organized the club last summer. The picture on the upper right includes the original members of the Boone county baby beef club. Several of the members in the picture are in college, and can serve as leaders now. On the lower left, the baby beeves are on their way to the state fair of 1927. The other picture shows a steer owned and fed by Charles Donaldson in the baby beef club in 1926.

BY LULU MAE COE.

There's something in the autumn that is particularly ours.

We merely exist through the summer, we have but an infrequent acquaintance with spring, and we shiver and shudder through winter, with scarcely enough of a drift for a snowball.

But now we'd like to be a pussy cat that could curl up in a sunny corner, with nothing to do but keep one eye on encroaching shadows. Or one of those happy souls who only have to follow the shine and shade around a building, and who have such infinite hours for sitting on iron railings.

Treachetrously languorous days, in their golden warmth, when we could sink languidly in the middle of the street, and, like the little rock, sit there a thousand years, sunk in beatific peace. Brisk little curls of snappy breezes whipping the listless one unexpectedly and green hills swept by frosty fire in a single night.

Autumn Happy Mixture.

Autumn is such a happy mixture of weather. Skies as blue as May, just a suggestion of December now and then, and the languor of June. It's the best of all the year packed into too short days.

We of this part of the world live for our autumn. Then are dreaming days, when we pause in idle glory, dreaming of past happiness, past cheer, too comfortable to remember the sad things, the bad things, too peaceful to seek ambition.

There's Easter in Rome, and summer at the Lido. There's winter in Cairo, and spring on the Riviera. But there's autumn, vitalizing, sturdy, vigorous, here in the middle west.

Past is Forgotten.

The melancholy days, when the wet brown leaves sink into hopeless little heaps in the gutters and the wind whines like a Macbethean witch, are but future fears. The days when we leave a heel print on every inch of asphalt and fade away under a summer sun are yesterday's nightmares.

Like a good filling in the sandwich is our autumn. A little streak of pleasant sunshine between the overpowering and the deadening days.

It is our golden time, this autumn. We live in the melting pot of the gold of the sun and the gold of the autumn fields. The world is brushed with the contents of the pot at the end of the rainbow.

Washed with the rainbow colors are our hills and valleys. Crimson, orange, purple leaves and berries flamboyant beneath a cerulean sky, beauty so great that it hurts, that it can scarcely be looked upon. Far vistas, as though some mighty painter had flung his brightest colors with careless hand, unlimited distance of brilliant hues, blazoning under the autumn sun.

Green Turns to Gold.

Yesterday's neat little fields of green are golden now, throwing their color mass against the burning shades on all sides. Here and there a soft green down that can not hide the rich black earth beneath it, and between the black checkerboards of newly plowed fields, the harshere and more austere in their lack of color.

Into this cauldron of beauty go the roads, some vagrant little tracks, leading to hidden beauties at the end, some the highways of the nation. Through it the tenuous lines of roads, urging people to go on and on without stopping, without gazing at the beauties lying nearest.

He is indeed deaf who can hear only the call of the road today. The pied piper of beauty plays too loud a tune in this Nebraska autumn. He is blind who does not see the charm of the mid-fall countryside. And he is cheating himself who does not make some effort to go forth on a beauty quest.

Many Seek Beauty Spots.

In the late afternoons and on Sunday, Lincoln residents are packing a sandwich in the picnic hamper and going motoring. North, east, south, west—the direction doesn't matter a lot, just so there is a bit of country at the end, and a hint of autumn in the air and in the hills.

A trip to the state fisheries is always interesting to Lincoln folk, and it provides quite a gorgeous trip at this time of the year. A glimpse of the river, several glimpses of brilliant hilltops, other glimpses of autumn meadows, and all the glimpses desired of little fish are encompassed in the trip.

The drive from Lincoln leads through the terraces of Salt creek valley, which is bordered by the lovely autumn colors. It crosses the Platte river at the Nebraska state guard camp, which has a capacity for 1800 to 2000 men.

Fall at Its Best.

Situated on the first road to the right is Linoma beach, back of which is a charming spot, where one can have luncheon in the shade. If the luncheon doesn't satisfy, the view will. The fall vegetation is at its best at this time in that vicinity.

Going east to the bluffs line, and south to the hatcheries, is an interesting road. In the bluffs are cat steps, or little landslides, an interesting formation. The Dakota sandstone beds in the bluffs are the same that underlie much of Nebraska, and provide Lincoln with its water supply.

In the bluffs are the real fruits of the fall, the leaves and berries that are so much desired. Bitter sweet, sumac, and the varicolored leaves of the oaks, elms, dogwood, and cottonwood. From points high above the fisheries, there are interesting vistas across the Platte, with a fringe of forest on either side.

Relics of Long Ago.

A mile or two down the Platte is the location where old quarries were operated years ago. Nearby the stumps and pilings are evidences of an old toll bridge, operated long, long ago to provide a means for immigrants and others to cross the river. Across it, stone was hauled from South Bend to build the second state capitol. It was known as the Clark bridge, named for Henry T. Clark, a prominent man in earlier Nebraska.

The view across the Platte from the hilly uplands is worth the climb. The ravines hold a few hazel nuts and a few, not many, black walnuts. Bitter sweet, with its red and yellow berries, is rather common, and of course, there are many leaves to be obtained for decoration. The best return from this trip is by the road leading to Gretna, and thence to Lincoln on the D. L. D.

According to Dr. George E. Condra, head of the department of conservation and soil survey at the university, one of the finest views in the state is near Louisville for those who motor down in October's bright blue weather. It is easiest to go on the gravel east to the point to turn left to Elmwood, and thence to Louisville.

On Top of World.

The view south of Louisville is superb. On the highest point of the uplands, one feels as though one were standing on top of the world. Coming out through the bluff timber area to the bluff land, the motorists see South Bend, south to the stone quarries and Meadow, east and northeast to Louisville, more quarries, where a large cement plant is now in operation, and heavy timber land.

Crossing the river to Springfield, the road leads east for a few miles, bursting out to the edge of the Platte for sudden, sparkling moments. One and one-half miles from LaPlatte is Dyson hollow, beautiful in the hollow and beautiful on its hills. In the hollow is a waterfall of great beauty, and in the '60s large quarries were operated there.

Back across the Platte river, and home by way of Plattsmouth, Murray, Union, Murdock, and Elmwood is the day's program. Such a trip acquaints people with the lower lands along the Platte, and offers glimpses of the Missouri. It is a country rich in limestone and sandstone.

Lakes and Cold Springs.

On another drive it would be a pleasant trip to go to Union, and from there northeast to Ervine creek. On the Larsch place nearby are many little lakes fed by cold springs issuing from the base of the bluffs.

Following the creek to its mouth at the Missouri, go north from the creek to Rock Bluff, a spot of much historical interest in Nebraska. This is a delightful trip, but a place for a good driver. The way is over steep, winding roads, cut between such heavy timber growths that it is almost a jungle. At times, the forest is so heavy that one can't see out, but rather drives down a thin little road through a tunnel of trees.

Northeast of Rock Bluff is the site of the old landing and Queen hill, one of the landmarks of the Missouri river. Climbing to the top of the eminence is worth the effort, as it affords a view into Iowa. King hill lies to the southeast of the town.

A Colorful Route.

The vicinity of Nebraska City is colorful this year, and an excellent route is to go to the east of Union, and then go south, rather than going on the regular highway. Southeast of Wyoming, the road joins the highway, and leads across Squaw and Walnut creeks, where are some very fine timber views, and other views that can not be surpassed, Dr. Condra emphasizes.

Walnut creek is marked by two waterfalls. One, where the highway crosses the Union Pacific tracks, Graham's falls, is excellently located in a spot for rest and camping. Not far away is an old flour mill.

Following the road north of the falls east one-half mile the motorist, after reaching the Missouri and going south comes to the second falls, the Thies water fall. Permission can be obtained from Mr. Thies to visit his natural beauties, and it is a delightful stroll through his meadows, which finally end at the Missouri, to visit the falls and to enjoy the vistas.

A Famed Picnic Spot.

Goose hill, famed picnic spot near Nebraska City, and finest spot for viewing the sunset, may be visited on this trip. It is a high place on the bluffs, from which enough timber has been removeed to afford most pleasing views of the countryside.

To return, it is most interesting to go to Nebraska City. On the steep bluffs south of the Burlington railroad bridge are quantities of bitter sweet. Of course, Arbor lodge is always a center of attraction on a Nebraska City jaunt.

From a historical and early day viewpoint and from a present day development interest, a trip to

BY MARR M'GAFFIN.

This has been an eventful crop year for Nebraska—punctuated by soaring hopes and paralyzing anxieties, yet ending after all in the most glorious burst of exultation that the state has witnessed in years.

Other years have produced their joys and worries—unfortunately there has been an overdose of worries recently. The weather is ever a very uncertain foundation, but agriculture must build upon it to a great extent and have faith that it will not crumble beneath it before the roof is completed. Those uncertainties have seemed more exaggerated this year because of the prospects of record yields in all crops. Rainy skies cast a gloom over the ripening wheat crop, but the sunshine came, and, with it, an excellent yield of 75,500,000 bushels of high quality grain. The approach of a killing frost was awaited fearfully, but today a record corn crop of something more than 268,000,000 bushels is hanging safely in the fields waiting to be picked. Much depended upon these two crops running the gauntlet safely. Nebraska, and her farmers, especially, needed them.

Fortune has been kind. She has smiled upon Nebraska to the tune of approximately three-quarters of a billion dollars. Some smile! What? And that smile should be as contagious among Nebraskans as a great big hearty laugh.

Nearly Half a Billion.

As nearly as can be figured from production estimates and average market prices, Nebraska's field crops, including grains, hay, fruit, potatoes, and sugar beets, raised this year are worth nearly half a billion dollars, $436,153,000, to be exact. This is undoubtedly a conservative figure. Although the estimated corn production is officially placed at 268,709,000 bushels, it is confidently expected that that figure will be boosted by fifteen or twenty million bushels before the final report is compiled.

Every Nebraskan knows in a more or less general way that crops are exceptionally good this year, but how good they really are can best be realized by comparing this year with the last six. Following are the estimated values of all field crops for the years 1921 to 1927, inclusive:

1922	253,532,000
1923	279,115,000
1924	358,901,000
1925	310,180,000
1926	256,738,000
1927	436,153,000

Smash Normal Yields.

A few other comparisons which speak in loud terms of praise for the year 1927 are:

This year's corn crop exceeds the five-year average for the state by 64,000,000 bushels.

This year's wheat crop is nearly twice as large as the five-year average.

This year's oat crop is a million bushels greater than the five-year average.

This year's tame hay crop is a million tons greater than the five-year average. And so the story goes, on down the list, with only one or two exceptions in minor crops.

Only Half the Story.

Yet with all this business of talking in hundreds of millions, one is only telling half the story by quoting field crop values alone. Nebraska has learned the secret of diversified agriculture. Not that she did not know it before, but that knowledge is now being put into practice. The field crops are the show windows of the state. They form the rich green and gold setting that surrounds Nebraska agriculture in the summer months. They are the objects of conversation, the reasons for weather worries. One gazes upon miles and miles of yellow wheat and green corn and says to himself, "This will be a great year for Nebraska," but, behind the scenes, is the other half of the show in the form of hogs, cattle, chickens and still more deeply hidden from the eye of the casual observer are butter, eggs and cream.

The value of Nebraska's livestock and poultry, together with their by-products, is equal to that of her field crops. It is roughly estimated that $380,000,000 worth of livestock, poultry, dairy and poultry products will have been marketed this year. And that figure is conservative. It is believed that the cattle marketings will be considerably less than last year. Poor crops and the resultant scarcity of feed in 1926 forced the farmers to sell more of their cattle than they would have otherwise. This left the farmers with fewer cattle on hand this year. However, considerably higher prices this year may offset to a considerable extent the lighter sales. Dairy and poultry products remain fairly level from year to year, with perhaps a slight increase now and then. Here is a big item of cash income which is highly important. It cannot be taken at its full value, however, since some of it represents grain that has been fed.

Worth $709,423,000.

In figuring the total value of Nebraska's agricultural production for the year then, it is necessary to deduct somewhere along the line the value of the feed in order to prevent a duplication. It is estimated that 70 per cent of the corn crop will be fed this year. That is, marketed in cattle and hogs. One half the hay crop may be considered as being used for feed, also being marketed in livestock that means a deduction of approximately $108,000,000 from the total value of all field crops and livestock and poultry marketings together with their by-products. As will be seen in the accompanying table, that total is roughly $817,653,000. Deducting the duplicated feeds, it may be estimated that the total value of Nebraska's agricultural products is approximately $709,423,000.

That is not by any means representative of the amount of actual cash that will be flowing around loosely. There is a large percentage that must be charged off to home consumption, but nevertheless in one way or another, whether in the pocketbook or on the table, that figure is fairly representative of the wealth produced this year. That is an average earning of $42 for every cultivated acre in the state.

It is indicative of Nebraska's fortunate position this year that only Iowa will exceed her in corn production, and that only Kansas will exceed her in wheat production. A recently published estimate of value of the Kansas agricultural products this year serves to even more firmly establish Nebraska's supremacy in the realm of agriculture. As stated above, Kansas outstripped this state in the production of wheat by approximately 36,000,000 bushels, yet the total value of her field crops is estimated at $387,935,000, as compared to $463,153,000 for this state. The total value of her products, including livestock, poultry and their products is placed at $542,155,000, as compared to $709,423,000 for Nebraska. Neither is there any indication in the Kansas estimate that any deduction was made for grain and hay fed to livestock.

And what will be the result of this exceptionally profitable year? That is a question which is being much discussed these days. Many of the more optimistic though less informed observers are offering the opinion that the troubles of the farmers and the state are now solved.

Bankers, however, who are more closely in touch with the financial pulse of the farmers and the state as a whole are not by any means so bold in their predictions, though they are decidedly optimistic.

Business has not felt the full stimulus of the improved condition of agriculture yet, but it will during the coming months. Nearly three-fourths of the wheat crop has been turned into cash up to the present time. That means that approximately $63,500,000 in hard cash has come into the state within the last three months. Much of that has been spent in lifting the hard-pressing and immediate debts. Short-time notes given to the banks last year to meet the current running expenses and to pay for this year's seed have been partially paid off. Grocery bills, coal bills, clothing bills have been paid in part. The lumber business has felt a decided improvement as the much need farm repairs have been made. All this has served to put business of all kinds back on a more even keel.

Still Much to Be Done.

But there is still much to be done. The corn crop and the livestock will do their share. It is expected that approximately $75,000,000 worth of corn will be marketed between December and March. Livestock will bring in nearly twice that much. That will wipe out the remainder of the short time debts to a great extent and will undoubtedly leave a very acceptable surplus. It is then that the state as a whole will feel the results of this increased wealth.

There are bound to be a number of scattered cases where the debt burden will not be eased to any noticeable extent. These cases will be chiefly those where farm lands were purchased at the exceedingly high war time prices and were mortgaged beyond all justification. Those are the unfortunate results of the deflation which followed the war and will take years to work out. The average farmer, though who has plugged along, carrying only a mortgage of a justifiable amount, it is believed, will be literally back on his feet. He will have ready cash available, he will be caught up on his back debts and will be in a position to continue paying off his mortgage and the interest if crops the next few years continue normal.

One prominent Lincoln banker, when asked this question, replied, "It will do wonders, but it will take at least one or two more normal years to really put this state back on its feet." It is ridiculous to believe, he went on, to explain that one record breaking year could wipe out heavy mortgages. But, he continued, the long time mortgages are not what have been bothering the farmers. It has been the lack of ready cash with which to meet current expenses, taxes and the interest on those mortgages.

Easier Going.

The money from this year's crops will provide a foundation which will make the going in the future much easier and more like it was before the bottom dropped out, thought another banker. A decided improvement is bound to be noticed this year. Last year, he said, farmers were forced to borrow money in sums of five hundred or a thousand dollars in order to meet the current living expenses and to buy seed for this year's planting. Many of these notes have been paid off out of the returns of the wheat crop. There will be little need of such borrowing this year.

The most important benefit that is to be derived, he believed, would be the ability of the farmer to pay up his back taxes and the interest on his mortgages. "He will be able to put himself even with the world and will have an even chance of meeting his future interest payments if crops are good the next few years."

Many farmers who have been the most hard pressed have been enforcing strict economy, even down to the necessities of life. They have been buying only those things which have been absolutely necessary. Much needed farm improvements have been forced to wait. Much old farm machinery should have been replaced last year. This is going to be done this year, the bankers predict.

Keeping Even Keel.

Much depends upon the country banker in the handling of this delicate process of bringing both ends of the ship to the surface evenly. It is pointed out that patients must be exercised by all the farmer's creditors. As one banker explains this problem, when a farmer owing a bank say $2,500 brings that amount into the bank, the right thinking banker will say, "Here, John, split this in half, apply one-half to your obligations here and take the rest out and pay off the groceryman or others whom you may owe."

If such a method is followed it is believed, the benefits will be more widely spread and as a result the merchants will be able to take care of the obligations they have incurred in the granting of credit in the past.

Farmers are already looking forward to next year. Early reports indicate an intention among the farmers to plant nearly 8 per cent more winter wheat this year than was planted last fall. It is believed, however, that the actual plantings will be considerably below this early indication.

An early estimate of the amount of winter wheat that farmers throughout the nation are intending to plant indicates an increase of 17 per cent in acreage. This increase is not considered as being to the best interests of the farmers Overproduction, it is being pointed out, will tend to break the market next year, and the United States department of agriculture is not encouraging so large a planting, it is said.

Due to unfortunate weather conditions in other states, Nebraska this year mounted to second place among all the states in corn production. In past years this state has held third place, with Illinois and Iowa ahead of her. Iowa will outrank Nebraska again this year by nearly 100,000,000 bushels, but Illinois has fallen to third place with an estimated production of 228,000,000 bushels. At the same time this state advanced to a higher rank in the production of winter wheat and oats.

Above is pictured a cornfield near Humboldt. Thousands of acres of cornfields are to be found in practically all sections of Nebraska, running from 40 to 65 bushels per acre.

Nebraska Judging Team In National Dairy Show.

Members of the dairy judging team of Waverly high school who will represent Nebraska at the National Dairy Show at Memphis, Tenn., where they will compete against representatives of Smith-Hughes vocational agriculture high schools from nearly every state.

Cosmopolitanism Is Praised By Prof. Williams As Means Of Ending Race Prejudices

BY CATHERINE E. HANSON.

"There is no group whose interests are so universal, and whose thought is so absorbed in questions of international politics, religion and social life, than is the Cosmopolitan club of the university." This statement was made by Professor Hattie Plum Williams, instructor in the sociology department of the university in a lecture which was given Saturday evening before the Cosmopolitan club in the Temple.

"The evolution of cosmopolitanism was preceded by the idea of a universal deity. Jehovah was regarded by the Egyptians as being not only their creator, but one who was interested in their welfare as well. In the fifth century, B. C. Herodotus, the historian, in his ideas of the unity of Hellenic civilization, saw only the differences in other cultures. It was difficult at that time to see a common denominator in mankind. It is true, we are always conscious of the differences, but are we conscious of the similarities as well? This consciousness of the differences of mankind is what has kept men separated from one another for so long.

"Socrates, a philosopher in the 5th century, when speaking of his relationship to other men, said: 'I am an inhabitant of Athens, but I am a citizen of the world.'

"In the Fourth century, Aristotle, as a result of Alexander's conquests, noted the different cultures also, but it was not until the age of the Stoics, in 305, B. C. that the barriers which kept men apart because of differences, were broken down. The Stoics gave us the first clear conception of what Cosmopolitanism really means. Stoicism then was not what we think it is today. The Stoics believed that mankind was a unit, and that the units were equal. The Stoics were impressed with the ability of foreigners to absorb the Greek culture of that period. They centered their attention on a common humanity in man that was coherent unity in nature including man. That is, they realized that a group of people though having differences, may, at the same time, have common similarities as well. The Stoics then, believed in the idea of the unity of man because they thought of the oneness of mankind and of nature.

Brotherhood As Well.

"Among the Hebrews, in early Christianity, there was a conception of a unity among men, but not only unity but brotherhood as well. Men came to look upon one another as a neighbor.

"A revival of cosmopolitanism has resulted in comparatively modern times. The effect of discoveries and travel, and increasing race contacts brought this about. We have discovered that our modern race problem is not a problem of the negro alone, but of all races as well. This revival of cosmopolitanism opened a whole world of thought for philosophers, travelers, historians, missionaries, scientists, and teachers. In the Eighteenth century, Voltaire, a radical, scorned national relations and declared himself a citizen of the world. Most of the people at that period were content to be nationalistic in spirit, and yet, to realize that one's own nation is not all that is worth while in the world, any more than to have an individual family or community at variance with one another. Rousseau borrowed the democratic idea that men are equal, that primitive man's state was equal to that of modern man. Rousseau idealized primitive man.

"Early in the Nineteenth century, the Socialists took up the question of cosmopolitanism, and their leader, Carl Marx, advocated that humanity's problems are universal, that mankind is universal in its aspect, and that social problems are universal problems, as in the case of health and industry. The fundamental idea of the socialists in the beginning did not concern property, but mankind, and the problems confronting mankind.

Common Denominator.

"The motto of the Cosmopolitan club is: 'Above all nations is humanity.' This motto sets forth that there is, after all, a common denominator, and that that denominator is humanity itself. This emphasizes the fundamental ideal of cosmopolitanism. We recognize that the similarities are vastly more important than the differences. As our contacts increase, our interests are bound to develop. The purpose of the club, as I understand it, is to advance this spirit of humanity and human justice. There is a desire to be tolerant, to show mutual esteem, to co-operate and to be a brother to mankind; a desire to serve humanity and that this service may be unlimited by color, race, nationality, caste, or creed. There is no group which has such resources for entertainment within itself and an opportunity to be of such service as your own cosmopolitan group on this campus.

"In my own classes, I have noticed that students accept doctrines without protest. We would think they would come under the cultural influence of education after they had been here awhile, but sometimes their emotions get the better of their senses. They become narrow and prejudiced.

Value of Contact.

There is nothing that helps more to overcome this race prejudice than actual contact. I have seen students with an intense race prejudice enter my class, but after six weeks had passed, those same students were able to speak of their foreign brothers as scholarly, cultured people do. Sometimes it takes a long time and actual contact to put into practice any theory with regard to this unity of mankind. We should learn to discipline our minds.

"Modern education divorces experience from learning. Education is weak in this respect. There is a place in your own club where the philosophical and scientific ideals can be practiced.

"There is no challenge greater than yours to see the broad possibilities and needs of the organization instead of individual differences and idiosyncrasies. There is no opportunity more unique to know the world's cultures through personal contact, than is yours, to present one's own culture in the most favorable light. We must forget the mechanics of organization and rivet our attention upon the essentials; the first principles of humanity. When we do this, we give up individual plans and desires for the sake of the larger good, and, in a true sense of the word, become a citizen of the world."

ALL IS RICH WITH NEBRASKA

Brownville is both pleasant and profitable. Brownville's historical interest can scarcely be chronicled, with so many "first" things as it has, the first bank, the first printing press, the first land office, with its old steamboat landing, its main street up which came so many Nebraska immigrants.

Hazel and Hickory Nuts.

Near Brownville are hazel nut and hickory nut groves. Even more of a curiosity in Nebraska is the chestnut grove southwest of town, which has an annual harvest of ten or twelve bushels. It is an interesting locale at this time, with the apple picking days in their prime, and interesting as a fruit center through vineyards and small fruits.

From Brownville to Peru, the bluffs road is in fairly satisfactory condition. A few paw paws may be found there, but the most of them are on Sonora island, northeast of Brownville. Peru is chiefly interesting as the site of the oldest state normal, and the highest sandstone bluffs in the state are there, and from them one can see into Iowa and even into Missouri.

Short Scenic Drives.

For shorter distances, the Wahoo road into Omaha offers a scenic drive. It is paved from the Platte into Omaha. Another brief journey is through Milford to Crete, a very pretty drive following the Blue river, and then, on the return journey, turning north at the Centerville, church, and reaching Lincoln in the vicinity of the state hospital.

A glimpse of agricultural Nebraska can be secured in a day's easy drive from Lincoln, and rural Nebraska is glorious this autumn. The road leads through Grand Island, south to Hastings, and then back to Lincoln. A series of lovely vistas are afforded by going south to Crete, Wilber, and DeWitt, and then following the Blue to Beatrice and Holmesville, which lies in the midst of charming scenery.

Nebraska Boys And Girls To Compete For National Honors In The Dairy Show At Memphis

The champion dairy cattle judging team of Nebraska boys and girls club work will enter the national judging contest at the National Dairy show at Memphis, Tenn., Monday, Oct. 17, to compete there for national honors with 27 other state champion teams.

The Boone county boys, Joe King, Jesse Bilyeau and Russell Hughes, won the Nebraska state fair dairy judging contest in September and have been training intensively since that time. They spent the past week at the agricultural college at Lincoln and working on herds around Lincoln and around Kansas City. Their coach C. C. Girardot, and M. L. Flack, extension dairy specialist, have been giving them the training.

With several year's experience under their belts both in dairy calf club work and in general livestock judging, the boys have a real background for their coming contest. Two of them are now in Albion high school taking Smith Hughes agricultural training under Mr. Girardot and the other boy has had similar training.

In the big contest, the team will have to place a number of rings of animals and then give reasons why they placed each animal as they did. Some of the reasons are given orally, some are written.

The Nebraska champion demonstration team in dairy club work will also be at the national show to compete with about 23 other state teams during the week. Ivan and Doris Gries of Hampton left with their father and mother by auto the past week and will be at the show to meet the other team when they arrive. The demonstrators will tell and show how methods of skimming milk have been improved and how important it is to have a good cream separator on the farm. They have based most of their demonstrations on their experience as club members.

Harlan Peterson of Valley, state champion individual of dairy calf clubs this year, and L. I. Frisbie, state club leader, will be other Nebraskans at Memphis this week. Mr. Peterson was awarded a prize with all expenses paid for being the outstanding dairy club member this year. He will have the entire week to enjoy the show. Mr. Frisbie will enter conferences with other state club leaders regarding dairy calf club work.

Cotner Notes

The board of trustees at its annual meeting on Founder's day October 4, re-elected all the officers of the board. E. F. Snavely, Lincoln, was elected president for the eleventh time; Dr. I. C. Munger, Lincoln, is vice-president. The executive committee is Dr. I. C. Munger, Lincoln; E. F. Snavely, Lincoln; Mrs. Nettie Sherman, Bethany; Mrs. H. Fishback, Beatrice; and E. H. Smith, York.

Stephen J. Epler, '05, minister of the Christian church, Norton, Kas., and member of the college board of trustees, was re-elected vice-president of the Kansas Christian Missionary society at the annual convention at Newton, September 26-29. He was also re-elected director for three years of the organization.

W. E. Hardy, member of the state capitol commission, spoke at chapel Wednesday on the new state house which is in process of construction.

The senior class took its traditional sneak day Tuesday. They spent the previous night and the day at Horky's Park, Crete.

CONNECTING LINKS.

Seventy years ago last July—July 5, to be exact—William Stolley and a group of associates arrived in Nebraska on the site of what is now Grand Island.

Hope ran high among that little band of colonists for they had crossed the prairies at a season of the year when the countryside was most beautiful and they were thrilled with the prospect of establishing new homes in the wilderness. The Stolley colony had a greater dream, however, than to carve homes out of the prairie. It was the hope and belief that the new territory of Nebraska would establish its capital at Grand Island and so strong was this opinion that one of the first steps was to lay out building lots.

Of the disappointments and crushed hopes which were packed into a heroic struggle of fifty years, much might be written. Even before the colonists discovered that the vision of a capital was a vain one, they were faced with the emergency of food and protection. They were in the path of lawless bands of men streaming westward across the country. The small fields which they planted to grain were despoiled, and their livestock driven off. And then Indian troubles arose and between redskins and lawless whites, the members had little time to think of anything except self-preservation. Grasshopper plagues and drouth followed but by dint of great sacrifice and labor the survivors pulled through.

Stolley park, the original homestead of the leader of the expedition, is being dedicated today. It is the fourth of a chain of state parks in Nebraska. It embraces approximately 60 acres of land, upon which stands the original cabin which housed William Stolley and his wife. It has upon it the first schoolhouse in Hall county, and one of the earliest in Nebraska. It contains an old log fort, with its grim rifle holes, cut at convenient places so that its small garrison could beat off savage Indian attacks. These buildings, eloquent of a glorious past, mute testimony to the unswerving courage and faith of heroic men and women, make it of appealing historic interest.

But Stolley park does not lack in natural beauty either. Its entrance is lined by a row of magnificent trees. Revealing the love of its owner for trees, there are thirty-seven various species upon the land which the state now sets aside as a memorial. There are fifty varieties of flowers, with a magnificent formal garden. In the spring a 50-year old lilac showers the iris, the tulips and the myrtle growing at its feet with fragrant bloom. Near the Stolley cabin a fine specimen of blue spruce proudly lifts its branches more than fifty feet in the air.

Due to the generosity of the Stolley heirs, and the city of Grand Island, the state of Nebraska has made a most valuable addition to its park system. Beautiful and interesting from an historic viewpoint as it now is, the gift will be more deeply appreciated in the years to come.

With every evidence of modern civilization at our finger tips, we think of the days of pioneering as closed.

The automobile has replaced the covered wagon.

The sod dugout, the log cabin, and the frail "lean-to" has been vacant for many years.

In its place have come splendid frame, concrete and brick homes, equipped with modern heating plants, and bath rooms, boasting of electric lights and gas, telephone and radio. The trails across the prairies, so dimly marked they defied travel except in daylight, have given way to graveled highways, over which the traveler may cover greater distances in ten hours than he could in a month in those earlier days.

And yet, we, too, are pioneering.

A hundred years from now, Nebraska, maintaining its present rate of growth, will provide homes for a population of 5,000,000 of people instead of the 1,300,000 it now has. These splendid highways, these schools and colleges, these churches, and these towns and cities which we are now building will be our gift to them. The huge sums of money which we are spending upon roads, and the equally impressive amounts required to maintain and develop our educational system, the public buildings which we construct, the parks which we project and improve, will be the most lasting memorials which we can leave them. The present generation's part in history cannot be set down as conquerors of a new land. It can only be reflected through the permanent character of the development which our vision enables us to make.

Those who are occupying the stage a hundred years hence will look back upon us, even as we now glorify the work of the men and the women who came to Nebraska when the buffalo thundered across the prairie, and the prairie chicken, the grouse and the wild turkey broke the stilly silence of the morning air.

Every civilization is indelibly linked with its past. That is why it is so important that we now make provision for the millions of a hundred years from now, who will want some place to play, to view the handicraft of nature, undisturbed by man for more than a century, and to gain pride and strength from the contact with the past. Is it possible to place an estimate upon the enjoyment which these unborn millions will derive from this system of state parks which is still in its infancy?

AN OVER-SIZED FAMILY.

News reports incident to the impending trial of Fall and Sinclair at Washington on the charge of conspiracy to defraud the United States navy of its oil reserves through the attempted transfer of the Teapot Dome properties, just held invalid by the Supreme court, bring the startling information that it will be difficult to obtain a jury at Washington "because a great majority of the residents of the District of Columbia are in the employ of the federal government."

If the taxpayers of the country needed anything more to awaken them to the extent of the vast bureaucratic organization that has been built up to rule over them and take tribute of the wealth they produce, this amazing revelation should be enough to jolt them into consciousness of it.

The city of Washington and the District of Columbia are one and the same. Census bureau estimates as of July 1, 1926, credited the national capital with a population of 527,880, which by this time must have grown to something like 550,000. "A great majority" of that number—say two-thirds—would be approximately 367,000. It may be assumed, therefore, if the press dispatches are correct, that 367,000 persons in Washington are on the government's payroll. Most of the remainder, no doubt, are members of the families of federal employes.

The city of Lincoln, including its recently annexed suburbs, has about 80,000 inhabitants. It would take more than 4 cities of equal size, counting every man, woman and child in them, to equal the number of people holding government jobs at Washington. Let that fact sink in and then perhaps you will be able to understand why it is that upwards of 3½ billion dollars is being paid out every year to conduct the governmental operations of the United States.

Bear in mind, however, that not all of the federal officeholders and employes live at Washington. Every state in the union has a large quota of them residing within its borders. Many others spend their time traveling about the country. It was authoritatively stated not long after the close of the world war that Uncle Sam was supporting no fewer than 750,000 civil employes. The number has since been cut down, but there must be in the neighborhood of 600,000 left. That total does not include military or naval forces, other than the administrative personnel of the two departments.

Just imagine what the situation would be in Lincoln if a former state officer of Nebraska were on trial here for malfeasance and embezzlement of public funds, and the selection of an impartial jury were found to be difficult because nearly every adult person in the community was in the state's employ and, therefore, presumably prejudiced against the defendant.

Wouldn't the farmers of Nebraska and the people living in the smaller towns be inclined to kick up an awful rumpus over their taxes if such a condition existed here? Yet that is the state of affairs prevailing on a much larger scale at Washington, with every taxpayer and consumer in the whole country paying a share of the bill.

What is going to be the end of it all? Will the American people be willing to keep on forever supporting such a vast and ever-increasing army of jobholders?

A STORY IN FIGURES.

The bureau of census has completed its first preliminary survey of prisons and reformatories in the United States.

The figures impressively reveal that crime is increasing more rapidly than population. Fifty-eight penal institutions in thirty-one states reported a prison population of 59,692 as against 47,578 in 1923. The number of prison inmates in 1927 was 84.1 per 100,000 of population as against 66.6 in 1923.

The survey is most significant in another particular. Crime is not restricted to any certain section of the United States. We have come to think of the gang-ridden cities of the east, with their large populations, as particularly addicted to lawlessness and violence. Only insofar as a spectacular tinge is added to crime in these large centers of population is the conclusion justified, however. The agricultural commonwealths of the central west reveal an alarming disregard for law.

Oklahoma, it is true, has become largely industrialized as a result of the oil industry, but is still largely agricultural. And the number of prison inmates per 100,000 of population was 113.5 as against 83.1 in 1923. Only four states in the union have a blacker record than that—Nevada, with 293.4 per 100,000 population, Kansas with 162.7 per 100,000 population, Ohio with 137.4 per 100,000 population and California with 134 per 100,000 population.

Nebraskans may pride themselves upon the record of this state.

Its increase has been less than most of the states of the union, and at the same time, its prison population is relatively smaller than in most of its neighbors. Nebraska has a prison population of but 71.8 per 100,000 people as against 88.4 in Iowa, 98.2 in Missouri, 105.9 in Colorado, 88.8 in Minnesota, and 162.7 in Kansas.

Study of the figures must lead to the unwilling but inevitable conclusion that our methods in handling the crime problem have been ineffective. We have more crime because America has grown in population. But the proportion of crime is likewise greater than it was. We must confess that the efforts at reformation which we have made through almost universal adoption of parole methods have not helped. If anything they have aggravated the situation which they attempted to cure. And to this must be added the weaknesses of our jury system.

LIVESTOCK CONDITIONS.

Recent heavy shipments of livestock from the Nebraska range and from the farms emphasize the present satisfactory prices which are being paid.

At Kansas City Wednesday a carload of fat steers shipped by McNamara Bros., of Keaney, Mo., brought $16 a hundred, a new peace-time record for beef. With the exception of the war years of 1917 to 1920, the general level of cattle prices has never been so high as it is at present. It is from $2 to $4 higher than a year ago, when the top was reported at $12.25.

There is a shortage of cattle in the country which will probably insure the livestock men excellent prices for everything they have to sell. The federal bureau of crop estimates in Nebraska has no figures with reference to the number of head of cattle on farms and ranches, as compared with a year ago, but it has been roughly estimated there are 500,000 less than at the opening of the fall season in 1926. Drouth conditions which reduced the feed upon the farms necessitated the sale of cattle. The western Nebraska Panhandle, however, did not suffer so heavily as the eastern counties in the South Platte territory, and the ranges are reported to have about the same holdings.

An exceptional crop season has reversed conditions in 1927.

Nebraska has had abundant crops of everything grown in this state, and the farmers are well fortified to feed their grain during the winter. Those who are in a position to carry a bunch of cattle through the winter will apparently realize a nice profit.

The recovery of the livestock industry is one of the most gratifying developments in agriculture. No branch of farming activity was harder hit during the deflation period than those engaged in livestock-raising. Hundreds were wiped out when prices tumbled to pre-war levels, and the cattlemen found themselves caught with high-priced cattle which had to be placed upon the market immediately to take up obligations at the banks. Those who were able to survive have been doing nicely in the last two years. The present prices insure a continuance of the prosperity which has enabled the livestock industry to slowly creep back.

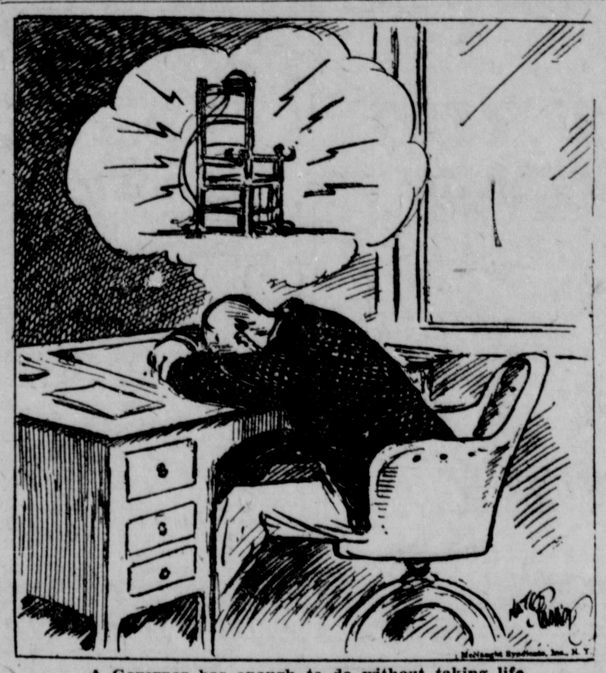
Perhaps the reason that there is an average of three applicants for every white collared job is that most of them have never had the enlightening experience of paying off a bricklayer or plasterer.

At least Ruth Elder was the first to land safely in the middle of the ocean if that adds anything to the progress of aviation.

The business district seems to have stolen the thunder of the country byways when it comes to parking problems.

That prohibition movement in a number of penitentiaries may be for the purpose of removing the bars.

A Great Governor



A Governor has enough to do without taking life.

BY WILL ROGERS.

Two years ago I blew into a state capitol to play one of my little concert engagements. Got in town in the morning early and one of the newspaper editors asked me if I would like to go up to the capitol and see the governor; that he was a very pleasant and splendid man. Well, of course, I was tickled to death at the honor, and we went up. There was several in his private office as the editor took me right in. I had noticed several country looking folks sitting outside the office. Well we met him and he was mightly sociable and nice.

We exchanged a lot of the usual democratic hard luck stories; of what a great party it was but just wasn't understood. He asked me if I had ever been out to see the home of a famous president who was buried there. I told him I had never been there. 'Course I knew what a great man he had been, but at the same time I had heard enough to know that an "Injun" didn't exactly rate high with him. And being a direct and proud descendant of the Cherokees, I knew he had quite a lot to do with running them out, and making them go west. But on the other hand I knew that he had unconsciously favored us in the long run, so I forgave him. Well, the governor said he wanted to take me out there himself, and show me the place. I told him I didn't want him to do a thing like that; that I knew he was busy and had no time to tour me around. But he insisted and 'phoned for his car.

While he was waiting they took me up to the historical library and there I started in an acquaintance with John Trotwood Moore, the best historical writer on our southern heroes. Don't miss his books.

Well, the governor drove us out there, thru a beautiful country and right in the most wonderful part is the old home of this unique president. It was late and the place was closed for tourists, and as there is no gas or electric lights in the house it looked like we wouldn't get to see the inside. But the governor dug up the caretaker and when he saw the governor, why he got a candle and we went thru the place by candle light. I won't dwell on what we saw for instead of prowling off to Europe to see some old junk that means nothing to our lives, why go and see this old place.

Governor's Story.

On the way back to town I was thanking the governor for my good fortune in having him show me the place personally and wasting all that valuable time on me, when he told me the following story: He was on his second term as governor of this state, and at daybreak in the morning he was faced with the first execution of a prisoner he had ever had. "He is a young boy, 24 or 25, married and has a family. He is a true mountaineer from the mountains in the western part of the state. He killed an old man who was a storekeeper, supposedly for his money. He was tried, convicted. The boy claimed the killing was accidental. His pleas for life imprisonment has been refused by our higher court and all that stands between that boy's life and death is me. I have been to see the boy myself several times. He is not the sullen, slouchy type of mountaineer boy at all. You could dress him up and you would mistake him for one of our college boys. He had a very good record, but the evidence showed that he had committed the crime in some way. I don't believe in capital punishment, I don't believe God gave us the right to willfully take anybody's life. But I swore to uphold the constitution of the state when I took office. I have gone over every phase of the case. I have talked with his people; I have talked with the witnesses; I have tried every means within my power to find some reason to keep from taking that boy's life. And do you know what is one of the main reasons that makes me hesitate in giving him life imprisonment is the very qualities of the boy himself. He is not afraid of man, beast, or devil. He is absolutely fearless, and if he went to the scaffold before we see the light of another day, he will walk there more steadily than we will get out of this very car. Now, if I commute his sentence I know that he is the type of boy that could not stand life imprisonment. As sure as we are here, he would at some time with that absolute fearlessness attack and kill some guards and perhaps take more life in escapink. Fear of being shot would mean nothing to him.

Asking Too Much.

"I am not a rich man, but I would give all that I possess, and start life again without a penny, if this thing hadn't come up. It shouldn't be that these things should rest absolutely in one man's hands. It's asking too much of a human being. A governor has enough to do without taking life. I truly wish at this moment that I had been defeated for office.

"And now Will, for that's what I am going to call you, that's all we know you by, I want to thank you instead of you thanking me for this trip. With your jokes and your incessant chatter you have kinder helped me to forget this afternoon. You could not have come along on a more opportune day. I would have been besieged every moment with people, with pleas, and petitions. I want you come by my house a few minutes and cheer my wife up a bit. This thing is as hard for her as me. I can't go to your lecture tonight. I had intended to, but these people will be coming to my house all evening and through the night.

I want to give you one of Bob Taylor's books, with his wonderful speeches and lectures in them. I want to autograph it for you. You would have loved Taylor, he was a great man. He was governor, he could appreciate my feelings tonight. Oh, if I just had some grounds to do something."

Well, as I left his house and hurried to the hall to annoy the audience, I felt, "Well, maybe a comedian is some good for something anyhow." I left the town after the show, rode all night to another city, but the minute I arrived there, I bought a morning paper. It was in the state. I nervously looked to see if there was headlines of an execution. There was. I knew then that duty to a sworn pledge had outweighed conscience.

He had explained the case with so much feeling that I had gone through a bad night myself. I felt, however, that I had met a man with a real heart. I couldn't ever say that a politician didn't have any real feeling. When I played there last year he had been elected to his third term as governor, a case unparalled in that state. We had another and more cheerful visit, and he was in my front row that night. He won't be there when I go back next time, for the great governor of all didn't reprieve his sentence.

I'll bet he will look for that old mountaineer boy up there and I wouldn't be surprised he don't find him. For if he did do the crime, I bet the Great Governor will find some extenuating circumstances that he will keep him there with him. This man was Governor Peay of the great state of Tennessee, who in some historic records will go down as signing the anti-evolution bill; but in the hearts of everybody that ever met him and knew him, he will go down as a real man with a soul and love for his fellow man.

Here and There

Kings as Merchants.
(The New York Times)

Many a tradesman has boasted of his service as bootmaker or tailor or florist to his majesty. The tables were turned a few days ago when King George himself turned merchant and took his stand behind the counter to sell flowers at a fete. According to the reports, he was very successful. When there was a run on white heather, with resulting exhaustion of his supply, and he had to resort to the usual appeal, "No, we haven't any white heather, but we have beautiful sweet peas," as we say in America, he "got away with it."

A lady seemed at first to balk at 16 shillings for a basket, but when his majesty insisted that it was "quite new," besides being beautiful he sold it, and was even 'tipped' the purchaser declining to take the change. The old quatrain about.

The man of law who never saw
The way to buy and sell,
Seeking to rise by merchandise
God never speeds him well.

had no application in this case, for at the end of three hours the merchant king was 'sold out."

Another feature of the fete was the sale by Sir Frederick Ponsonby, as auctioneer, of an historic picture, painted at the command of the king by the chancellor of the exchequer. It took Mr. Churchill two days to paint it and it "fetched" 115 guineas (about $575). This suggests a new method of replenishing the exchequer.

The Handwriting on the Tariff.
(The New York Times)

Not only from abroad come warnings to the United States that our high tariff walls now constitute a serious threat to our foreign commerce, and point to a time when, if they are not lowered, they will simply shut us in with a congestion of unsalable goods. A German economic authority has just issued a statement to that effect. Similar opinions are expressed in France and in England. Our own high protectionists might snap their fingers at all this, as being only the prejudiced and selfish endeavors of wicked foreigners to induce us to change our perfect and blessed tariff system. But what can they say when they find themselves wounded in the house of their friends?

Already they had been pained by the manifesto of leading American bankers and business men, asserting that needlessly high tariffs are destructive of trade and a prolific source of misunderstanding between nations. But now comes the Herald Tribune admitting that the conditions which led to the passing of the Fordney-McCumber act in 1922 have entirely changed, and that with them the tariff itself ought to be changed. It justly speaks of that measure as something which was enacted in a kind of post-war panic, when it was felt that something extreme had to be done to "defend" this country from a flood of foreign goods made cheap by depreciated currencies. But now, it argues, that strategy ought to be modified. Although they may think when they read it in The Herald Tribune that the world is coming to an end, high tariff republicans ought to take note of this:

Why make the present regime permanent? With currencies stabilized abroad and trade and production restored, there is no such urgent call as there used to be for emergency retaliation. Other cases may arise, as with France, in which we may not want to demand special minimum tariff treatment without giving something in return. The United States is able to protect its interests; but is it worth while to conduct all our tariff dealings with other nations on the exaggerated emergency basis of 1922?

Such an utterance from such a source is a noteworthy sign of the times. It shows that economic truth is mighty and will prevail. It also indicates that the hard facts of international commerce are beating their way into heads that could not be penetrated by the logic of general principles. The tariff trouble into which we have got with France has opened many eyes hitherto blind. It is only an indication of the embarrassments and losses which we are sure to encounter if we are to persist in the policy of demanding fiscal favors from other nations while giving them none. Slowly there is creeping into minds of even convinced protectionists the idea that the requirements of the country have greatly altered since it became the chief mountain of credit for the rest of the world, and since its need of foreign markets to keep domestic production going became more obvious and urgent than ever before. A sweeping change of view, such as this, can hardly fail to issue, all in good time, in corresponding changes of our tariff laws.

John Dalzell of the Old Order.
(The Kansas City Star.)

It was only fourteen years ago that John Dalzell of Pittsburgh went into political eclipse, and yet within that time he was almost forgotten. Dalzell, who died in California this week, was one of the outstanding figures of congress through thirteen consecutive terms in the house. He was an apostle of tight rules and one of the small group that ruled the lower branch; he was a member of the Pennsylvania machine that Quay and Penrose successfully directed; he was Tom Reed's first lieutenant when the man from Maine was leader of the house majority and later speaker; he was at Cannon's right hand when the big fight against "Uncle Joe" and the house rules was made in the Taft administration.

When Dalzell entered congress John G. Carlisle was speaker, Roger Q. Mills was democratic leader, with "Pig Iron" Kelley (also of Pittsburgh) titular minority leader, and Thomas B. Reed and William McKinley rivals for actual leadership. Among his associates were such republican leaders as Joseph G. Cannon, Nelson Dingley, Henry Cabot Lodge, Robert R. Hitt, Julius Caesar Burrows, Charles H. Grosvenor, Charles A. Boutelle, Robert M. La Follette and David B. Henderson (afterward speaker), and shortly came Jonathan P. Dolliver and William P. Hepburn. It was to this picturesque past generation that the Pennsylvania congressman belonged.

Dalzell went down in the primary elections of April, 1912, when, to the amazement of the country, Pennsylvania progressives, inspired by the leadership of Theodore Roosevelt, smashed the Penrose machine from one end of the state to the other, capturing almost the entire presidential delegation from Taft and defeating many old-time republicans for renomination.

That event ushered in a new political era and Dalzell never came back.

An Opportunity For Service.

Clay Center, Kas., Oct. 12.

To the editor of The Lincoln Star: In your editorial on "Scientific Piffle" you infer that a murderer or other hardened criminal would consider it a favor to be sent to a psychiatric ward for study. You are mistaken. He or she would much rather go to the penitentiary or be dispatched to the other world. For centuries civilization has been killing or incarcerating undesirable members of society who do not regard properly the rights of others. Has it done anything to decrease crime?

When every other means has failed I say kill or incarcerate them rather than free them and let them go on with the work they have chosen as theirs. But if science can improve conditions by studying criminals, dead or alive, it should do so.

Every human being has a spirit that can be trained and developed in the right direction. That spirit is the life, both here and hereafter, of the individual. It is composed of; the mind, the seat of all thought; the heart, the seat of all feeling; and the soul, the seat of all faith. If these three are properly trained we have a well balanced person; if one or more of them is neglected we have the criminal and other unfortunates. To say that nothing can be done for them except to get them out of the way is rather begging the question and I am glad that science has the courage "to take a new track." I wish them every success.

Famous Pets Of Famous People

Prince Maurice's Parrot, Which Could Converse Like a Human Being.

BY PRESTON WRIGHT.

History has recorded many famous parrot pets and even nowadays the newspapers print stories about these birds that reveal remarkable intelligence; but probably the most celebrated of all was the one which Prince Maurice of Orange had when he was in Brazi as governor toward the close of the seventeenth century.

A doughty old fellow was Prince Maurice. The Prince of Orange told Sir William Temple, the British statesman and diplomat, and the author of a most interesting book of memoris, that Maurice "had with great industry sought all chance to die at the Battle of Seneffe without succeeding—much to his regret." Sir William did not wonder at this, considering Prince Maurice's age. He was then 76, and suffering from "gout and stones."

The old Dutchman had lived a full life and had seen many things. But none the Brazilian parrot. When he returned to Holland from South America and told about the bird, his story spread over all Europe. The pity is that he did not bring the parrot back with him.

Sir William Temple heard about the parrot, which was reputed to ask and answer questions like reasonable person, so that most people thought it a case of witchcraft. Indeed Prince Maurice's chaplain in Brazil, who lived long afterward in Holland, never from then on could endure such a bird, declaring "they all had the devil in them." Eventually Sir William and the Prince met, and Sir William asked to be told the true story. Here it is, as Prince Maurice related it:

When he first went to Brazil he said, he heard stories about a remarkable old parrot that he couldn't credit, they seemed so fantastic. But finally he grew so curious, he sent for it to be brought to his palace. It was indeed very old, and imposingly large.

When it came into the room where the Prince and a number of other Dutchmen were seated (said Prince Maurice)' it looked about a moment and then remarked:

"What a company of whites are here."

The man who was hearing it, pointed to the Prince.

"What do you think this man is?" he asked.

"Some general or other."

The bird was brought closer to Maurice, who now took up the conversation.

"Whence come you?" he queried. And the parrot replied:

"From Maronnan."

"To whom do you belong?"

"To a Portuguese."

"What do you do there?"

"I look after the chickens."

The prince laughed.

"You look after the chickens?" he asked incredulously.

"Yes," repeated the parrot determinedly. "I look after the chickens. And I know well enough to do it."

With that it clucked four or five times, as people cluck when they call chickens.

Here the interview ended. Whatever other conversations the Prince had with the parrot, he did not tell Sir William. Doubtless the Englishman's visit was too short.

But Sir William cleared up one doubtful point before they separated.

"And did the parrot speak Dutch?" he asked.

"Oh, no," replied Prince Maurice. "His language was Brazilian I talked to him through interpreters."

"But could you trust them?" asked Sir William.

"Aye. One of the interpreters was a Dutchman who spoke Brazilian and the other a Brazilian who spoke Dutch. I asked each separately and privately what the bird had said and their answers were in perfect agreement."

That settled the matter for Sir William. He made the story a part of his memoirs and so preserved it for posterity. Interestingly enough, Locke referred to it in his "Essay on Human Understanding."

After he had kept the bird awhile Prince Maurice sent it back to Marinnan. Perhaps his chaplain objected too strenuously to the presence of the supernatural creature.

Your Telephone

It's a business for vision— and forecast.

THE telephone commercial engineer looks at a vacant lot—and sees a great building.

He surveys an idle street and sees a hustling business center.

It's his job to have the facilities of service ready—on time.

He studies even the smallest community in the territory served by his company.

He projects the telephone buildings, switchboards, and lines on what will happen next year and the year after and for twenty-four years ahead.

He can't wait until the new factory, or apartment house, or suburban development is completed. That would be too late!

He must be ready in advance of the demand for service.

At this time several thousands of dollars of telephone construction work is in progress over the territory served by this company.

This year's total will exceed six hundred thousand.

It is a business for vision and forecast.

The Musical World

Don Berry returned to the city Thursday after a six weeks' tour to France with the official American Legion band. Mr. Berry played solo trumpet in the band and was the recipient of the highest praise for his concert work in Paris.

Marjorie Little will give a recital this evening in the First Presbyterian church at Beatrice, dedicating the new organ just installed there.

Lillian Polley gave a review program before her regular class Saturday morning, covering the recital to be given before the Matinee Musicale by Mabel Garrison.

Frances Smith, student with Charles Righter, and Don Campbell, student with Don Berry, gave a program for the convocation of the state agricultural college Thursday morning.

Mrs. Will Owen Jones resumed her work last week after three weeks in Europe.

Sigma Alpha Iota Trio, consisting of Blanche Larabee, student with Charles Righter, violin, Gladys Beyette, student with Herbert Gray, 'cello, and Elaine McBeth, student with Marguerite Klinker, piano, may be heard each evening at the Lincoln hotel.

At the Fine Arts convocation, which will be held Tuesday morning at eleven o'clock in the Temple treater, the following program will bepresented by Miss Bernice J. Fuentes, contralto, as her Junior recital, assisted at the piano by Elaine McBeth:

Ocessata di piagarmi (Old Italian), A. Scarlatti.
Passing By—Purcell.
Charmante Marguerite (Old French).
Bitte—Franz.
Der Lindenbaum—Schubert.
Mignon—Beethoven.
Know'st Thou Not That Fair Land?—A. Thomas.
Allah—Chadwick.
The Morning Wind—Branscombe.
My Heart and the Rain—Neidlinger.
Afterwards—Allitsen.
The Last Hour—Kramer.

TO GIVE ARTIST RECITAL MONDAY

Miss Mabel Garrison will give an artist recital Monday, October 17, under the auspices of the Matinee Musicale.

Miss Mabel Garrison, coloratura soprano, will appear in Lincoln at the first of the artist recitals of the Matinee Musicale on Monday, October 17, at 3 o'clock at the Temple theater.

Miss Garrison has progressed rapidly in her career, and reached the top of her profession before she was out of her twenties. She says there are two kinds of musicians, the real students and the slackers, and she is probably the best example of an American singer who has always practiced what she preaches.

"I find that in the serious student there is a great tendency to overwork, in fact, to such an extent that he often undermines his health, which is not unnatural for one who has ambitions or ideals. The main point is the need for diversion and play. Do not do what the children were forced to do in the old time schools, where they were obliged to sit and study for hours at a time until they were exhausted mentally and nearly-paralyzed physically. An occasinal break in the routine gives bodily relaatxion and mental stimulus. Do not fit yourself in a groove, but fit the groove to yourself and see what great things you can accomplish by so doing.

"Nowadays people have gone mad on the subject of coaching and interpretation. In fact one is not 'a la mode' if one is not studying under a coach with a foreign name and a beastly disposition. It really doesn't matter who the man is as long as he is the 'dernier cri' in popularity either socially or as the accompanist of a famous Madame So-andso. Thus the aspiring student spends a great deal of money trying to become a finished product when the elementary things have been neglected and he wastes his money and energy which would be of the greatest value later on."

Miss Garrison's program will be as follows:

Plaisir d'amour ..... Padro Martini
Aria—Caldo sangue .. Alessandro Scarlatti
Hey Nonny No, (XVI Century) .....
..... Arthur eBnjamin
Tyrley, Tyrlow (XVI Century) .....
..... Peter Warlock

Lincoln will have the opportunity to hear a 72-year old "march king" and his famous band when the University of Nebraska brings John Philip Sousa's organization here on November 1.

Sousa is without doubt the most remarkable conductor in America. Approaching his seventy-third birthday, he is still hale and hearty. This is his thirty-fifth anniversary of his famous band, and his fiftieth year as a conductor.

Besides this the famous musician is a prolific and versatile composer. His 128 marches represent only a small share of his labors. He is the composer of six operas, including "El Capitan," "The Bridge-Elect," "Desire," "The Queen of Hearts" and "The Charlatan." Back in Victorian days, when Sousa was just beginning his career, Gilbert and Sulvan had popularized light opera or operatta and Sousa was among the leading composers in the country in this respect.

More than twenty suites, forty or fifty songs, and innumerable transcriptions and arrangements—these all stand to Sousa's credit. A guess at the total number of his compositions is 5,000.

The remarable span of Sousa's career is best realized when one reviews the happenings in the world when he was making his first appearances as a director. A year before he picked up the baton for the first time. Aleanxder Graham Bell was demonstrating the telephone at the Philadelphia centennial. At the end of Sousa's first year as a conductor Edison patented the incandescent electric lamp. In 1892, Sousa's band made its first tour, the country was getting excited over the World's Fair in Chicago, and everybody was dancing the two-step to the measure of the Sousa marches.

Lucille Cline, soprano, gave a recital at the Temple theatre at the university convocation the past week.

Christine Sedlacek, soprano, was the recipient of honorable mention at the recent state contest held at Omaha for the Atwater Kent awards.

Katherine Varner of Omaha has returned from Florida, where she appeared in recital in several cities.

Mr. Wheatley's Tosca performance to be broadcast has been changed to Saturday night Oct. 22 at 9 p. m.

A sign of the increasing adoption of class piano teaching in the curriculum of the schools is found in the recent appointment of a special committee on this subject by the Music Supervisor's Conference. That committee was appointed as a recognition of the growing importance and demonstrated practibility of group piano instruction in the schools. It will act under the auspices of the conference committee on instructional affairs. It's purpose is to promote class instruction in this basic home instrument, to make recommendations as to advancing the status of such teaching in this country, and to help individual school systems that wish to adopt piano classes as an accredited form of study.

Several hundred cities and towns now offer class piano training in the schools. These provide the committee with material for investigation and demonstrate the potentialities of the plan. The committee find many evidences that the former feeling among educators that the piano should not be taught in groups is fast vanishing. They now meet with a rather general belief that the group teaching is worth while first of all, because it gives every child who is at all interested a chance to express himself through music. Furthermore it gives parents an opportunity to determine whether the child has enough talent to warrant his being placed under a private teacher, when he has gone sufficiently far with class lessons. There is also the consideration that some ability on the piano is required of voice students and is desirable foundation in learning to play on other instruments.

Many instances have been submitted of the discovery of a marked talent for the piano as manifested in class work. An example of such a discovery comes from Washington, D. C., where the gifts of one boy were so demonstrated in the piano class that he was enabled to continue his studies in Maine during the summer and to go to New York for lessons at regular intervals thereafter.

That the classes have increased the business of the private teachers has been reported to the committee as a general experience. Says Maybelle Glenn, the supervisor at Kansas City, Mo., "From private teachers with whom pupils trained in our two year course have subsequently studied we hear encouraging reports of the thouroughness of the class instruction. In fact several of the prominent music teachers of the city have been glad to place their own children in the classes because of the quality and the content of the teaching."

"Parents constantly visit their children's classes", continued Miss Glenn, "that they may be able to help Mary or Billy at home with their practicing. In many cases parents in piano-less homes have been so delighted with their children's ability to play the first little tunes, that they have bought pianos."

The Morning Musicale Review met at 10 o'clock Wednesday, October 12, at the Woodburn, 1432 G street, with Mrs. August Molzer as hostess. Mrs. Clarence Emerson gave an informal talk covering the operas she heard during the time she and Dr. Emerson lived in Vienna during the past summer, and showed many interesting postcards of historic spots and musical associations and landmarks in Vienna. She illustrated her talk by motion pictures which she and Dr. Emerson took while travelling in Switzerland, Germany and Italy.

The club also had a rare treat in the presence of Rudolph Seidl, the conductor of the Lincoln Little Symphony Orchestra who addressed the club on "the Growth and Development of the Modern Orchestra." He traced the development of the orchestra from earliest times, dwelling especially upon Beethoven, the father of the symphony, and illustrating by records his fifth and ninth symphonies. He also touched upon Liszt, Wagner, Cesar Franck, Debussy, and Strauss, illustrating by records the characteristics of modern harmony in the modern symphonies.

DE VILMAR-SCHAEFER STUDIO

Owing to the urgent demand for class lessons in classes of two, three and four students, these studios are now starting such classes in the voice and dramatic art department as well as in the violin department.

An unusual number of applications for voice and dramatic art have been received by Madame de Vilmar and schedules are now being arranged to accommodate all students.

Prof. Schaefer has this season a much larger registration for violin, viola, and cello than any previous season.

John McCormack the great Irish Tenor who will give a recital at the University Coliseum, Wednesday Nov. 9th. Reserve your seats early, at popular prices. Ross P. Curtice.

ORGAN PROGRAM AT WESTMINISTER.

Lincoln music lovers will have an opportunity to hear one of the country's greatest organists Friday evening when Clarence Reynolds of Denver will present a three-part organ recital at Westminister church. As an assisting artist, Miss Ella Hjertaas, head of the voice department at St. Olaf college, will offer a contralto program in two groups.

Mr. Reynolds is well known in Lincoln especially for his radio programs which are broadcast through KOA from the large municipal organ in the Denver auditorium. He was formerly organist at Ocean Grove, N. J. Lincoln music followers pronounce Mr. Reynolds as one of the leading masters of the organ. His program is yet to be announced but with the many requests from Lincoln people for 'The Storm,' it is certain that it will be included.

Miss Hjertaas is well known in European as well as American musical circles for the prominent part she has taken in the A Cappella choir of St. Olaf. She was for several years a member of the renowned group and is looked upon as one of the leading Norwegian contraltos. Her program will consist of two parts in which will be featured songs from the finest literature.

THE ROBBINS STUDIOS.

The following students with Floyd Robbins will appear in studio recital program Saturday afternoon, October 22, at 2 o'clock. Barbara Morris, Marjorie Way, Frank Greenslit, Laureola Stover, Mary Passmore, Ellie Weinert, Wentworth Fling, Anne Pailing, Pauline Linch, and Mrs. E. P. Flickinger.

Harriet Burr, Bernice Nickel, Ruth Erwin, Laura Hoffmann, Blanche Greenslit, Marie Mengers, Louise Branting, Laureola Stover, and Marguerite Green, pupils with Edith Lucille Robbins, will appear in a recital Saturday afternoon, October 22, at 3:30 o'clock in the studios.

Organizations and individuals that observe the National Music Week are being asked to enter on their calendar the week of May 6-12, 1928, as the time of the coming celebration.

This date has just been announced by the National Music Week committee. In view of the fact that the 1927 observance was held on May 1-7, the committee thinks it well to point out the fact that there is no change in the period for the coming music week. The festival of music always begins in the first Sunday in May which, next year, happens to fall a little later than usual.

Foreign adoption of the Music Week idea grows with each year's observance in this country. Following South Africa, where there have been two annual Music Fortnights at Johannesburg, comes a new adherent in British East Africa, where a music festival is being planned for October in Uairobi, under the auspices of the acting governor, Sir Edward Denham. Observances were held last spring in Canada, Guam, the Philippines, Hawaii and the Virgin Islands. The governor of the last mentioned is one of the recent additions to the honorary committee of governors of the National Music Week committee.

Stephen Leacock.

III.

"But don't you really think," said Mrs. Rasselyer-Brown (she was seated at one end of the dinner table), "that Dante is essentially modern?"

She had got this out of a book on Dante that she had bought last week in anticipation of the Dante afternoon at the Ladies' Thinking Circle. But that didn't matter.

"Possibly so," commented very slowly and thoughtfully the gentleman on her right, Mr. Sikleigh Snoop, the sex-poet, at the same time gently imbibing about half a stomach full of fourteen dollar champagne. "But after all, what is modern, and what is medieval? Even the cinquecentisti seems hopelessly up to date."

"How true!" murmured Mrs. Rasselyer-Brown.

. . . . . .

In the beginning, at the other end of the table, all that Mr. Rasselyer-Brown had said to the lady beside him was, "These oysters came from Prince Edward Island."

But as she had been specially selected for her stupidity, that was good enough for her.

. . . . . .

Between Mrs. Rasselyer-Brown at the end (the only real end) of thetable and Mr. Rasselyer-Brown, there were laid vast beds of yellow daffodils in green vases, and a phalanx of guests six deep on each side. In other words, it was one of those cosy little dinners—only fourteen people—which are a special feature of the Mausoleum club.

Large private dinners at the Mausoleum club are generally given upstairs, either in the Blue Room with the big egg-shaped table, or in the Red room, or in the Pink room. But people generally take the Octagonal room if they have merely a cosy, little, homelike dinner for only twelve or fourteen people.

. . . . . .

Meantime, the oyster and the white wine had given place to a thin soup and sherry, and Mrs. Rasselyer-Brown from the end of the table was saying:

"And so you think that the sex motif is the dominant feeling in the work of Botticelli?"

"Perhaps," said the poet; "not so much, of course, as in Can Grande della Scala."

'Ah, no," admitted Mrs. Rasselyer-Brown.

"Nor even in Canino della Spigiola."

"No, perhaps not."

. . . . . .

And just at that moment there was a lull in the conversation of the guests, six to a side, and Mrs. Rasselyer-Brown could hear her husband say:

"Lately I've been trying an egg coal mixed with a little broken nut. I believe you get a steadier heat that way."

Then she knew that her husband was talking about the furnace. Within herself she groaned. She knew that he knew every kind of fuel from a standing maple tree to a Welsh anthracite brikuette. Of course he did. He had made, perhaps, about five million dollars out of fuel. And so he talked of the furnace at dinner. This kind of thing is hard to bear.

There are things in life that we want to forget. And one of them for Mrs. Rasselyer-Brown was the little house on the side street where they had lived thirty years ago when young Mr. Rasselyer-Brown walked down to a coal shed every morning in response to a whistle at 7 a. m.

When Mr. Rasselyer-Brown referred to this forgotten period, he used to say rather wistfully:

"Those were great days."

But Mrs. Rasselyer-Brown never spoke of them.

. . . . . .

Meantime, the soup and sherry had changed to a fish souffle and champagne, and the hostess turned—just at the proper moment—to her other neighbor.

"Have you picked up anything interesting lately, Mr. Feathertop?" she asked.

MRS. RASSELYER-BROWN ENTERTAINS

One of the Most Adventurous Adventures with the Idle Rich

Put him, for instance beside Mr. Silkleigh Snoop, the sex-poet, and where was he?

Mr. Feathertop was known as an art collector. He "picked up" a few things in that way too. But socially, of course, no one ever spoke of that.

"Nothing much," he answered. "I took a run over to Europe last summer and picked up an odd thing or two. I found a rather good ikon in a little Polish podesta, and part of quite an old samovar in a dobroski in Bucharest."

Mrs. Rasselyer-Brown groaned again. To think that her husband would never put his foot out of the country, and that their wedding tour to Niagara Falls represented his entire life travel.

And just at this moment, again she caught a sentence or two of his talk:

"Maple burns with a steadier heat, ma'am, but it ain't the quality of beech."

. . . . . .

And so this dreadful burden was carried through the dinner, course by course, and wine by wine, as Mrs. Rasselyer-Brown had borne it for years—indeed, ever since her husband's fortune had began to move from the thousands to the millions and they got their new friends.

And so when the ladies retired to themselves to another part of the club embowered in ferns and shaded to a soft red light, Mrs. Rasselyer-Brown spoke openly; in fact, unburdened herself to one or two of her bosom friends.

"My dear," she said, "I shouldn't mind things so much" (the things she wouldn't mind were, let us say, the two million dollars of standing timber that Brown Limited, the ominous business name of Mr. Rasselyer-Brown, were buying that year) "if Mr. Rasselyer-Brown did anything. But he does nothing. Every morning after breakfast off to his wretched office, and never back till dinner, and in the evening nothing but his club, or some business meeting. One would think he would have ambition. How I wish I had been a man."

It was certainly a shame.

So it came that, in almost everything she undertook, Mrs. Rasselyer-Brown, as she explained, had to act without the least help from her husband. Every Wednesday, for instance, when the Dante club met at her house (they selected four lines each week to meditate on and then discussed them at lunch), Mrs. Rasselyer-Brown had to carry the whole burden of it—her very phrase, "the whole burden"—alone. Anyone who has carried four lines of Dante through a Moselle lunch knows what a weight it is.

In all these things her husband was useless, quite useless. It is not right to be ashamed of one's husband. And, to do her justice, Mrs. Rasselyer-Brown always explained to her three hundred intimates that she was not ashamed of him; in fact, that she refused to be. But it was hard to see him brought into comparison at their own table with superior men. Put him, for instance, beside Mr. Sikleigh Snoop, the sex-poet, and where was he? He couldn't even understand what Mr. Snoop was saying.

And when Mr. Snoop would stand on the hearth-rug with a cup of tea balanced in his hand, and discuss whether sex was or was not the dominant note in Botticelli, Mr. Rasselyer-Brown would be sulking in a corner in his ill-fitting dress-suit. His wife would often catch with agonized ear such scraps of talk as, "When I was first in the coal and wood business," or, "It's a coal that burns quicker than egg, but it hasn't the heating power of nut," or even in a low undertone the words, "If you're feeling dry while he's reading—"

. . . . . .

And while Mrs. Rasselyer-Brown was explaining all this in the retiring room, in the Octagonal dining room the men had drawn their chairs to Mr. Rasselyer-Brown's end of the table.

"Your wife is very keen on Italian poetry," said the poet.

"She is certainly a wonderful woman," said Mr. Rasselyer-Brown.

"I found her much interested in Touranian art," said Mr. Feathertop.

"Oh, she would be," answered Mr. Rasselyer-Brown, "she's wonderful woman, all right."

And as they multiplied their praises and minged them with port at twenty dollars a bottle, Mr. Rasselyer-Brown kept murmuring "Yes, sir, she's a wonder, all right."

And he really thought so.

Such is life, and such are men and women.

Venture Into Daily Paper Field By Students of Small Town High School Succeeds

In hundreds of population, Litchfield doesn't rank very high.

In the same manner, its high school does not have a very large enrollment.

However, the enthusiasm and ingenuity of its students is not limited by the size of the school or of the town.

The Litchfield high school has its own little daily paper. It is a small sheet, but it gives all the news of the school to the pupils and to the patrons.

"The Daily Radiogram," as it is modernly titled, is edited by Robert Gill, a senior. The twenty-first number of the second volume was published last week.

L. M. Samples, superintendent of schools for Litchfield, is the man behind the idea. When he assumed his present position eight years ago, the school had no paper, but the boys and girls were eager to undertake the venutre.

Publish Seven Issues.

Willing to try anything once, Mr. Samples allowed the students to try out the idea. The first year seven monthly papers at a cost of $300 were published.

"That was cheap enough," Mr Samples avers, "but too expensive for us to keep up."

The paper might easily have passed out of existence at that point, had it not been for Mr. Samples. However it continues to survive and publish all the school news there is to print. Previous to being a superintendent of schools, Mr. Samples had been a printer, and he knew that equipment could be purchased for little more than the $300, and the student taught to do their own work.

"The plan worked fine," he says succinctly.

Radiogram Arrives.

"The Daily Radiogram" is the result. In its two columns are listed any school visitors, "today's tardies," speakers at assembly periods, football games, practices and schedules, high school social events, "today's absentees," special projects in grammar or high school rooms, class meetings, and miscellaneous material. If the pupils and patrons of the Litchfield school aren't aware of the school events, it isn't the fault of the school.

As "The Daily Radiogram" is published this year, it has no subscription list as it is delivered to the patrons of the district without charge. Carriers deliver the paper in town and rural pupils are given copies to take home each day at 4 o'clock.

The history of the paper, from the time the students began to print it on their own press, is interesting. The first year the pupils bought and paid for a $400 plant with money from subscriptions, advertising, and a school play. The next year they added another $200 in equipment, paying for it through subscriptions and advertising, and then contributed about $100 to the school fund.

Was Called Bugle.

In those days the paper was known as "The Bugle," and was printed every two weeks. The plant had cost the district nothing, so Mr. Samples decided to discontinue the advertising as subscriptions more than met the cost of the ink and the paper.

In the last semester of last year, MMr. Samples started the daily bulletin to report the absent and tardy pupils.

Because two papers seemed unnecessary, it was planned to discontinue the daily and publish "The Bugle" weekly. However, the public had become so interested in the daily that the semi-monthly lost out and the daily was continued, and "The Daily Radiogram" is now the official school publication at Litchfield.

The expense for paper and ink are taken care of by the school fund, not by the district. The carriers are given admittance to all school activities as pay for their work. Naturally, it isn't possible to supply routes for all the boys who make application.

Does Other Printing.

In addition to the school paper, the school press does nearly all of school printing. Mr. Samples has found that it has been a great saving for the activities fund.

Although the printing press was installed primarily for the paper, the department has helped to increase the high school enrollment in Litchfield. According to the superintendent, it has grown 30 per cent in the eight years he has been there.

When occasion arises, the boys print special bulletins and reports. Just before the opening of school, one was sent to the eighth grade graduates. It stressed the value of high school education, both from a cultural and a monentary standpoint. It mentioned the advantages of the social and athletic training of the high school, the new departments, the valuable older ones, and the larger future life for which the high school would prepare a child.

"This bulletin to the non-resident eighth grade graduates helped us interest them in this high school. Our district now collects practically one-half of its operating costs off non-resident tuition," Mr. Samples declared.

MAN AND YEAST

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS.

Raymond Pearl, of John Hopkins University, finds that yeast, and not only yeast, but bacteria and that devoted victim of scientific curiosity, the fruit fly, increase and multiply according to a common law of population growth. The organism mentioned he has studied in his laboratory, but he believes that the same law applies to all living organisms, including man himself.

The working of the law of which he speaks is summed up thus:

"The population at first grows slowly, but gains impetus as it grows, passing gradually into a stage of rapid growth, which finally reaches a maximum of rapidity. After this stage of most rapid growth the population increases ever more and more slowly until finally there is no more perceptible growth at all; in short, the populations of various forms of life first wax in their speed of growing and then wane."

In comparing the "curve" of population growth exhibited by the lower organisms with that of man, Dr. Pearl has studied the census records of the United States France, England, Austria, Belgium, Denmark, Italy, Norway, Japan, Java, the Philippine Islands and other countries, as well as the city records of New York and other towns, and the conclusion is that if the records were sufficiently long to make the case conclusive, "population growth, if undisturbed, would probably follow in human groups the complete course exhibited by the yeast population."

In one single case the entire cycle of population growth has been practically completed since census statistics have been used. This refers to the native population of Algeria. "In this case the human population followed in its whole cycle of growth a curve of the same characteristic form that has been discussed for the yeast."

It may be said that the practical bearing of all this is to show how very complete is the fundamental relation of human life with that of all other organisms, both high and low. It offers something for eugenists to work upon, and may serve to guide the efforts of those who would arrest and reverse the course of population grwth in notable cases where it is at present on the decline.

The situation to be dealt with is not the same if it results from a general biological law as it would be if special human characteristics alone were at work. Unquestionably social ideas and conduct have profound local effects upon the human population growth, but Dr. Pearl's research apears to make it certain that, independent of human behavior, the rate of increase of the population of a country depends upon some deep-seated factor common to all forms of physical life upon this planet.

With the exception of man it would seem that no class of animals has any control over its rate of reproduction. If he has such control it arises from his possession of special intelligence enabling him to interfere with general laws of nature and to bend them, more or less, to his will and needs. Whether he is invariably wise in his interference is another question.

The Theatres

Familiar "Fadeout Clinch" Of Movies Giving Away To Unhappy Endings, Says Jesse L. Lasky

"Jesse James," which Fred Thomson says tells the true tale of America's famous and picturesque bad man, has opened in New York. It's the first time Fred and a picture of this type have ever had a chance at the great white way. "Scooter" Lowrey, who visited Lincoln with Our Gang trio a week ago, is Fred at 5, before he became a bold banditti.

Here comes our old chum, Harold Lloyd, with a title for his picture. "Speedy" it is, which shouldn't be so bad for a Lloyd description. Perhaps they figured the name would take away the jinx—they've been weeks making a few shots, what with bad weather and Harold's coryza, and he had begun to think he could never say "California, Here I Come." Harold divides his time between a horse car and a taxi.

"The reign of the happy ending, the clinch fadeout, without which no motion picture in the past has been considered complete, is about to be disturbed." Jesse L. Lasky is the authority.

"A new contender for the throne of popularity has appeared. The public, having tasted of the unhappy ending for a change, finds it highly palatable, and cries for more."

Mr. Lasky has proof. Paramount weeps its honor roll on which every month the ten current releases of the company scoring greatest box office success are shown, together with their records. The roll is exclusive of road shows, which are supposed to go over "big." "Underworld," picture of gangster life, has a fadeout of high drama, and leads the list. "The Way of All Flesh," which ended in a tear, and "Children of Divorce," which had a natural conclusion, if sad, are among the best ten.

There's no rest for Bebe Daniels. That girl hews to her job, let the vacations vanish where they may. As soon as "She's a Sheik" is finished, Bebe becomes an imaginary invalid who is a millionairess in "Wooden Dollars."

Sequel Comes Soon.

"The Cock-Eyed World" is to be a sequel to "What Price Glory." This new photoplay, with its theme the professional ex-soldier's slant on civilian life in New York after the war, will bring together once more the principals of the earlier picture, including Victor McLaglen, Dolores Del Rio, Edmund Lowe, Phyllis Haver, Barry Norton& Sammy Cohen and Ted McNamara.

Janet Gaynor and Charles Farrel are to be together in 'Lady Cristilinda." Frank Borzage, who produced "Seventh Heaven," which made Janet a star, will direct this number.

In recognition of the sweeping popularity of collegiate football, Fox has inaugurated a series of action pictures showing the principal elevens of the country on the field. The elevens included are Notre Dame, University of California, Leland Stanford, Northwestern, Chicago, Southern California, Washington, Virginia, St. Louis university, Missouri, Syracuse, Villa Nova, Vanderbilt, Alabama, Southwestern, Michigan, Colgate, Iowa, Kansas, Drake and Nebraska.

Jack Holt, who has gone over to Columbia, is to make "The Tigress" "a romantic love story set against the fiery and colorful background of the Spanish Sierra Nevadas," so his p. a. says. P. A. also says "it's a plum."

First National is to have the right to produce "The Miracle," and not M. G. M., as it had hoped and even longed. The New York Supreme court said so, after some litigation. F. N. is free to cast and film now.

Jacqueline Logan is about to have the lead in "The Leopard Lady." It is to be made at the DeMille studio.

If you are looking for Lois Wilson, you will find her in Venice—Calif. She's making exteriors for "Coney Island."

"Judgment of the Hills," an FBO picture, is nearing completion. Virginia Valli and Frank Darro are in the leading roles.

Antonio Moreno has been signed to play opposite Olive Borden in "Come to My House," for Fox. Doris Lloyd, Richard Maitland and Ben Hard comprise the other members of the cast.

New Beauty.

Lia Tora, who, if you will believe me is, the most beautiful girl in Brazil, is come to our movies. "With a name that sounds like music and a screen presence that possesses the rhythmic flow of poetry," she comes, so they tell us. What could a meagre typewriter add to that description? So far she hasn't a job, but she has a contract, so she is well off.

Believe it or not, Mary Nolan comes from Berlin. She came to be a United Artists' player, but as that company makes few, prolonged features, she has had her five-year contract transferred to Universal, where they make them more often. Her first picture will be "The Foreign Legion," in which she has the leading role opposite Norman Kerry and in which Lewis Stone will be the villain. She has starred in fourteen different roles in Berlin, and U. A. wanted her after seeing her efforts in "Sorrell and Son."

Lupino Lane is his own leading woman. Lane is forced to assume the dress of a woman, and so he plays this part as well as the principal comedy role. His brother, Wallace Lupino, the villain, also cavorts about in skirts.

William Powell's next picture has been entitled, "Power." He has just finished "The West Pointer."

W. C. Fields, playing in "The Side Show," and hilarious center of several movie and many stage comedies, had an accident last week. Riding his bicycle in a proper manner, a truck hit him and dragged him several yards. Fields is not funning at the moment, but is wondering how long it takes a broken vertebrae to mend.

Wesleyan Notes

The first Wesleyan Woman's Educational council meeting of the year was held Tuesday. It was a birthday party.

Miss Helene Clement, assistant in the department of physical education for women at Wesleyan, is attending the Baptist young people's convention, at Hastings, October 15 and 16. This afternoon she will speak on "Young People and Amusements."

Miss May Ingles, former librarian at Nebraska Wesleyan, spoke on the "Place of the High School Library in a National Library Service" at the international library Conference in Edinborough, Scotland, September 29. Miss Ingles who is now the librarian on the Omaha Technical high school, will return to this country next month.

Miss Ethl M. Langdon, '07, is president of the Nebraska Library association which met in Lincoln Thursday and Friday. Miss Rose B. Clark of Wesleyan spoke on the elementary school library at the Friday afternoon session which was devoted to a discussion of school libraries.

Dwight Mason, student with Oscar Bennett, sang a solo at the Epworth league services last Monday evening in the First Methodist church of Lincoln. He was accompanied by Mildred Westermark.

Charles G. Gomon of Albion, was a campus visitor Friday. He graduated from Wesleyan in 1913.

Women majoring in the physical education department at Nebraska Wesleyan under the direction of Mrs. Clara Brandt, started lessons in golf at Antelope park last Wednesday. Those registered for the course are Esther Phipps, Helen Morris, Wilma Brown, Virginia Warrick, Helen Miller, Catherine Eby, Margaret Rohrbaugh and Helen Ray. The class meets twice a week, and one hours credit is given.

Reverend Harold Ford Carr of New York City, who has been addressing the Wesleyan students each day during the past week, was the speaker at a banquet given by Wesleyan chapter of the Oxford Fellowship club Thursday evening in the Wesleyan cafeteria. Mr. Carr graduated from Wesleyan in 1921.

Thursday evening Dean B. E. McProud of the teachers college delivered an address at the state convention of the Nebraska Parent-Teachers association. His subject was "Safeguarding Adolescence."

Norma Byers, Minerva Trulson, Florence McVey, and Norris Schroeder, fine arts students, broadcast the Wednesday evening musical program from WCAJ at 9 o'clock Tuesday at 12 o'clock Miss Margaret McGregor will broadcast the pipe-organ program.

Thirteen student pastors are attending Nebraska Wesleyan this year. A list of them and their charges follow: Ted Hawes, Ashbury, Lincoln; Carroll Miller Roca; Lyle Burdick, Lakeview, Lincoln; Harold Sandall, Goehner; Harold Bryant, Emanuel, Lincoln; Glenn Shanks, St. Luke, Lincoln; A. K. Williams, Warren, Lincoln; Robert McConnaha, Nehawka; Stanford Bassett, Bennet; Homer Dickerson Rockford; Robert Clark, Wabash; Dale Kreps, Palmyra; LaVerne Merritt, La Salle street, Beatrice.

College council recently held its first meeting. Officers elected follows: Frank Lalley, Sidney, president; Genevieve Thurber, Tecumseh, vice-president; Walter Gass, University Place, secretary-treasurer. Committees were appointed to make arrangements for Homecoming Day.

Miss Marie Smith of Beatrice is teaching in the public schools at Oakland this year. Miss Smith was a member of last year's graduating class.

The Nebraska Wesleyan male quartette has been selected: The following received parts: Dwight Mason, Tekamah, first tenor; Floyd Hansen, Clay Center, second tenor; Norris Schroeder, Hoskins, baritone; Loren Winship, University Place, bass. The quartette will appear with the Mens Glee club on its annual tour next spring.

A forensic convention will be held at 10 o'clock Monday morning in the Wesleyan auditorium.

Wilber Cass, '27 is teaching in the schools at Wahoo this year.

Professor Roy Ely, assistant professor in the department of economics and business administration will speak over WCAJ at 10 o'clock next Tuesday morning. Reverend F. I. Finch will speak Thursday morning.

HASTINGS NOTES

President Calvin H. French left Wednesday for New York, where he will spend several weeks in the interest of the college. He visited Philadelphia and Pittsburgh en route and plans to spend some time in New Jersey before returning.

Students and faculty of the college were entertained at chapel recently by the college band, appearing in its first concert of the year. In addition to its periodical concerts the Hastings college band aids in the pep demonstrations of the school, playing in the various student parades and at all football and basketball games. This forty-two piece organization is directed by Prof. H. M. Cunningham of the college.

The annual men's society rush period began this week with parties for the new men given by two of the four men's societies. Recent action by the inter-society council limited the extent and expenses of the rushing, which was extended from one week to cover a period of three weeks.

John Golden's "Three Wise Fools" will be presented Wednesday evening at the city auditorium as the first number of the Hastings college artist series. The series is under the management of Director H. M. Fuhr of the conservatory of music and consists of four numbers this year.

Officers of the North Platte valley club elected during the week are: President, Zeta Snyder, '30, Scottsbluff; secretary - treasurer, Emily Osborne, '28, Bayard and reporter, Miriam Harris, '29, Alliance. The club is comprised of students whose homes are in the North Platte section of the state.

Hastings college yells and songs are being published by the forensic department of the college. Music for the songs, an absence of advertising and a cover cut of the campus are features of the booklet, which is being assembled by Edgar Leafdale, '29, Hastings.

More than a hundred men of the school gathered Wednesday evening in the gymnasium for the annual "stag" mixer.

With the raising of $450 of the $500 Y. M. C. A. yearly budget at the meeting Thursday immediate completion of the new "Y" rest rooms is assured. Furnishing of a suite of rest or study rooms for the men of the school was interrupted last year by insufficient funds. The remainder of the budget was raised during the week by canvassing. The subscription meeting was in charge of Treasurer Charles Barrett, '29, Lexington and Vice President Laurens Williams, '28, Gothenburg.

John Buus, '29, Rock Rapids, Ia., occupied the pulpit today in the Presbyterian church of Minden.

Speakers at the Baptist state convention, in session here this week, addressed the young women of the college at the Thursday Y. W. C. A. meeting. Margaret Johnson, '30, Wilsonville, introduced the speakers.

John R. Glassey, professor of Bible, was the principal speaker today at the annual mission fest of the Campbell Presbyterian church.

A gospel team, headed by Herman Lenser, '28, Hildreth, conducted the services today in the Prebyterian church of Holdrege.

Doane College News

Prof. J. C. Lindberg, '99, professor of creative writing at the Northwestern State Teachers college, Aberdeen, So. Dak., has just been chosen president of the South Dakota state poetry society. The pleted and is composed of writers who live or formerly lived in South Dakota. Professor Lindberg has written many beautiful poems, some of which have been set to music by the composer, Thurlow Loeurance.

Last Friday a new program was presented at college chapel when the a Cappella choir sang to the audience from one of the new pipe organ chambers, the sound coming through the dome of the auditorium. Three special numbers were given. One hymn was sung with the students in unison; the choir apparently acting as an accompaniment. A number of Crete persons attended the chapel exercises.

The newly organized Doane Dynamo council held its first meeting at the home of Frank H. Korab on Monday night. This council has complete charge of all pep activities upon the campus and is composed of the following members: Frank H. Korab and Prof. Wesley Spink, of the faculty, the class presidents, F. W. Geer, Columbus, Herbert Spielman, Sutton; J. M. Geer, Columbus and Lyle Weatherholt, Norfolk, and the special Dynamo representatives from each class, Pal Sanderson, Clay Center; Lillian Alf, Colorado; Gilbert Nixon, Fairfield, and Morse Little, Genevia.

The czars of pep elected Miss Mary Davis, Sayre, Okla., as president of the Doane Dynamos, Carl Aller, Beatrice, as vice-president; Lyle Weatherholt, treasurer, and F. W. Geer was chosen chairman of the council.

It was decided to have three cheer leaders and the council selected C. A. Allenberger, Columbus, as head cheer leader, with Floyd Seder, Norfolk, and Tommy Walklin, Crete, as his assistants. It was thought best to have a song leader for the women of the college and Miss Jo Acheson, Bingham, was chosen.

Prof. Arthur Syler and Miss Muriel Thomas of the college faculty, were asked to organize and sponsor the ukelele band that the young ladies started a year or two ago.

Cotner Notes

The international index to periodicals has been added to the library. The reader's guide to periodical literature and the new index give a fairly complete index to magazine material.

Gladden Burnham, who was elected business manager of the Buldog, student annual, but did not return to school, has been appointed advertising solicitor and reporter for the Sidney Telegraph.

Mabel S. Cobbey, assistant professor of sociology, spoke at the annual meeting of the Nebraska Conference of Social Work at Beatrice, October 9-11. Rev. Ray E. Hunt, '09, minister of the First Christian church, Lincoln, gave the principal address at the closing session.

Mrs. Lenore Burket VanKirk, instructor in voice, is director of the music department of the Lincoln Woman's club for the third consecutive year. The work of the department is accredited by the extension division of the University of Nebraska.

Earnest W. Lundeen, librarian, attended the library institute in Lincoln, Tuesday, and the annual convention of the Nebraska library association Thursday and Friday.

Dr. Carl J. Warden, '15, instructor in psychology, Columbia university, who established a laboratory of animal psychology there last year, was mentioned in press dispatches Monday in connection with an intelligence test he gave to a dog. Dr. Warden took his M. A. at the University of Nebraska in 1916, and his Ph. D. from the University of Chicago, 1922.

Dr. Hal. C. Gossard, dean of men at Nebraska Wesleyan university, former Y. M. C. A. student secretary of the Rocky Mountain region, spoke to the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. at the dinner hour, Wednesday on "If I Were Starting to College Again"

University Notes

"A Russian Village," is the title of a narrative by Mrs. Karl Borders, formerly Mary Gayle, a student in the university, appearing in the October issue of the Nebraska Alumnus. Describing her life in a village of Russia, where her husband is direstor of the Russian Reconstruction Farms, Inc., Mrs. Borders writes, "Far from he well-equipped schools of Nebraska are the schools of this village. There is nothing at all above the third grade. But what there is, is of the new sort. The schools, and the village doctor, represent the future, intelligence standards for a new day."

A collection of reepresentative rocks and minerals from western Oklahoma has been received by the geology department. It was sent by Harold Smedley, a former student in the University who is now employed by the Sinclair Oil and Gas company.

Frank Pospisil, former Nebraska football and track man, left Wednesday for New York, whence he will sail soon for Venezuela to take a position as geologist with a New York company.

Scotch Beauty Joins Husband.

Forty-eight hours after the lifting of the immigration bars, which temporarily prevented her from accompanying her husband to the U. S., Mrs. Jean Rutherford Logan, of Dalkeith, Scotland, prize British beauty of 1926, has joined him at Louisville, Ky. They were married in September at Quebec, Canada, and are shown above on the bride's arrival at Louisville.

McCook Junior College.

The Dramatic club held its regular meeting Monday evening October 10. A program of music and readings was put on by the Misses Emma Belle Purviance and Norma Johnson. The members decided upon an official pin for the organization.

At a called convocation Tuesday of the board of directors of the morning, October 11, E. F. Petersen, McCook chamber of commerce, announced that the chamber would offer in June four rewards of twenty-five dollars each to the two girls and the two boys having the highest scholastic records for the year. One girl and one boy are to be chosen from each class.

The board of the Women's Athletic association met on Wednesday evening, October 12. A financial report was heard. Mildred Metheny was elected hockey manager for the year. Soccer practices closed this week, and roller skating season opened under the management of Lyda Havek.

The college men held their regular fortnightly luncheon at the Keystone hotel Friday noon, October 14. The freshmen were in charge of the program under the leadership of Paul Wilson. The topic under discussion was the gra n bus ness. M. R. Heald, local grain dealer, spoke and Leo Kelly, director of the college orchestra, played saxophone solos.

Grand Island College

Miss Myrtle Miller, graduate of 1923, and for two years assistant professor in education at Grand Island college, has announced her approaching marriage to Maurice Baird. Both Miss Miller and Mr. Baird are residents of Wayside, Neb.

A new 1300-gallon pressure tank, and an electric dishwasher for the dining hall, have been installed at the college.

The Stripettes held the first of a series of social teas in the gymnasium on Wednesday, October 12. All the women students of the college and women of the faculty are invited to this function.

The college has just purchased a Lyceum course of four numbers to be given during the fall and early winter. These numbers will consist of the Rainbow orchestra on October 28, the Fenwick Newell Concert company, on Novmeber 28, Edwin M. Whitney, interpreter of plays, December 5, and Sam Grathwell will lecture on Japan on January 30.

The college entertained the football men at a banquet on Thursday, October 11. Twenty-six men from the squad were present. President Wells spoke briefly.

The first meting of the Life Service league was held at the home of President Wells on Friday evening, October 7. Thirty-six members were present. After a devotional period and discussion of the work of the league a social time was enjoyed.

At the first meeting of the Faculty club on Saturday evening, October 8, Professor Knox was elected president; Professor Coatney, vice president, and Miss Pedersen, secretary-treasurer.

Peru Normal

State Secretary of Student Y M C. A. Mr. F. C. Stephenson, was on the campus Thursday, October 6, visiting the local organization.

The sophomore class met at convocation time, Thursday, October 6. The main business of the meeting was the election of officers. Wilbur Schindler was elected president; Fred Duey, vice president; Myrlin McGuire, secretary; Iris Jones, treasurer.

Chadron Normal

Ruffus Trapp, '26, former all-state tackle, coach of athletics at Mitchell, Homer Kummer, '26 former all-state half back, and Cecil Taveper, '25, former tackle, coach of athletics at Gering, witnessed the Eagles' 117 to 0 victory over Omaha university Saturday.

KEARNEY NOTES

Kenneth Downing of Arnold, who attended Kearney college in 1925-26 and who for the past year has been attending Nebraska Wesleyan, was recently elected president of the junior class in that university. Kenneth was prominent in Kearney college in Y. M. C. A. work and was a member of the track team.

On the evening of September 29, the Faculty N. E. A. unit of Kearney college held a dinner. After the dinner a committee composed of Dr. Ralph Noyer, Miss Jennie Conrad, Miss Lula Wirt, and Lyle Mantor had charge of the program with Mr. Noyer presiding. Miss Edith Rundle told of her trip and studies in Europe last year and Mrs. Oscar Drake entertained the group with several readings.

Answers to Movie Fans

Dear Movie Editor—Well, I am here again with a lot of questions.

Please give me the addresses of the following: Billie Dove, Bert Lytell, Joan Crawford, John Barrymore, Renee Adoree, George K. Arthur, Barbara Kent, Kenneth Harlan, Lois Wilson, Ralph Forbes, Mary Brian and Ramon Novarro.

What are the latest pictures of Renee Adoree, Billy Dove, Barbara Kent, Bert Lytell and George K. Arthur?

Please give me the cast for the following pictures: "Fingerprints," "The Understanding Heart" and "Slide, Kelly, Slide."

What was the name of the man who was Carmel Myers' lover in "The Understanding Heart?" Also give me this address.

Could you give me a list of all the movie stars that came from Nebraska?

I hope you won't think this letter too long, and also would like to see it in print soon. Thanks for the information. I remain.

"DODO."
Havelock.

There's just one way to get them out of your system, and you seem to be running over with them today.

You may write to Billie Dove at First National Studio, Burbank, Calif.; Bert Lytell, Hollywood Athletic club, Hollywood, Calif.; Joan Crawford, Renee Adoree, George K. Arthur, Ralph Forbes, and Ramon Novarro at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, Culver City, Calif. They seem to have a long list of favorites. Kenneth Harlan is working on the Universal lot, Universal City, Calif. Lois Wilson is with F. B. O., 780 Gower St., Hollywood, Calif; John Barrymore, United Artist studio, 7200 Santa Monica Blvd. Calif., and Mary Brian at the Paramount Studio, 5451 Marathon, Hollywood, Calif.

You will surely have writer's cramp before you finish all of those letters.

Miss Adoree is playing opposite Novarro in his new picture as yet untitled. Billy Dove is busy on "Louisiana." Barbara Kent is working in "Stop That Man," and George K. Arthur will be seen next in "Baby Mine." Mr. Lytell is not making pictures at present.

The cast for "Fingerprints" is: "Dora Traynor," Louise Fazenda; "Homer Fairchild," John T. Murray; "Jacqueline Norton," Helen Costello; "S. V. Sweeney," George Nichols; "Mother Malone," Martha Mattox; "The Bandoline Kid," Franklin Panghorn; "Cuffs Egan," William Demarest; "Hard Boiled Ryan," Robert Perry; "Annie Laurie, Andy Norton," Warner Richmond; "Secret Service Man," Lou Harvey.

"The Understanding Heart" cast is: "Monica Dale," Jean Crawford; "Bob Mason," Rockcliffe Fellowes; "Tony Garland," Francis X. Bushman, Jr.; "Kelcey Dale," Carmel Myers; "Sheriff Bentley," Richard Carle; "Uncle Charley," Harvey Clark.

I didnt see the picture, but I imagine Rockcliffe Fellowes is the man you want. Address him at the Hollywood Athletic club, Hollywood, Calif.

Following is the cast for "Slide, Kelly, Slide": "Jim Kelly," William Haines; "Mary Mpnson," Sally O'Neil; "Tom Munson," Harry Carey; "Swede Hansen," Karl Dane; "Mickey Marton," Junior Coghlan; "Cliff Macklin," Warner Richmond; "McLean," Quinn Williams.

Nebraska has a great many celebrities in the movie field to her credit. Among them are: Harold Lloyd, Hoot Gibson, Richard and Maud Wayne, Laura Anson, the late Mrs. Sidney Drew, Pauline Bush, Doris Pawn, Bess Gearhart Morrison, Beatrice Van, Louise Murray, Peggy Betts, Alfred Hollingsworth, Bill Bailey, Charles Spere, and Claire Lois Butler Lee. Rod La Rocque might also be called a Nebraska product, because he spent several years in Omaha, and went to school there.

Dear Movie Editor—Another year has rolled by and again I pay my annual visit to your page.

First I wish to nominate five favorites to the Hall of Fame: Our Immortal Mary, Emil Jannings, Dolores Del Rio (Wasnt she superb in "Resurrection?) John Gilbert and Jetta Goudal.

I am anxiously waiting Universal's forgeous production of "Uncle Tom's Cabin." Isn't Margarita Fisher playing "Topsy' in it? It seems like some years ago I read she was a former Nebraskan and I am wondering if it is so.

What has become of Doris Pawn?

Is Pearl White still in Paris?

How old is Fannie Ward now? What is she doing?

Clara Bow is surely going to lose her popularity if they keep on giving her such stories as "Rough House Rosie" and "Hula." I didn't think these pictures were up to standard at all.

"The Way of All Flesh" was splendid, especially the first and latter parts of the picture. I thought the episode on the train was somewhat overdrawn and really took away some of the sympathy for August Schilling. Emil Jannings is surely one of the greatest character actors of the present time.

Lastly, may I say a word of praise for one of the players on the legitimate stage in Lincoln, Frances Gregg is indeed an actress of the first degree. She portrays every character with fineness a and understanding.

And best wishes to the Movie Editor. May you live forever. (You probably don't wish it when you receive some of these letters.) As ever.

X. Y. Z.
Hildreth, Neb.

How the years do roll by! I was wondering the other day where you were. You know you have been my "once in awhile" for several years. I am always happy to hear from you, but wish your visits were more frequent. I don't forget my old fans, especially those who came often enough to get acquainted with us.

Edwin Carewe made no mistake when he brought Dolores del Rio up from Mexico for the films. She is certainly the rage right now and is getting almost more than her share of "breaks." I'm glad you mentioned Jetta Goudal. She has always been a favorite of mine, and I'm not biased, either, because she was so gracious when I interviewed her. She is very delightful to meet off screen, not a bit "ritzy," and I think when she is given the right type of role she does some excellent character work. She's exotic and very much out of the ordinary, but I can't stand her in sickish love scenes.

Miss Fisher is returning to the screen in "Uncle Tom's Cabin" after a retirement of several years. She is the wife of Harry Pollard, who directed the picture. It would have been showing now, had it not been for Mr. Pollard's illness which delayed production on the feature for several weeks. Miss Fisher was born at Missouri Valley, Ia., so we can almost claim her.

I haven't seen Miss Pawn in pictures for some time—in fact I believe "Shame" was her last. She lives at 847 South Alvarado St., Los Angeles, Calif.

Pearl still prefers France to her own U. S. A., so we'll just let her stay there.

Miss Ward is past sixty, but she is still so young and flapperish looking that she could almost qualify for ingenue roles. She's not wasting her time knitting, either, despite the fact that she answers to "Grandma." She's touring on the vaudeville stage, a living proof that we can all be young at sixty—if we know how.

It only takes two or three poor stories to put a star on the "has been" list — that's true. Perhaps Clara's next will redeem her. Her contract calls for a certain number of pictures a year, and it seems she must makethem, no matter what the material is that they supply her with. It isn't easy to find suitable stories for Clara's type.

The train episode in "The Way of All Flesh," while a little bit weak, was the turning point in August's career and the basic foundation for the story. If he hadn't met Mayme, he would have continued on his respectable existence, delivered the bonds and lived happily everafter. But he started the "way of all flesh" when he peeked over the top of his paper at the beautiful blond opposite him.

Mr. Jannings made the character live. Do you remember the hundreds of different expressions on his face. I don't think one man could get the fine points of the various emotions that Jannings attained. It was a good plot, but Mr. Jannigs was the whole show.

Miss Gregg—make your bow.

Dear Movie Editor: I wrote to you once before and received a good answer so here goes again.

To see a good picture screened well is one of my favorite pastimes. I find that good pictures are educating and see no harm in them.

My favorite star is Clara Bow. I admire her and always see her plays.

In "The Liberty Magazine," Lilian Gish has an article about her career and I find it very interesting.

Who was the little girl and little boy that played in "The Magic Garden?"

Please tell me the latest plays that Billie Dove, Florence Vidor, Carol Dempster, Ronald Colman, Richard Barthelmess, James Hall, Vilma Banky, Greta Nissen, Mae Murray, Anna Q. Nilssen and Lloyd Hughes have played in.

Tell me something about Malcolm McGregor, Adolphe Menjou, and Marie Prevost.

Please give me the cast for "Fighting Love," "Beau Geste," and "The Bat."

If you will give me the addresses to the following stars, I won't bother you any more: Lillian and Dorothy Gish, Talmadge sisters, Reginald Denny, Alice Joyce, Leatrice Joy, Jack Holt, Buster Keaton, Dolores and Helen Costello, Esther Ralston, William Boyd, Malcolm McGregor, Corinne Griffith, Olive Borden, Victor Varconi, Ben Lyon, Antonio Moreno, and Louise Brooks.

It certainly was too bad that Einar Hansen was killed.

I have caused you enough trouble. Thank you very much, FORMERLY CHICAGO.

I hope you are still watching the paper for your letter. There were so many ahead of you I couldn't get you in last week.

Joyce Coad and Phillipe de Lacy were John and Amaryllis as children in "The Magic Garden."

You will see Billie Dove soon in "Louisiana." Florence Vidor is making "Honeymoon Hate." Carol Dempster's latest is "Drums of Love," and Ronald Colman and Vilma Banky are showing "The Magic Flame." "The Drop Kick" for Richard and "Swim, Girl Swim" for Mr. Hall. He is on his vacation at present. Lloyd Hughes will do "Sailors Wives" after "No Place to Go." Miss Nilsson in "The Thirteenth Juror." Mae Murray is back in Hollywood now, but she hasn't made any picture for quite a while. She has been in Europe hunting with her husband. Watch for Greta in "A Girl in Every Port."

Malcolm McGregor's parents are very wealthy, but he preferred to create a position of his own, rather than be just his father's son, so after he finished Yale he went to Hollywood for his career. His first work before the camera was in "All the Brothers Were Valiant," and he quickly rose to leading parts. Mr. McGregor was born in New York City in 1897. He is married and has one daughter. As you could tell from his pictures, he has dark hair and eyes. Address him at 6043 Selma Ave., Hollywood, Calif.

Menjou, sounding French, was born in Pittsburgh, Pa., of French parentage. He graduated from Culver military academy and Cornell university. For five years before seeking a screen career, Mr. Menjou trod the boards in stock and vaudeville. He appeared in such pictures as "The Three Musketeers," "The Eternal Flame," and "The Sheik," but it was not until "The Woman of Paris" that he found himself. Since then he has been the sophisticated gentleman of the world in pictures and has risen to stardom. He has dark brown hair and blue eyes. Address him 1911 Carmen Ave., Los Angeles, Calif.

Miss Prevost is numbered among the few who broke into the movies without any effort on her part. She was visiting the lot where Mack Sennett comedies were being made, when a director saw her and engaged her on the dot. Marie thereafter did her share toward making Sennett comedies famous. She has graduated to featured roles now, and plays in comedy dramas. Marie was born in Sarnia, Canada in 1898, but received her education in Denver. She is five feet four in height and weighs 123. Her eyes are blue and she has brown hair.

Address both Gish sisters at the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio, Culver City, Calif. Only Lillian works there, but she will see that Dorothy receives her mail.

The Talmadge girls and Corinne Griffith work at the United Artists studio, 7200 Santa Monica Blvd., Hollywood, Calif. Buster Keaton has his own studio in Hollywood. The Costello sisters are with Warner Brothers, 5842 Sunset Blvd., Hollywood, Calif. Alice Joyce and Reginald Denny are at the Universal studio, Universal City, Calif. Address Leatrice Joy, William Boyd and Victor Varconi in care of Cecil B. De Mille, Culver City, Calif. Olive Borden, Fox Film Corp., 1401 N. Western Ave., Hollywood, Calif. Ben Lyon, First National Studio, Burbank, Calif. Jack Holt, Columbia Pictures, 1438 Gower St., Hollywood, Calif. Louise Brooks and Esther Ralston, Paramount Famous Lasky Studio, 5451 Marathon Ave., Hollywood, Calif.

The cast for "Fighting Love" is: "Donna Vittoria," Jetta Goudal; "Gabriel Amari," Victor Varconi; "Filipo Navarro," Henry B. Walthall; "Dario Niccolini," Louis Natheaux; "Princess Torini," Josephine Crowell.

In "Beau Geste," we find, "Michael, Beau Geste," Ronald Colman; "Digby Geste," Neil Hamilton; "John Geste," Ralph Forbes; "Lady Brandon," Alice Joyce; "Isobel," Mary Brian; "Sargeant Lejaune," Noah Beery; "Major de Beaujolais," Norman Trevor; Baldini," William Powell; "Maris," George Rigas; "Schwartz," Bernard Siegel; "Hank," Victor McLaglan; "Buddy," Donald Stuart; "St. Andre," Paul McAllister.

And "The Bat" cast is: "Gideon Bell," Andre De Beranger; "Man in the Black Mask," Charles Herzinger; "Miss Cornelius Van Gorder," Emily Fitzroy; "Lizzie Allen," Louise Fazenda; "Richard Fleming," Arthur Housman; "Dr. Wells," Robert McKim; "Brooks," Jack Pickford; "Dale Ogden," Jewell Carmen; "Billy," Sojin; "Moletti," Tullio Carminati; "The Unknown," Lee Shumway.

Dear Movie Editor—I have read your column for over a year and I thoroughly enjoy reading it. I certainly have learned a lot about the stars and I feel more acquainted with them through your column.

This is my first appearance, so I am chuck full of questions.

Will you please tell me the addresses and ages of Clara Bow, Colleen Moore, Greta Nissen, Harold Lloyd, Monte Blue, May McAvoy, Billie Dove, Joan Crawford, Patsy Ruth Miller, Marion Davies, Richard Barthelmess and Mae Murray?

I certainly think Richard Dix is a good actor.

Isn't Mae Murray a little above the average weight to play in the movies?

I saw Clara Bow in "Rough House Rosie," and I thought she was just darling. Her hair always looks black in her pictures, doesn't it?

How do you pronounce Richard Barthelmes and Pola Negri? I have heard them pronounced different ways and I never was sure which was correct.

Thanking you in advance and hoping I may come again, I remain just A FAN.

We are always ready to enroll new members in our department.

Greta Nissen and Clara Bow were both born in 1905 and Colleen is four years older. May McAvoy is Colleen's age and Billie Dove is twenty-four. Patsy Ruth Miller was born in 1904, Marion Davies in 1898 and Mae Murray in 1893. Joan is in her early twenties. Harold Lloyd is thirty-four, Monte Blue, thirty-seven, and Richard Barthelmess, thirty-two.

And now for addresses. You will find Colleen Moore, Billie Dove and Richard Barthelmess in care of First National Studios, Burbank, Calif. Clara Bow is with Paramount Famous Lasky, 5451 Marathon, Hollywood. Greta Nissen, Fox Film Corp., 1401 N. Western Ave., Hollywood. Monte Blue and May McAvoy, Warner Brothers, 5842 Sunset Blvd., Hollywood. Joan Crawford, Marion Davies, Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, Culver City, Calif. Mae Murray, Beverly Hills, Calif. Harold Lloyd, in care of his own company, Hollywood. Patsy Ruth Miller, 1822 N. Wilton Place, Hollywood, Calif.

Mae is getting just a little bit plump for the camera, because it accentuates size, but "as herself" she's quite slender. Accent the first syllable in Barthelmess, and make both "Es" short. Pola is pronounced with a long "O" and Negri is as though the "E" became long "A" and the "I," long "E."

Dear Movie Editor—Here I am again, overflowing with questions. It must take a lot of patience to answer the questions when there are so many. I never miss your page, because it is so interesting, I can't help reading it.

Not so very long ago, I saw Mary Brian in "Her Father Said No." From then on she has been one of my favorites. Mary Pickford and Richard Dix are my best favorites.

Please give me the cast for "Her Father Said No." Tell me about the little boy who was pictured in it. Wasn't it Frankie Darro? Please give me his address.

Please tell me all about Harold Lloyd, and I would like his address, too. His cousin lives in our home town.

Virginia Lee Corbin is sweet. Please give me her address and age.

In the Pickford-Nilsson contest, I vote for Mary. I also vote for Richard in the Colman-Gilbert-Dix contest. In my opinion Mary is far better than Anna. I certainly think Anna is old looking.

I do not agree with Theresa about John Gilbert. I think it is a shame for him to spoil his reputation in such a way. Even if this shouldn't count against him on the stage, many feel cool toward him on this account. How can anyone stick up for him! And I have no liking for Pola Negri, either.

Well, it certainly is a wonder if this escapes the W. P. B., but I hope to see it in print. Thanking you for your patience, I remain VALENCIA, Hildreth, Neb.

Hildreth seems to be a regular hot bed for movie fans today. This is the second letter from there.

The cast for "Her Father Said No" is: "Charlotte Hamilton," Mary Brian; "Danny Martin," Danny O'Shea; "Al Conklin," Al Cooke; "Kit Goodwin," Kit Guard; "John Hamilton," John Stepping; "Matt Dde," Frankie Darro; "Herbert Penrod," Gene Stone; "Betty Francis," Betty Caldwell.

I haven't collected much data on Frankie yet, but I'll do a little sleuthing and see what I can find out concerning him. He is getting to be very much in demand as a child star, and plays in most of Fred Thomson's westerns. You will locate him at the F. B. O. Studio, 780 Gower St., Hollywood, Calif.

Harold Lloyd is our most prominent representative in the movies. He was born near Pawnee City in 1893. His folks later moved to Omaha, where Harold staged amateur performances in his back yard. He broke into the game professionally at Omaha too, through the Omaha Stock company.

It was in 1914 that the famous comedian made his first appearance before the camera. Since that time he has over three hundred comedies to his credit. He now heads his own producing company and makes super comedies. Mr. Lloyd married his former leading lady, Mildred Davies and they have a baby daughter. He is five feet nine inches tall and has black hair and blue eyes.

Miss Corbin was born in 1910.

Screen Siftings

Back From Europe—George O'Brien, Fox star, has returned from several months in Europe after having stopped enroute home in San Francisco to visit his father, Chief of Police Dan O'Brien.

Draws Praise—Milton Holmes, a boy 19, has been called a juvenile Lon Chaney, because of his character versatility, by Cecil B. DeMille. After he appeared in "The Wreck of the Nesperus" was signed to appear with Jacqueline Logan in "The Leopard Lady."

Second Picture—The Duncan Sisters of Topsy and Eva fame, instead of going to London on tour, are returning to Hollywood to make a second picture, following the success of their "Topsy and Eva."

Gets Important Role—Shirley O'Hara, recently an extra girl, has been signed for an important role with Ramon Novarro. This follows the first successful part she played with Adolphe Menjou in "A Gentleman of Paris."

Money Maker—"The King of Kings," stupendous DeMille production of the life of Christ, has grossed $500,000 at Graumann's Chinese theater, where it is about to close before going on the road.

Nearly Through—Lon Chaney, "man of a thousand faces," who is about to finish "The Big City," will next be starred in "Laugh, Clown, Laugh."

Spiked Shoes—Milton Sills, Doris Kenyon and their company are wearing spiked shoes in the redwood lumber district of northern California, where they are on location filming "The Valley of the Gants," a Peter B. Kyne story.

To Write Series—Ben Hecht, author of "The Underworld," and Eleanor Glynn are two writers recently signed by First National, to write the first of a series of five pictures to be directed by Allan Dwan.

Plays "Gold Digger"—Lilyan Tashman, vampire in "The Prince of Headwaiters," is to play a "gold digger" role opposite Will Rogers in "The Texas Steer," his latest picture.

Vampire Now—Mary Astor, demure heroine of many films, emerges as a full-bloomed vampire in "The Two Arabian Knights," and she is costumed in the limited harem habiliments for the part.

Wesleyan Affairs

The fourteenth annual Homecoming day will be observed Saturday, October 22, at Nebraska Wesleyan university. At 10 o'clock a program will be held in the Wesleyan auditorium. It will consist of Chancellor I. B. Schreckengast's welcome to the alumna response by an alumnus, music, and an athletic rally in preparation for the football game in the afternoon. An alumni luncheon will be held in the Wesleyan cafeteria at 12 o'clock. The football game between Nebraska Wesleyan and the University of South Dakota will be staged at 2 o'clock on Johnson field. During the day a committee composed of faculty members will judge the house decorations and floats of the Wesleyan sororities and fraternities, fraternity which scores the highest will be awarded first place. In the evening at 8 o'clock the first play of the season by the Wesleyan Dramatic club "The Fortune Hunter," by Winchell Smith, will be given in the Wesleyan auditorium under the direction of Miss Enid Miller and Miss Frances Goodhue.

The freshman class won 52 to 50 in the annual Olympics Saturday, October 8, with the sophomore class. Immediately following the contests the freshman entertained the juniors at a picnic in Wesleyan park, and the seniors entertained the sophomores at a picnic at University Place Auto club.

Professor F. M. Gregg spoke "Character Education" and 'Health Education" at a teachers institute at Fullerton last Thursday and Friday. Friday evening he spoke to the Woman's club at Newman Grove on "Child Training."

Miss Ethl Langdon, librarian at Nebraska Wesleyan, left Saturday for Monterey, Calif., to attend the celebration of the fifty-fifth wedding anniversary of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Haroce Langdon formerly of Beatrice. Her brother, Oliver Langdon, who graduated from Wesleyan in 1907, will also attend. The celebration will take place October 20. Miss Langdon graduated from Wesleyan in 1907.

NEW PLAYS AT NEW YORK CITY

"Five O'Clock Girl" Packing Forty-Fourth Street Theater.

Hope Hampton Springs Into Opera at Shubert In "My Princess."

BY BUSHNELL DIMOND.

NEW YORK, Oct. 14—Neat and pert, pretty and sly, Philip Goodman's "The Five O'clock Girl" has come in, to pack the Forty-fourth street theatre from pit to dome. This is real musical comedy, demure, but business-like, not unmindful of the Cinderella necessity, yet, at the same time, darting off into momentary paths of gratifying lunacy. Dressed and staged with the prodigality of a Dillingham, the show is more reminiscent of a de luxe "Oh, Boy!" or "Very Good Eddie' than a 'Sally or Sunny.'" Mr. Goodman has, quite remarkably, revived the tradition of the old Princess entertainments with an added dash and ingenuity, and color.

Romantic Youth Roles.

The featured players, Mary Eaton and Oscar Shaw, bring individual brightness and the feeling of romantic youth to their roles, but the evening belongs to a nimble slice of femininity named Pert Kelton, whose quiet antics the first night irrevocably snapped the thread of plot and reddened many a palm. A tippy-nosed sparrow of a girl, Miss Kelton speaks with the bronchial gasp of Pauline Lord, and dances with the comic effervescerce of a female Jack Donahue. She has come a long way from her priceless Chaplin impersonation a few years ago, and she will go further. I predict her name in 100-Watt mazdas within another season.

Chorus Skilful, Complex.

The chorus work is skilful and complex; Miss Eaton is as pictorial as a birthday cake figure; (incidentally, she has acquired a quality of flame-like glow that she never, as a 'Lucky" star, possessed;) there are cavernous and massive sets by Norman Bel-Geddes, more like Egyptian tombs than modern apartments, and while Kalmar and Ruby might have been given a freer hand for their foolery and tunes, "The Five O'clock Girl" makes satisfying entertainment.

When you go across the street to "My Princess" at the Shubert you find yourself put back twenty years, to the days when Grace Van Studdiford was ambling around in the ruby fleshings of "The Red Feather," and when every prima donna had a Big Number at a quarter to eleven. "My Princess" is the local springboard from which Miss Hope Hampton has essayed to dive into the dubious waters of operatic acclaim. I hope, in the attempt, she has not hit her Titian head on a rock, or suffered a case of coloratura cramps.

Miss Hampton Unfortunate.

Singing with a purity and melodic line that are surprising in their austere accuracy, Miss Hampton has been mildly unfortunate in her choice of a vehicle. For "My Princess"—out of Sheldon by Donnelly—is a specious, mirthless and occassionally ludicrous legend, whose glare and golden trappings cannot conceal its paucity of audience appeal." The fact that Cinderella has again been resuscitated in the person of the diva doesn't matter a bit. "My Princess" is as ornately and pompously dead as Pharaoh, just as "The Five O'clock Girl" is unquestionably as crisply alive as a Fifth Avenue flapper.

Belasco's Offering.

Mr. Belasco's first offering of the season is a psycho-analytic tragedy by William J. Hulbut. Last year Mr. Hurlbut explored, with a palpitating finger, the depths of religious mania as an escape from illicit passion, in "Bride of the Lamb." This year he takes us into the dark chamber of a girl's heart which, beats—though she doesn't know it—to the unaware pulse of her brother-in-law. The sole defect in this interesting, if over-emphasized, play is the fact that all the other characters, modern New Yorkers, have apparently never heard of Freud and Jung, and consequently stagger blindly through the erotic mists with the heroine. This implausibility is smoothly glossed over by a capital company, in which Beth Merrill, as the panting sister-in-law, reaches the peak of her talent i nan impressive characterization, and to which Philip Merivale and Mary Morris contribute their engaging and human talents. I recommend a study of the lighting to art theater directors; Mr. Belasco has something to teach them here.

Pickwick at Empire.

"Pickwick," at the Empire, is the dry bones of Dickens without the gravy of his episodic comicality. You get plenty of plot, reverentially and scrupulously done; but you don't get Mr. Bob Sawyer or Mrs. Leo Hunter, upon whose unctious ghosts the scalpel has descended. The lack is partially atoned for by a magnificant performance, uttered in velvety roars, by Bruce Winston as Buzfus, and the really charming Sam Weller of Charles McNaughton. The Pickwick of John Cumberland is "cut" and not very beaerable therefore.

Must Be Poor.

"The Garden of Eden", adapted from the the German by Avery Hopwood and at the Selwyn, is the worst play, from every viewpoint of taste and integrity, that I have seen in thirty years of playgoing. The verbena loveliness of Miriam Hopkins has been flung on its papier mache dunghill with a managerial gesture that stops just short of felony. Equally wasted is the young, bright skill of Douglass Montgomery.

Recognize This Screen Star?

Movie fans of a decade ago should recognize this actress. It is none other than Theda Bara, one-time screen vampire, snapped as she was departing from Chicago for her home in Hollywood after a recent visit in the east.

Screen Siftings

Reared on Stage—David Butler, "kid" director for Fox, who is about to start "The High School Hero" was literally reared on the stage. His father was Fred Butler, Morosco actor and stage director, and his mother was for years a leading lady under the name of Adele Belgrade. He himself was a child actor in the Alcazar theater in San Francisco.

Lost Wardrobe—Carroll Nye, screen juvenile, escaped with his life and lost his entire wardrobe during a recent fire in his apartment.

Leav for New York—Corrine Griffith is about to leave for New York to find her next story, after having completed "The Garden of Eden" for United Artists. She recently sold her home and furnishings in Beverly Hills to Mrs. Thomas Ince. In turn she purchased from Mrs Ince seven acres further back in the hills on which she plans an Italian villa.

Denies Rumors—Mrs. Tom Mix, who has returned from several months spent in Europe, emphatically denies rumors of troubled waters in the Mix matrimonial venture.

Another Denial—Gloria Swanson arises to deny a story given out in Semlin, Jugo Clavia, by Johann Pfeffer, who says she is his niece and was born there and he invites her "home." The Marquise de la Failaise says the story is ridiculous and that she was born in Chicago in 1911.

In Hospital—Mildred Marsh, sister of Mae Marsh, was stricken with appendicitis recently at the end of her third day as an extra in motion pictures. She was rushed to a hospital for an operation which was successful. Adolph Menjou, in whose picture she was working, stopped the cameras to go to her aid.

All His Own—Rod LaRocque, who was to have been co-starred with Leatrice Joy in "The Blue Danube" is to have a starring vehicle all his own, and Ralph Forbes will probably appear with Miss Joy. La Rocque will appear in "Stand and Deliver," a story of ancient and modern Greece.

"TURN TO THE RIGHT"
BY WINCHELL SMITH, AUTHOR OF "LIGHTNIN'"
This is one of the greatest plays of all time. The homecoming of a prodigal son and his pal from prison forms the basis for a story which cannot be excelled for sheer human interest. "Turn To The Right" teems with comedy, too, and contains a real love theme. It is another John Holden Success.

Health Officer Points Out Great Need of Vaccination Among the Younger Children

An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.

We copied that proverb ten times in our primary copy books, without much knowing, or caring, what meaning it had.

It only came home to us when stern parents repeated it to us, as they fed us some terrible tonic in the bright springtime or put us to bed with a hot flannel on the chest, after a day of wet feet.

That proverb is the basis upon which the city health department is founding its present campaign against preventable diseases. At the moment, there seems to be nothing to cure, but there arise a great need at any time, if prevention is not given attention in time.

Free From Epidemics.

Lincoln has been remarkably free from serious epidemics for some years, but the health department doesn't feel that is any criterion for the future. In fact, it goes on the theory that the longer time a city exists without one, the more danger there is of an epidemic and a serious one. There are no shadows of a great scourge of illness either in or near the city, and the health department is anxious to keep them away.

Through the efforts of Dr. L. J. Owen, deputy superintendent of health and city epidemiologist, and diagonostician, attention is being directed to the prevention of dangerous types of contagious diseases. Although it was not the most serious type of illness, the epidemic of measles a year ago revealed that Lincoln people, especially the children, are susceptible to communicable diseases.

Become Careless.

Dr. Owen has found that after a city has been free of epidemics over a prolonged period, then is the time the greatest precautions should be taken. People are apt to forget about preventive measures; vaccination is neglected, and an entire generation of children can and do grow up without any kind of immunization against dangerous diseases. That is what is happening here now, he says.

To supplement the work of the public school health department in protecting pre-school age children from communicable diseases, the city department is emphasizing the need of vaccination. Each year 1,200 children are born in Lincoln and only a very small portion of these are vaccinated either before or after they enter school.

Only Two of Thirty-six.

Two years ago a physician asked in a classroom how many of the children had been vaccinated. But two of thirty-six answered in the affirmative.

The school department does not vaccinate against smallpox. This may be done this year, however. First attention has been given to other diseases, and last year arrangements were made to vaccinate 3,000 against diphtheria, with the result that where a year ago, only one in sixteen were immunized, this year the ratio is one in six; an increase of 270 per cent.

Diphtheria and smallpox are more fatal among children between the ages of six months and five years old, than at any other period Because of this it is the babies and small children the department is trying to reach.

Of 20,000 children in the city, probably not more than 35 per cent have been vaccinated against diphtheria. Add to these the number who are naturally immune and it is believed more than 50 per cent of Lincoln's children are susceptible to contagious diseases.

Work Is Neglected.

Dr. Owen finds that smallpox vaccination has been neglected to a far greater extent than has that for diphtheria. Of the pre-school children, probably 4,000, it is probable that less than 500 have been vaccinated.

It is terrible to try and visualize what may happen in Lincoln in the event of a scourge, unprotected as our children are by vaccine, Dr. Owen says. That is why he is urging vaccination.

Diphtheria, smallpox and typhiod are all preventable, Dr. Owen says. When a case of one or the other appears, he declares, the fault generally can be traced to the parent or guardian; proper preventative measures had not been taken. Although scarlet fever inoculation has not been perfected to the same high degree as in other diseases, it is advisable also, Dr. Owen says, and does a great amount of good.

Educating People.

The city health department program is one of educating the people to go to their family physicians and have their children vaccinated. When this cannot be done, the work will be done at the health office at a very nominal cost, scarcely enough to pay for the vaccine.

Smallpox immunization is virtually lifelong in its effect. There never has been an authtenticated, serious case of the malady known to follow proper inoculation, it is said. Diphtheria toxin antitoxin immunizes for life in more than 90 per cent of the cases.

"Modern vaccine is as safe as anything in medicine," Dr. Owen declared, asserting that "excessive soreness or illness comes from some secondary infection."

A. W. Bushboom, contractor of Fairbury has begun to overhaul the central portion of the administration building for the purpose of fire proofing it. This was the first structure built by the college. Work will go forward to completion on the ground floor before the second and third floor reconstruction is taken in hand.

The regular weekly devotional meeting of the Y. W. C. A. took place Thursday morning. Ellen McMillan, '16, talked on the subject, "Getting along with people." Group singing and discussion followed, and Harriett Gibson gave a piano number.

J. A. Chicoine, city superintendent of schools, Cody attended the football game played with Omaha university Saturday.

Mrs. Cecil Tavener nee Marjorie Runyan, '25, Gering, and Celestine Briggs of Alliance were guests this week at the Alpha Phi Pi sorority house.

Dean B. E. McProud of the Teachers college, Wesleyan university, Herbert L. Cushing from the state department, and A. A. Reed of the University of Nebraska visited the college Tuesday and Wednesday. They comprise a board of examiners appointed by the state superintendent of public instruction, and inspected the work of the institution, especially with reference to the training school.

Miss Genevieve V. Williams left Saturday for Phoenix, Ariz., where she will spend a three weeks' vacation.

Helen Hartman, '26 of Gordon, was present at the football game Saturday.

Roberta Yauney, aged four, of Hyannis, niece of Miss Lottie F. Lean, instructor of third and fourth grades at the training school, died at St. Joseph's hospital at Alliance Monday, October 10, following an operation for appendicitis. Interment took place at Elmwood.
